Friends in High and Low Places

Many years later, a boy named Joseph was forced to leave his family and travel to another country all by himself. Thankfully, he was great at helping others, and soon made new friends. He made friends in jail and later on, even became friends with the king and helped him, too.

Working Friends

When God told Noah to build an ark, Noah asked his three sons to help. They worked together for many years and became good friends. Once the ark was finished, they boarded the boat with the animals, ready to care for them as their journey began.
