The next Winchelsea Market is on Sunday, March 3. Come along and see a great range of stalls and meet DINO THE WOODTURNER

I have had a stall at Winchelsea Market, (held on 1st Sunday all year) since November 2022. My wife Tina assists me. All items sold on my stall have been personally and lovingly made by me.

I have been woodturning for 36 years and operate from my workshop in Barongarook on the edge of the Otway Ranges. The vast majority of my work is made from storm-felled trees, branches, re-claimed and other sustainably obtained Australian timbers. I do my best to include natural features such as knots, voids, cracks, bark inclusions etc as these impart great character.

I regularly attend 'Turnfest' at Seaworld Resort in Queensland to advance my knowledge from some of the world's best woodturners, and keep abreast of my hobby with woodturning magazines etc.

I craft a huge range of products, mostly utilitarian items. Wooden bowls are great for serving foods such as nuts, crisps, popcorn, fruit, salads etc. or purely as a decorative piece. All my items have a non-toxic food safe finish.

Caring for your wooden bowl or other turned wooden item. You can wash your item with water and dishwashing liquid (but do not soak) then rinse it and wipe it dry. When dry, I recommend wiping it with grape seed oil (readily available from supermarkets), using paper towel. Grapeseed oil doesn't go rancid as do some other oils.

Don'ts. Don't—soak your bowl in water, put it in the dishwasher, microwave it, or allow fruit to decay in it. Treated properly your wooden item will last for many years.

I am regularly approached at the market to make specific items for people and have so far managed to satisfy their requests.

You can contact me on 0429 874984

Two valued Winchelsea community spaces are again open for use following revitalisation:

Gathering Space Shelter

The new Barwon River Gathering Space Shelter is open for use, including its free barbecue.

Picnic furniture will be installed in the shelter when available and landscaping work including the addition of an access ramp is planned to complete the gathering space.

The shelter brings to life community-led designs, replacing the former Mud Hut which was no longer safe.

We look forward to seeing community members and visitors making the most of the shelter and enjoying its riverside setting.

Common go-kart area

The former go-kart area at Winchelsea Common is revitalised and reopened, with new paths providing access to beautiful viewing areas.

These works finalise revitalisation of sections of the Common following its decade-long closure due to contamination from former gun club activities.

The paths network includes a 'loop' around one of the Common's magnificent river redgums, seating and signage.

A new drain crossover links to Gladman Street and will help alleviate localised flooding issues.

The former go-kart area contains contaminated soil from throughout the Common that is safely capped with non-contaminated soil.

Fencing continues to protect areas of sensitive vegetation but those areas can be viewed from closer than before.

The reserve was reopened for restricted public access in March 2022 following extensive clean-up work by the then Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning, and Council.

Local Council Electoral Structure Review

Surf Coast Shire

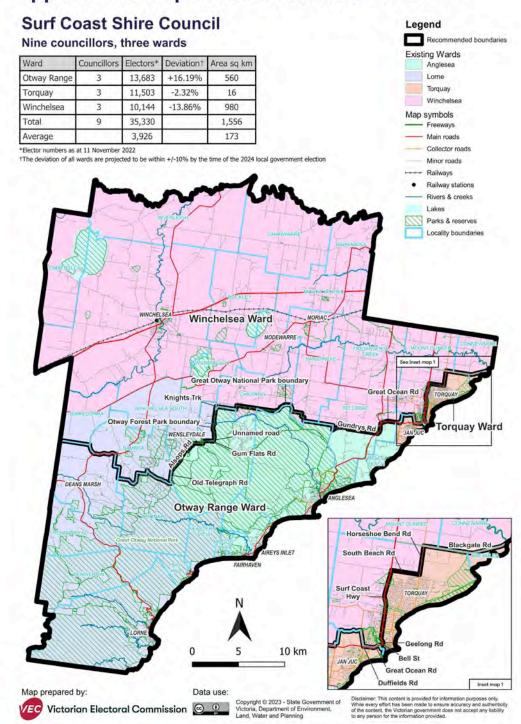

In 2023 the independent electoral structure review panel appointed by the Minister for Local Government completed the review of the appropriate number of councillors and the electoral structure for the Surf Coast Shire. The minister has released the report accepting a three ward structure, with each ward having three councillors for the Surf Coast Shire.

Below is Appendix One in the report, showing the ward boundaries and the current population in each ward. Following the appendix is a link for those residents who wish to read the complete report.

Within the Lorne Ward there were naturally diverse views. However, the majority view was that we did not wish to return to an unwarded structure. This has been accepted by the minister. My understanding is that there will be disappointment in both townships, in that Deans Marsh wished to be part of a hinterland ward and in Lorne we wished to have single wards with single representation.

