Mapping Mosques of Malaysia
and Their Tales

“And [mention] when We made the House a place of return for the people and [a place of] security. And take, [O believers], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer.”

ECHOES FROM THE DOMES

Mapping Mosques of Malaysia and Their Tales

The mosques of Malaysia have stood as enduring symbols of identity, unity and community life for centuries. They reflect the history and cultural heritage of Malaysia dating back to the 13th century with the Terengganu Inscription Stone (Batu Bersurat), blossoming through Melaka's rise as a centre for learning and culture in the 15th century, and by the 17th century shaping much of the nation's traditions and architecture.

Drawing from this rich past, Malaysia's mosques beautifully showcase a layered history, blending local Malay craftsmanship with Chinese, Indian, Middle Eastern, Moorish and even Ottoman architectural influences. Each mosque stands as a testament to the cultural connections strengthened through centuries of trade, shared ideas and communal life.

Today, visitors can explore this fascinating blend of history and artistry firsthand. From ancient heritage sites to sleek modern masterpieces, Malaysia's mosques invite you to discover not only their spiritual essence but also their stories etched into intricate designs, calligraphy and structural elegance. Many mosques offer guided tours, educational programmes and cultural activities, welcoming visitors to familiarise with the traditions of the local community.

Beyond their religious role, mosques often serve as vibrant community centres, hosting social services, charity events and cultural festivals that highlight the warmth and hospitality of Malaysian society.

Embark on an enriching journey through Malaysia's Mosque Tourism—where every dome echoes a story, every design reveals a heritage and every visit connects you with centuries-long tradition.

Masjid Al-Ghufran

Masjid Al-Ghufran was registered as Surau Balai Islam under supervision of the Federal Territory Islamic Religious Department (JAWI) on 6th April 1993. It was initially used for the local Islamic community meeting centre as well as the centre for religious classes besides acting as a prayer hall for congregation members around the Taman Tun Dr. Ismail. In line with the rapidly growing development, Surau Balai Islam was upgraded to mosque on 4th April 2000. The mosque is named Masjid Al-Ghufran in conjunction with the name given by Datuk Mohd Hashim B. Yahaya, the Federal Territory Mufti at that time which means 'Forgiveness'.

Masjid Wilayah Persekutuan

Masjid Wilayah's construction began in 1996 and was completed in 2000, symbolising a new era for Malaysia. Initiated by Prime Minister Tun Dr Mahathir Mohamad, it is located near central Kuala Lumpur, close to the MATRADE building and Tuanku Abdul Halim Road. Officially opened in 2005 by the Yang di-Pertuan Agong, Tuanku Syed Sirajudin, its design was inspired by Istanbul's Blue Mosque. It features 22 lightweight domes made of glass fibre and epoxy resin. Positioned on a hill, the mosque includes a hypostyle layout, moat, cascading waterfalls, and mosaic floors that reflect light, creating the illusion of floating on water.

Masjid Terapung Tanjung Bungah

The Northeast District Mosque, also known as the Tanjung Bungah Floating Mosque, was built in 2003 to replace the old Masjid Jamek Tanjung Bungah. It cost RM15 million to build and spans 1,295 square metres, meeting the needs of the growing local population, especially with the nearby relocation of tsunami victims. The mosque can accommodate up to 1,500 worshippers at a time. It was officially opened by former Prime Minister Tun Abdullah Ahmad Badawi on 16 March 2007. On 10 December 2021, it was declared the Northeast District Mosque (Floating Mosque) by the Governor of Penang, Tun Ahmad Fuzi Abdul Razak. The mosque remained strong and undamaged during the tsunami that hit northern Peninsular Malaysia on 26 December 2004, even as many nearby houses were destroyed. It also acted as a natural barrier, helping to reduce the impact of the waves on the nearby village of Kampung Masjid.

