Testimonials

Andy McMillan Industry Association, BACnet International

The technology underpinnings of intelligent buildings and smart cities are important, but they cannot be developed and deployed in isolation. That is why ecosystem-wide community initiatives like INBAC are critical to moving forward. Let us hope the INBAC Wall project serves to initiate many interesting conversations and innovations.

Joseph Martin CIO, Hiranandani Group

The ecosystem of building automation stakeholders is incomplete without the (end users) developers, so I believe INBAC is the right forum for me to be in!.

Hrishikesh Manjrekar Executive Director, Amar Builders

Nowadays building occupants and clients are well travelled and aware about the latest trends in building automation. This awareness of clients motivate the builder community to make their building more technology efficient and sustainable.
