A BABAK BEIGI FILM

19m 18s - Iran - Animation - Format: 1.85 - Sound: Digital 5.1

Synopsis

In the shadow of a dystopian landscape, a truck driver finds himself trapped in a grim and harrowing existence—his job is to transport condemned souls to their final reckoning before the firing squad. At first, he grapples with a growing sense of dread, choosing to shield himself from the horrific reality by numbing his senses to the ghastly scenes and chilling sounds that surround him. But as fate would have it, one ominous night changes everything, compelling him to face the horrifying truth of the executions he has tried so desperately to ignore.

Director's Biography

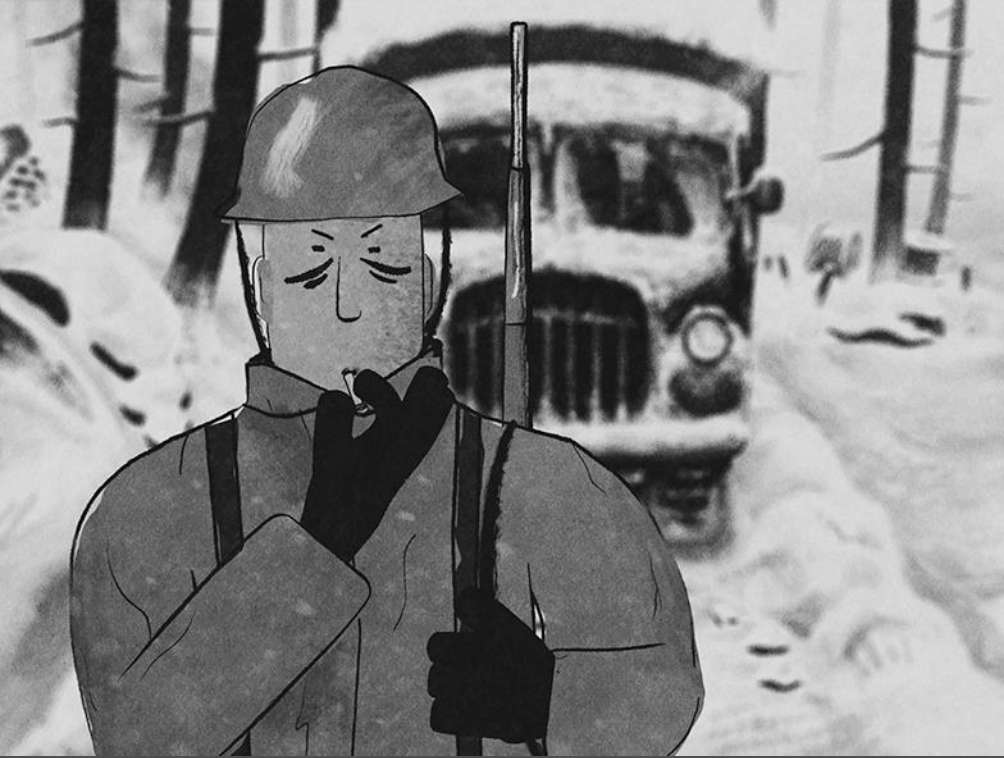

Born on July 26, 1992, in Tehran, Iran, Babak Haji Agha Beigi, known artistically as Babak Beigi, is an emerging animator and filmmaker whose work is steadily gaining recognition. With a Bachelor of Arts in Cinema from Soore Art University in Tehran, Babak has already created six short films, showcasing his growing talent and distinctive voice in the industry.

Though he is not yet a household name, Babak's films have been featured in the "Official Selection" sections of several prestigious national and international film festivals. This early recognition hints at a promising future, where his unique storytelling and artistic vision are likely to attract a wider audience.

Babak Beigi draws deep inspiration from cinema, literature, and the visual arts, crafting narratives that explore complex human emotions and relationships. Despite the intricacy of these themes, he has a knack for presenting them in a way that is both accessible and engaging to viewers.

While Babak may still be on the path to fame, the quality of his work suggests that we will be hearing much more from him in the years to come. His films are a testament to his potential, and his name is one to watch as he continues to evolve as an artist and filmmaker.