The elector distribution contained in the table shows that the Otway Range Ward has the largest number of electors. This is wise as this allows for the predicted growth in both the Torquay and Winchelsea Wards.

No Through Road .. or .. This Way to the Lake

Sylvia Maseyk

"No Through Road" is a sign that appears to halt us in our tracks, but those who go beyond it may discover something interesting and beautiful where the road ends.

Lakes Modewarre and Murdeduke on the edges of Winchelsea are revealed down several roads bearing such signs.

Indigenous peoples once freely travelled to and around Lakes Modewarre and Murdeduke, and maintained the lakes, their shorelines, plants, fish, birds and animals. Now access for everyone is limited to the close shoreline along roads marked "No Through Road."

Three Winchelsea artists have been walking, talking and working together at the lakes over the past 8 months. Dr Jenny Murray-Jones, Dr Jane Bartier and Sylvia Maseyk received 2023-24 Artists & Creatives grant funding from Surf Coast Shire to expand their artistic perspectives and undertake deep conversations about land and place. All three live in Winchelsea, and in this project seek to draw out edges, memories, boundaries and perspectives in the exploration of site. Each artist acts to expand their practice from a chosen perspective to multiply into documented conversations with each other.

Everyone has different experiences of enjoying, exploring and learning about lakes and shorelines.

Dr Murray-Jones is a Yorta Yorta/ Baraparapa woman and a painter and weaver. Dr Bartier is an anglo woman and weaver, while Sylvia is a 2ndgeneration arrival in Australia who draws and sculpts. All have different cultural perspectives on place, land ownership, and what land, water and sky mean to each of us personally and culturally.

The collective has participated in wider community discussions and continues to seek contributions about what the lake means from interested people in the local community.

In December the trio were invited to speak at a symposium at Deakin University's Waterfront campus, auspiced by Platform Arts and Deakin, entitled WATER: A Field Trip Conversation, where attendees considered the intersection of art and science, the impact of water on various artistic disciplines, its wider implications on climate activism, First Nations sovereignty, ecology and research. Other speakers included Kiri Tawhai, Vicky Hallett, Elena Betros Lopez.

On 23 March 2024 at 2:00pm you are invited to meet the No Through Road collective on a visit to Lake Murdeduke where the three artists will speak about our work.

To get further information about the lake visit, or to tell us your story about the lakes, or any "No Through Road" experiences, please email watertalks23@gmail. com or follow us on Instagram @ nothroughroadcollective

Join digital literacy sessions

Surf Coast Shire

The Surf Coast Shire Council is working in partnership with the Torquay Library to provide free digital literacy sessions in February and March.

The sessions guide participants in the digital space including how to borrow eBooks and eAudiobooks, and access newspapers, and magazines online from the library.

Feedback during last year's Positive Ageing Month, and during consultations for the Council's Age Friendly Strategy, highlighted a need for more opportunities within our community to build skills in the digital space.

Cr Gary Allen said the sessions are a lot of fun and equip older participants with valuable skills. "Participants will learn how to access the library's live-streaming channel featuring lots of movies and documentaries." Cr Allen said.

"They are shown how to use the Busy Things app which has over 120 online learning games to play with their grandkids.

"This is part of the Council's commitment to age friendly communities and assisting people to age well in place. The sessions help anyone access the library's resources at any time.

"Sometimes physically getting to the library can be a bit of effort. Supporting people to master the online digital world, means benefiting from convenience that the provides."

Register for the following sessions run by Vicki Dunmore from the Torquay Library:

Victorian mosque Open Day to welcome thousands

Victoria State Government

More than 35 mosques and Islamic centres across the state will be opening their doors to the community as part of the annual Victorian Mosque Open Day.

Victorian Minister for Multicultural Affairs Ingrid Stitt is encouraging Victorians to visit their participating local mosque on Sunday 25 February to celebrate the diverse cultures and religions that make up Victoria.

The closest to Winchelsea is the Islamic Society of Geelong 45-47 Bostock Ave, Manifold Heights VIC 3218

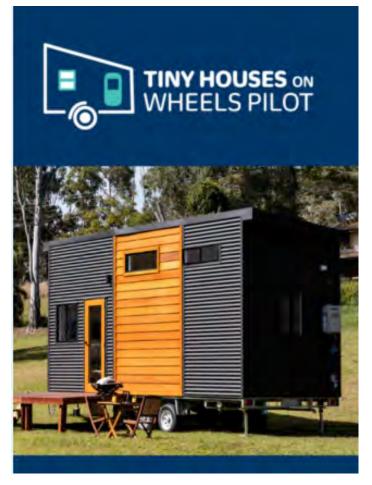

It is estimated that over 8.000 Victorians will attend statewide. Attendees can experience a range of activities throughout the day including information sessions on the Islamic faith, henna art, jumping castles and sausage sizzles.

