Livingly is a Danish design company renowned for its handcrafted paper mobiles and hanging sculptures that blend traditional craftsmanship with contemporary aesthetics. Founded in 2008 by architect Louise Helmersen and project manager Kent Sejdelin, Livingly builds upon the legacy of Danish artists Anni and Bent Knudsen, who began creating paper designs in 1952. Each piece is meticulously crafted by skilled homeworkers in Funen, Denmark, using sustainable materials such as FSC-certified paper and wood sourced from European suppliers. Livingly's creations, ranging from poetic mobiles to festive ornaments, aim to bring visual pleasure and a sense of calm to various spaces, including homes, hotels, and public venues. Their commitment to sustainability and social responsibility is evident in their production methods and collaborations with esteemed institutions like Dior, John Lewis, and the Hôtel de Crillon.