Masjid Al Azim (Melaka State Mosque)

Masjid Al Azim, Malacca's State Mosque in Melaka Tengah, was built between 1984 and 1990 and officiated by Sultan Azlan Shah in July 1990. Its architecture blends Sino-Eclectic revivalism with Chinese influences, featuring a unique three-layered pyramidal roof topped by a small yellow dome. The roof ridges have sculptural designs resembling hand gestures symbolising Islamic prayers. The 57-metre pentagonal minaret represents Islam's five pillars. The square floor plan, inspired by the Prophet's Mosque in Madinah, includes six smaller blocks. The ground floor holds 9,700 worshippers; the first floor, for women, 700, with extra space for 1,300 more.

Masjid Kampung Hulu

Built in 1728, this mosque blends Javanese and Chinese architecture, reflecting its founder—a Kapitan of Chinese-Javanese descent from Sumatra. It features three-tiered roofs symbolising the three key aspects of Islamic spiritual knowledge: Shariah (law), Tariqah (spiritual path), and Ma'rifah (inner knowledge of God). The design also showcases advanced scientific knowledge of the era, with a ventilation system that provides natural airflow to keep worshippers cool without fans. This mosque stands as a lasting tribute to the wisdom and creativity of early Islamic scholars and builders.

Masjid Tengkerah

Masjid Tengkerah, also known as the Old Tengkerah Mosque, is one of Melaka's oldest and most historic mosques, built in 1728 during the Johor-Riau-Lingga Sultanate era. Located on Jalan Tengkerah, it reflects the enduring Islamic influence among the Malay community despite foreign colonisation. Architecturally, it uniquely blends Malay, Javanese, Chinese, and Indian styles, symbolising cultural and religious harmony. The mosque is also the burial site of Sultan Hussin Shah, the last ruler of the Johor-Riau Sultanate. Over time, it has served as a place of worship, Islamic learning, and a social centre. Today, it is recognised as a national heritage site and remains an important landmark and symbol of Melaka's Islamic heritage.

Masjid Kampung Laut

Masjid Kampung Laut was built around the 18th century, believed to be by Islamic missionaries who travelled through the area for religious outreach. It is said that a group of preachers from Champa were responsible for its construction, bringing with them a mosque prototype design.

The uniqueness of Masjid Kampung Laut lies in its traditional building method. It was built without using any nails. Instead, every part of the structure is joined using wooden pegs and slots. This not only highlights the brilliance of traditional craftsmanship but also proves the strength of the structure, which has stood for centuries.

This mosque was built on 5 acres of reclaimed land in Teluk Ibai, Kuala Terengganu. It was inspired by the late Sultan Mahmud Al-Muktafi Billah Shah, who also named the mosque in honour of his late mother and personally contributed to its construction. Work began in September 1991 and was completed in mid-January 1994. The mosque was designed by Dato' Raja Kamarul Bahrin Shah Raja Ahmad and managed by the Public Works Department, with a total construction cost of RM6.997 million. Covering 1,372 square metres, the mosque features a 30-metre-high minaret and spans two floors. The main prayer areas for men and women are located on the ground floor, while a designated space for travelling worshippers is available on the upper level.

Masjid Bandaraya Kota Kinabalu

The Kota Kinabalu City Mosque, located along Likas Bay, is a major landmark known as the “floating mosque” due to its stunning reflection on the surrounding lagoon. Completed in 2000, it features Middle Eastern-inspired architecture with a blue-checked dome, four minarets, and a spacious prayer hall filled with natural light. Modeled after Masjid Al-Nabawi in Madinah, it serves as a key place of worship for residents and students in the area, and stands as the second most important mosque in Sabah.

Masjid Al-Qadim

Masjid Al-Qadim in Sibu, Sarawak, built between the 1830s and 1860s by the Malay and Melanau Muslim communities, is one of the oldest mosques in the state. Its design resembles the Great Mosque of Demak, featuring the 'Tiang Empat' (Four Pillars) and a tiered limas-style roof. The teak wood main entrance is intricately carved to resemble the Prophet's Mosque door in Madinah. Constructed mainly from durable belian wood, the mosque is decorated with traditional motifs. Restored twice at a cost of RM2.2 million, it remains a vital place of worship and a symbol of Sibu's Islamic architectural heritage.