Since launching in 2017, the Victorian Mosque Open Day continues to give more Victorians opportunities to learn about our Islamic communities. It celebrates our diverse communities and warmly welcomes everyone to share Islamic cultures and traditions.

Tiny House on Wheels Pilot -Affordable Accommodation for Workers?

Australian housing affordability is in crisis, affecting all parts of the country, in regional, rural and city locations.

In May 2021, Council declared a key worker accommodation crisis in recognition of how a lack of affordable accommodation was impacting the economy and sustainability of local communities.

In an effort to provide more affordable and sustainable accommodation options, the council began its Tiny House on Wheels Pilot.

This will allow the council to test the conditions under which Tiny Houses on Wheels are allowed and regulated, which according to the Australian Tiny House Association, "may also encourage other local government areas to follow the same pathway".

The pilot will be running until 13 December 2026, so if you would like more information or to download the the THOW's resources visit the Tiny House on Wheels Pilot page, or email tinyhouse@surfcoast.vic.gov.au. You can also speak to our Planning team directly by calling 5261 0600

You can write for the Star

We want the Star to inform, engage, inspire, and interest the residents of Winchelsea and surrounds. And we need your writings to get there.

The Star has no actual reporters or designated writers - we publish what you send us. If you have some news, an opinion, an interest or perspective, or a story - we'd love you to send it in for publication.

The Star loves to hear anything of direct interest to the Winchelsea community. The more local content we can put in, the better!

How much can I write?

You can write just one article. You can start a new column about something you're interested in. You can send us a series of articles on a theme. What would you write about?

Your article can spread over 1 or 2 pages (approx 850 words) or you can write longer pieces and split them across multiple editions.

Add a photo or two, an article title and author's name (preferably).

Can you publish my photos?

A picture is worth a thousand words - but context is very interesting too! If you have a photo you'd like in the Star, add a few words describing where, when, who, why and/or what.

Ask permission to use photos

When you send us a photo, you give us implied permission for reproduction.

You have liability when publishing an image, so be sure you own the image or have written approval to use it. It is easy for copyright owners to find stolen images online, where the Star can be found.

Legalities

Our Editors will not approve anything libellous (ie. when a false statement is published in written form and does harm to a victim). The Star is a community newspaper - 'for' and 'against' opinions on contentious topics are welcome, but attacking individuals or groups is not.

We look forward to hearing from you. Simply email editor@winchelseastar.org.au

Surf Coast Shire

Stribling Reserve Basketball Stadium

Closure due to mould

Surf Coast Shire Council has closed Lorne's Stribling Reserve basketball stadium due to mould underneath a section of floorboards.

Basketball stadium

- Mould treatment specialists were on site on Monday 12
 February sealing the stadium space and removing equipment.
 Both stadium and equipment will be treated to remove mould.
- Sports equipment has been stored temporarily in containers on-site. This equipment is available for use by the school.
- Specialists have found moisture under the floor and are considering treatment options.
- Factors contributing to the moisture might include tree litter blocking pipes and pits, and rain runoff from the site driveway.
 Inadequate ventilation is also a factor in mould growth.

Stribling Reserve Pavilion

Stribling Reserve Pavilion is not impacted and remains open to users.

Health advice

- We have liaised with the Barwon South West Public Health Unit in relation to potential health risks associated with mould exposure.
- Health authorities advise that most people are unlikely to be affected by exposure to mould.
- For some people exposure to mould spores can lead to temporary symptoms such as nasal congestion, sneezing, coughing, and wheezing. They can also increase the risk of respiratory infections.
- There is a higher risk for people with allergy to mould, or who have asthma or lung disease, chronic illnesses such as diabetes, or weakened immune systems.
- Any stadium users with respiratory or related concerns should consult a GP.
- Council is liaising with the Lorne P-12 College, members of the Stribling Reserve Community Asset Committee, and Stribling Reserve user groups.

More information

We will provide further updates as we work through the next steps. We will send another newsletter to users and update our webpage at surfcoast.vic.gov.au/StriblingStadium

Grants for your business in 2024

Each year there are hundreds of grants across local, state, and federal levels that are available to businesses.

To ensure that your business isn't missing out on programs that could help you grow, improve, and innovate, the Victorian Chamber of Commerce and Industry has released its list of Top Grants for 2024.

The Victorian Chamber has a Grant Finder tool available for members to help find and determine your eligibility for these programs.

Here you can find grants targeted across a number of sectors including Small Business, Digital Economies and Hospitality, as well as dedicated programs to support First Nations Businesses, promotion of Energy efficiency as well as those supporting Wellbeing and Mental Health initiatives.

