A guide to Ichiban kuji

What is 'Ichiban Kuji'?

Ichiban Kuji is Japanese for 'Number One Lottery'. It is a lottery system operated by Banpresto and sold throughout a huge variety of stores, arcades and locations across Japan. Players purchase tickets and attempt to win rare toys, figurines and collectables from a range of popular Japanese media franchises, such as Dragon Ball. New Kuji lines are launched regularly through the year.

How does it work?

Players purchase a ticket, peel it open to reveal a letter, and win the corresponding prize within that Kuji. Figurines and collectables are assigned higher letters, such as A-D, and are sought-after due to their limited quantity and higher quality. Lower letters offer less-prestigious items such as towels, cups and keychains. There is also the 'double chance' (DC) prize, which offers the player another chance to win online with their ticket, as well as the 'last one' (LO) prize, which provides a rare item to whoever buys the last ticket in the Kuji.

Is there any other way to purchase Kuji figures?

Kuji figurines are often re-sold through third-party and second-hand vendors. Due to the limited nature of the Kuji, both the rarity and cost can increase significantly over time. Some Kuji lines are later released for retail in the West as 'Ichibansho'.
