We celebrate the past to weave the future

At Mantara, we honor the heritage legacy of rugs. We follow the path marked by the artisans who made the path by walking, training experts in the preservation of cultural legacy, art and the commitment to preserve the DNA of our history. Our highly qualified artisans recover rugs using millimetric, precise and rigorous work. Their expert hands trace invisible seams, thread by thread rescuing the ancestral shine of these unique pieces, returning them to their original splendor.

Textile memory for a future with its own roots

More and more collectors trust Mantara to restore old pieces, saving them from deterioration. An interdisciplinary group of ethnographers, anthropologists, artisans and historians finds the keys to our history in each object, in each thread, in each plot. With love and precision, we return these textiles to their historical and cultural value. We restore part of history, our history, so that future generations can enjoy its beauty and legacy. At Mantara, we believe that textile memory is essential to build a future with its own roots. We invite you to join this immersive journey through the traces of the past.