Here are our tops picks:

- Self-Employment Assistance provides support to people interested in starting their own business or who need help to refocus an existing small business.
- Regional Hospitality Traineeship provides incentives to regional Victorian hospitality and tourism businesses to take on trainees.
- Small Business Technology Investment Boost allows small businesses to claim a 20 per cent bonus deduction on technology expenditure to help digitise their business.

To read the full list visit the Victorian Chamber website, and to find out more go to the dedicated about Programs and Grants page.

Scams impersonating the ATO up by 400%

The Australian Taxation office has announced that it will no longer include hyperlinks in any of its unsolicited SMS messages by Tax Time in 2024.

This is in response to the significant increase in SMS scams impersonating the ATO by cybercriminals, which increased by a whopping 400% in the 2022-23 financial year.

It was reported there were over 25,000 ATO impersonation scams that were reported, luckily those that paid money to a scammer only numbered 28, a 66% decrease.

To find out more and to stay up to date with how to identify a scam, and what are some of the best ways to protect your identity, visit the ATO's dedicated Identity security and scams page

Grants available to celebrate Young Victorians

The skills and achievements of Victoria's young people will be on show right across the state later this year at a month-long festival supported by the State Government.

Minister for Youth Natalie Suleyman today announced an investment of $220,000 to deliver up to 110 events across the state for and by young Victorians.

Grants of $2,000 are available for youth organisations, local government and schools to partner with Victorians aged 12 to 25 to create a wide variety of events for young people in their communities.

Youth Fest kicks off in September and this investment will support young people to organise and deliver events, showcase their skills, share ideas, build social connections, and expand their networks.

In 2023, the Youth Fest program delivered 111 activities focused on art, music, sport and theatre, as well as recreational and community festivals, giving young Victorians the chance to have their voices heard.

Previous grant recipients include the Victorian Afghan Students Association for an Afghanistan's Got Talent event that included an art exhibition, short story competition and singing contest.

In regional Victoria, Campaspe Cohuna Local Learning and Employment Network hosted the Kyabram Youth Expo, which included an art exhibition and music performances, along with stalls providing information on local health, welfare, sports organisations, and youth services.

Applications are open until 15 March. To apply and find out more visit youthfest.vic.gov.au.

Head start is helping more students earn their wings

More students will get the skills they need and walk straight into the jobs they want, thanks to the expansion of a State Government program allowing students to finish Year 12 while pursuing paid training.

Head Start is a nation-leading program that gives students who are eager to enter the workforce the opportunity to complete an apprenticeship or traineeship while finishing school.

Completed alongside a VCE, VCE Vocational Major or Victorian Pathways Certificate, the initiative offers students paid on-the-job training while providing employers with well-matched and highly motivated young workers.

Last year, 288 schools had at least one student start a school-based apprenticeship or traineeship, with the most popular choices being carpentry, hospitality and electrotechnology.

More than 3,300 students participated in Head Start in 2023, which carefully matched them with employers to deliver a successful and rewarding placement for everyone.

Head Start students get ongoing support from the Head Start team through Year 11 and 12, helping them to manage the demands of work, school and training.

Nearly 3,000 employers have hosted a Head Start schoolbased apprenticeship or traineeship. 96 per cent of participating employers with fewer than 20 employees say they would recommend the program.

The expansion of Head Start to all government secondary schools following the successful pilot is part of the Labor Government's $639 million investment in reforms to senior secondary pathways. To find out more about Head Start, including how to provide an employment opportunity, visit apprenticeships.vic.gov.au/head-start.

Washing machine rebates now available for residential customers

Barwon Water

Barwon Water's commitment to help more customers be water efficient and save money is expanding with the launch of a new WaterSmart Washing Machine Rebate program.

Managing Director Shaun Cumming said applications are open for rebates of $250 for eligible customers to upgrade their old washing machine to an efficient front-loader.

"The rebates are available to residential customers who have purchased a minimum 4.5-Star WELS and 4-Star energy rated front loading washing machine to upgrade their old machine on or after 1 December 2023."

He said Barwon Water was addressing the challenge of finding more water for a growing population and the impact of climate-dependant sources of water becoming less reliable in a hotter climate.

"Improved water efficiency has an important role to play in meeting this challenge, which is why we are looking to support our customers to improve water efficiency and preserve our precious resource."

Mr Cumming said on top of the rebates, upgrading to a more efficient washing machine meant customers could also be saving about 26 thousand litres of water and $62 off Barwon Water bills a year, and up to $107 annually in energy savings based on one warm water load a day, helping to ease cost of living pressures.

Mr Cumming said the rebates were an investment in water efficiency projects that would ultimately save residential customers' money and contribute to Barwon Water and its customers to achieve permanent water savings.

To be eligible, residential customers must have a property connected to mains drinking water charged a residential water charge, provide proof of purchase and have purchased and installed an eligible washing machine on or after 1 December 2023 and prior to applying for the rebate.

More information about the rebate application process and terms and conditions is available online at: www.barwonwater.vic.gov.au/water-and-waste/saving-water/watersmart-washing-machine-rebates

for Melbourne Airport and passengers

Victoria State Government

A case of measles has been reported in a returned overseas traveller who transited through Melbourne Airport while infectious.

The case transited through Melbourne Airport's T2 international terminal between Wed 14 February at 22:50 and 00:20 on Thurs 15 February. The case also went through the T1 domestic terminal on 15 Feb between 13:30 and 14:35 before travelling to South Australia.

Measles is a highly infectious viral illness that spreads easily among those who are not fully vaccinated.

Young children and adults with weakened immune systems are the most at risk of serious illness.

People who attended the exposure sites are urged to seek medical care if they develop symptoms, and to wear a mask and call ahead to ensure they can be isolated from others.

The illness usually begins with fever, runny nose, cough and conjunctivitis, followed by a rash. The characteristic maculopapular rash usually begins three to four days after the first symptoms, generally starting on the face and then spreading to the rest of the body.

"People who were at any of the exposure sites should monitor for symptoms and seek medical attention if they become unwell," Victoria's Chief Health Officer Clare Looker said.

Recent Victorian cases of measles have been identified in people who were not fully immunised against measles and who had travelled overseas or been in contact with returned overseas travellers.

Measles is rare in Australia because vaccination is effective in preventing the disease.

"People who are planning to travel overseas should ensure they have received appropriate vaccinations, including the measles-mumps-rubella (MMR) vaccine if they don't have a history of two previous MMR vaccinations," Dr Looker added.

The Climate Report

A net-zero world will be more peaceful, it's assumed but first we have to get there

Judy Cameron

The final text of the latest UN climate summit COP28, now called the UAE consensus, called for countries to "transition away from fossil fuels in energy systems, in a just, orderly and equitable manner, accelerating action in this critical decade, so as to achieve net zero by 2050 in keeping with the science".

Many felt that this "consensus" was more of a compromise, forced by the fossil fuel industry in the face of an ever more evident climate crisis.

Meteorologists have confirmed that 2023 was the hottest year on record and with the added influence of El Niño, the warm phase of a natural cycle in Earth's climate, 2024 could be humanity's first year in which warming exceeds 1.5°C above the pre-industrial average - the target of the 2015 Paris agreement.

Investment in green energy continues to accelerate in those countries that can afford it. By 2030, scientists say global emissions need to have fallen by 43%.

In six years, will we look back at 2024 as a key inflection point when the world did start to phase out fossil fuels? Or will it be seen as yet another opportunity missed?

A significant omission

In a recent study, the International Energy Agency (IEA) identified the triple challenges of "energy security, climate change and rising geopolitical risks".

It is unusual for the IEA, which began as an OECD institution to manage energy supply after the 1970s oil crisis, to highlight "geopolitics". Although it has warned of a "disorderly transition" before, its 250-page report on the world's energy outlook in late 2023 only mentioned geopolitics four times.

This is a wider problem within energy research. A recent analysis revealed that most pathways to net zero emissions do not consider what influence international relations will play. Those that do, see it as a malign influence that reduces cooperation and increases the costs of technology.

In 2019, the IEA's sister organisation, the International Renewable Energy Agency, published a report which argued that, in a low-carbon future, energy security would not be the challenge it is today because most countries will generate renewable power at home and be less reliant on exporter countries.

A world powered by renewable energy may not be as prone to international competition as ours. But the challenge is getting there from our fossil fuelled system, riven with insecurity and a tinderbox of geopolitical conflict.

Unless managed, the transformation of energy systems is unlikely to be just, orderly or equitable - and this will slow the rate of decarbonisation even as science indicates it must rapidly accelerate.

Managing the mess

It's useful to think about the transformation of an energy system in three phases. Phase one is the present system, phase three is where we want to end up. Phase two, the transition, is the hard bit.

In phase one, the world operates an energy system dominated by fossil fuels supplied by a relatively small number of exporter states that can manipulate fears over secure and affordable supplies in other countries.

In phase three, a net-zero world powered by low-carbon energy, fossil fuels play a marginal role if any and so will not influence international relations to the same extent.

The present energy crisis, with its record heating and electricity bills, is a crisis borne of a system powered by coal, oil and gas. For some, such as the EU, it is a clarion call to accelerate the transition and improve energy efficiency to reduce reliance on these fuels. For others, such as the Gulf States, the answer lies in pumping more oil and gas.

The world is entering phase two, the messy stage in which the world endeavours to phase out fossil fuels while building an energy system powered by solar, wind and other renewable sources in a fair and orderly way - but at a sufficient pace to rapidly decarbonise society.

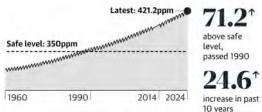

This low-carbon transition is also a source of competition. Access to critical materials for making electric vehicles and other green technologies, and control of these supply chains, is becoming a key issue, with a form of "green protectionsim" emerging in some countries. For many emerging economies, access to energy of any kind is the most pressing challenge.

While all of this is happening, the world must contend with the effects of climate change accelerating - bigger floods, fires and droughts.

Will self-interest win out, frustrating progress towards a netzero future? Or will we strengthen and make accountable multilateral institutions, recognising that there are no winners in a rapidly warming world?

Community Climate Resilience Forum to Empower and Prepare

Community Climate Resilience Forum Event
Thursday, 22 February
5.30-7.30pm
Common Ground Project,
675 Anglesea Rd, Freshwater Creek
Tickets: $10

Registration: https://www.geelongsustainability.org.au/product/community-climate-resilience-forum

In the face of escalating climate challenges, Geelong Sustainability is proud to partner with Common Ground Project and announce the Community Climate Resilience Forum taking place on Thursday 22 February from 5.30-7.30pm.

As an event partner of the National Sustainable Living Festival, this forum brings together a distinguished panel of experts to discuss and address the threat of climate-related disasters in our region.

The panel, which includes Wayne Aylmer, CFA Surf Coast Catchment Commander; Amy Tacey, Common Ground Project Food Hub Coordinator; Libby Skeels, Psychologist, Psychology for a Safe Climate, and facilitated by Karina Donkers, Project Coordinator from Geelong Sustainability, will delve into topics crucial for our community's wellbeing in the event of a climate disaster.

Participants can expect insightful discussions on the threat of climate disasters in our region, the role of the community in preparing for disasters, examples of community-led climate action, and practical ways to get involved both at home and within the community.

"Climate-related emergencies and the stress they impose on our community are on the rise. It's imperative that everyone feels empowered and prepared," says Dan Cowdell, CEO, Geelong Sustainability. "Strength during these uncertain times comes from community readiness, awareness and action. Our aim is to support our community in building their resilience and preparedness in the event of a climate disaster."

The event will provide a platform for attendees to hear from a diverse panel of professionals, each bringing unique perspectives and experiences in building climate resilience. These experts will share their knowledge and insights, offering valuable guidance on navigating the challenges posed by climate-related disasters.

The Community Climate Resilience Forum is not only an opportunity for education and awareness, but also a chance for attendees to connect and network with like-minded community members. Common Ground Project will enhance the experience with delicious finger-food prepared for the event. Geelong Sustainability encourages everyone to join this crucial forum to gain practical knowledge, connect with the community and contribute to building resilience against the impacts of climate change.

Celebrating their 25th year, the National Sustainability Festival aims to accelerate the uptake of sustainable living and address the global climate and biodiversity emergencies through their amazing lineup of speakers, advocates, artists and performers.

More choice of cars to save on fuel

Infrastructure, Transport, Regional Development and Local Government

The Federal Government is delivering more cars that are cheaper to run, giving motorists choice by introducing a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard for Australia.

The Government will consult on the preferred model for a month and introduce the legislation as soon as possible, with the new cost saving rules to come into effect by 1 January 2025.

The US has had a similar policy in place for fifty years. But because of a decade of delay and denial, Australia still stands alongside Russia as one of the only advanced economies without the Standard. This is costing families and businesses thousands of dollars at the petrol pump.

The New Vehicle Efficiency Standard will push car makers to give Australian motorists more choices of new cars, utes and vans that use less fuel and that have until now only been available to buyers in overseas markets.

The preferred model for the New Vehicle Efficiency Standard, available on cleanercars.gov.au, has been under development since the Government committed to the Standard last year - to ensure it strikes the right balance in giving more choice while using less petrol.

If Australia catches up with the Standard in the US. by 2028, Australians stand to save about $1000 per vehicle per year.

The Standard will only apply to new passenger and light commercial vehicles, not used or existing vehicles. They work by providing car companies with targets for average emissions per kilometer from new vehicles sold.

The New Vehicle Efficiency Standard will deliver more vehicles with the latest engine and design technologies to ensure lower fuel bills, meaning bigger savings at the petrol pump.

The Impact Analysis and ways to have your say are available at www.cleanercars.gov.au

New Vehicle Efficiency Standard

Frequently asked questions

A New Vehicle Efficiency Standard (or fuel efficiency standard), incentivises car companies to supply new cars that use less fuel per kilometer. Under the Standard, each vehicle manufacturer has a set average CO2 target for the vehicles they produce, which they must meet or beat. Over time, the CO2 target is lowered and in order to continue to meet or beat the target, companies must provide more choices of fuel-efficient, low or zero emissions vehicles.

When will Australia have a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard? An Australian New Vehicle Efficiency Standard is expected to come into effect from 1 January 2025, and will have Australia 'catch-up' to comparable markets, including the United States, by around 2028.

How much money will motorists save?

- New vehicles will use less fuel per kilometer. An average new vehicle purchaser in 2028 would save $5,710 over five years.
- Over the life of a vehicle, the policy will provide around $17,000 in savings per new vehicle.

The fuel saving potential is greatest for those living in regional Australia, where average driving distances are longer. For example, by 2028, the average driver in the Macedon Ranges, Victoria that uses a new car with lower emissions could save around $2,000 a year in fuel costs.

Will a NVES increase the price of cars?

No. There is no evidence to suggest that a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard will increase vehicle prices. In jurisdictions that have had a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard in place for some time (around 50 years in the case of the US and Canada), real-world evidence has not shown an increase in price for consumers in the cost of cars.

Will a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard impact my existing car? No. The New Vehicle Efficiency Standard only applies to new vehicles. Over time, new vehicles will filter into the second-hand market, improving the efficiency of Australian vehicles overall.

Will I still be able to buy a ute or 4WD that can tow my trailer and boat?

Yes. A New Vehicle Efficiency Standard allows suppliers to choose how they meet the emissions reduction target. In other countries with a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard, 4WDs and utes are still widely available. Even though the EU market has a stringent standard in place, vehicle models such as the Toyota Hilux and Landcruiser and Ford Rangers continue to be sold. The situation is similar in the US, where Ford Rangers, Toyota 4Runners, Tacomas and Tundra utes are available today. As technology improves, vehicles will continue to transition to more efficient, low or zero emission technology.

Will a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard ban vehicle models?

No. A New Vehicle Efficiency Standard would not ban any vehicle models. A New Vehicle Efficiency Standard is about giving Australians more choice of fuel-efficient, low and zero emission vehicles.

How will people in regional and remote areas benefit from a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard?

A New Vehicle Efficiency Standard will help deliver savings to those Australians who use more fuel. Typically, people living in regional Australia drive further than those in the metropolitan areas, and tend to buy more fuel as a result. Average new car buyers in regional and remote areas travel longer distances and will have fuel savings up to 20% higher than buyers in major cities.

New Vehicle Efficiency Standard

February 2024

What are we doing?

- Australia is one of the only advanced economies without a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard.
- Car makers send their most advanced and efficient cars to other countries because we have no standard in place.
- The Government has been consulting on what standard to put in place. We released a consultation paper in April 2023 setting out the different factors to be considered.
- The Government has now released an Impact Analysis.
 The Impact Analysis lays out three options. We are seeking feedback from the public on the options by early March.
- The Government's preferred option would see Australia catch up to the United States by around 2028.

The preferred option will deliver:

- Around 369 million tonnes of abatement by 2050.
- Around $108 billion in fuel savings to Australians by 2050:
 - An average new car buyer in 2028 will cut their annual fuel costs by around $1000.
 - EV drivers could also save around $350 per year in maintenance.
 - An average vehicle purchaser in 2028 will save $5,710 over 5 years.
 - Over the life of a vehicle, the preferred option will provide around $17,130 in savings.
- Around $5.5 billion in health savings by 2050.
- Improved Australian fuel security.

What is a New Vehicle Efficiency Standard?

A NVES is a regulatory obligation on car makers to supply vehicles that on average meet a certain CO₂ g/km emissions target. The target is reduced over time, which encourages suppliers to provide better vehicles.

- For each vehicle that a supplier imports that beats the target, the supplier earns credits.
- For each vehicle that a supplier imports that miss the target, the supplier gets debits.

Credits can be used to offset debits. Net credits can also be traded with other suppliers.

The Standard works as an average across a supplier's fleet. If they import too many polluting cars, they can offset this by importing more lower emissions cars or by trading credits. In time, left over debits turn into a penalty.

Key points:

- The Standard only applies to new, light vehicles (i.e. cars, SUVs, 4-wheel drives and utes).
- No vehicles are banned.
- The Standard sets two targets, one for passenger vehicles and SUVs, and a higher target for most utes and vans. Targets are also adjusted for specific vehicle weights to reduce the disadvantage that heavy vehicles have.
- A NVES is a supply side measure it encourages car makers to provide more fuel-efficient vehicles.

Next steps:

Following consultation, the Government will introduce legislation as soon as possible to put in place a Standard.

Providing shelter to help prevent heat stress in livestock

As an owner or manager of livestock it's crucial to protect your animals from harsh weather conditions.

Providing access to shelter can improve animal welfare by reducing the risk of heat stress and production losses as the animal doesn't have to actively use energy to lower its body temperature.

AgVic Animal Health Officer Flick Searle said behavioural signs of heat stress in livestock can include increased respiration rate, panting, increased salivation, listlessness, and lethargy.

'Heat stress can be treated by moving affected livestock into shade and providing clean, cool water. If after a period of time, after providing this treatment the animal doesn't improve contact a veterinarian immediately or humanely euthanise the animal,' Ms Searle said.

'In high temperatures, the accessible shelter needs to give protection from the sun, reducing solar radiation and also allow air movement. Good examples include trees with large canopies, shade cloth structures and sheds with open sides,' she said.

'Farmers need to keep in mind that some livestock have a higher need for shelter, such as very young, old or sick livestock as their ability to regulate their temperature is reduced. Therefore it's your responsibility to provide care accordingly.'

Ms Searle said when temperatures are high livestock can tend to crowd shelter areas so it's vital to have sufficient shelter for all livestock present. If the shelter is overcrowded, it can have the opposite effect and lead to livestock bunching up and transferring more heat to one another or even result in smothering.

'The most important things you can do for your animals in hot weather is to provide them with shade, water and rest during the hottest parts of the day.'

Anthrax detected at second property in Shepparton

Anthrax has been detected at second beef cattle property in the Shepparton region, following an initial detection at a neighbouring property last week.

One cow has died, while the remaining livestock are being vaccinated.

A total of ten beef cattle have died across the two properties. Agriculture Victoria veterinarians and animal health staff are working closely with livestock owners in the region to assist with surveillance and vaccinations if necessary.

Victoria's Chief Veterinary Officer Dr Graeme Cooke said the second detection was not unexpected in northern Victoria, particularly during summer, assisted by the long survival of the anthrax bacteria in soil.

'Local farmers, veterinarians and Agriculture Victoria are well prepared to handle these incidents, with quarantine and biosecurity arrangements in place and vaccinations underway for potentially exposed livestock.' Dr Cooke said.

Anthrax is not a concern for the public:

- Anthrax does not spread rapidly and is not contagious for humans
- There is no general public health risk associated with anthrax
- Any risk is confined to people who handle dead livestock such as farmers, veterinarians and knackery workers
- The Department of Health undertakes risk exposure assessments of individuals who have potentially been exposed and may offer treatment depending on the risk assessment.
- There is no impact on local produce or food safety.

Farmers are urged to report any cases of unexplained deaths to the 24-hour Emergency Animal Disease Hotline on 1800 675 888, to your local vet, or to Agriculture Victoria animal health staff on 136 186.

Blink and you'll miss it – eye cancer in cattle

Dr Jeff Cave, Agriculture Victoria Senior Veterinary Officer

When checking your cattle, it is good practice to be on the lookout for eye cancers.

An eye cancer is a tumour of the eyelid or eyeball and is seen most in white-faced cattle such as Herefords and occur because of lifelong exposure to sunlight.

Eye cancers begin as a tiny growth and steadily increase in size. Eventually, the growth may invade surrounding tissues and spread to other parts of the body.

Therefore, eye cancers may cause losses to producers due to condemnation at the abattoir and loss of potential production of affected stock, plus the suffering of cattle if left unchecked.

The severity of eye cancers can be reduced through the early identification of growths and prompt action to treat or cull.

The incidence of eye cancers can be reduced by genetic selection by selecting for animals with pigmentation in the sclera "white" of the eye and the eyelid.

When an eye cancer is detected the course of action that should be followed depends largely upon the size and severity of the cancer.

Small eye cancers may be readily cured by prompt veterinary treatment.

Owners who fail to take reasonable action to prevent suffering in their animals may be considered for prosecution under the Livestock Disease Control Act or the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act.

For further information please contact your local veterinarian or Agriculture Victoria veterinary or animal health officer.

Community buses for hire

If your community group would like to organise transport to your next activity or event, why not enquire about one of our community buses available for hire?

The service caters for Surf Coast Shire residents, community groups and not-for-profit organisations ranging from sports clubs, church groups, seniors groups and community based health services.

Four community buses come equipped with auto transmission and can transport 12 passengers, including the driver. The Bendigo Bank Community Bus at Winchelsea can transport up to 28 people, including the driver.

Buses will be supplied in a clean, roadworthy condition with a full tank of fuel and are required to be returned the same way.

For information on how to hire buses including fees and charges, please visit our website

PUBLIC ACCESS DEFIBRILLATORS IN WINCHELSEA

The Winchelsea Lions Club has compiled a list of public access defibrillators in Winchelsea. We are lucky to have more available in town, but these are specifically publicly accessible 24 hours a day. If anyone knows any others that have 24 hour public access, please let Linda Carter know on 0439 817 263.
