OUR
EVER ISSUE

It is hard to believe it was 30 years ago I started Bon Coeur at 24 years old from my kitchen in Battersea, London. Back then I couldn't have dreamt of the business we are today; what a journey it's been! And so, it gives me immense pleasure to welcome you to our 30th Anniversary edition, published both in print and an interactive online version, where you can discover more about the wines and the winemakers behind the labels we are all so fond of.

Preparing a new wine portfolio is a real labour of love. Andrew has been key to delivering this bumper edition; we hope you delve in and enjoy the journey, finding some familiar favourites and discovering some of our new wines and producers. We are particularly excited to offer a new selection of wines from Italy and Spain, as well as new Burgundian producers, that all over deliver. Australia is very much underestimated and I urge you to seek out the many new wines and producers, including Vickery from Clare and Eden Valley, John Vickery is widely regarded as the Godfather of Australian Riesling. We hope you also enjoy the Insider's Guides to Rioja and Bordeaux, a rare treat to share our black book, do let us know if you follow in our footsteps and discover more fabulous places to eat, sleep and drink wine!

I am extremely proud to be recognised as UK Wine Buyer of Year 2024, an accolade which I cannot celebrate without thanking our fabulous team, who have again gone above and beyond, ensuring we deliver the highest quality of service and a truly memorable wine experience for all our customers. Our online wine shop continues to develop. Customers can now sign up and take advantage of our VIP area, offering great deals 24/7 on recommended wines, as well as new listings; all waiting to be discovered.

On the wine education side, we have made huge progress, not only on our WSET training programme but our Wine Academy, which goes from strength to strength. A round of applause for our wine educator Rachel Love, whose passion and dedication continues to bang the drum; supporting our hospitality customers, it is without doubt a valuable business asset. Our first Wine Academy Tour takes place in September to southern England, an exciting opportunity for our customers to delve into English Sparkling. This is completely unique for a business of our size and I cannot express my delight in this endeavour and can't wait to hear all about it.

Whether you are a hospitality customer, private or corporate we aim to offer the very best in wine. Our independence, holding no agencies may not be the easiest route to market, however it allows us to remain agile and robust in these challenging markets. Our management team consisting of myself, Samantha and Jonathon is committed to delivering the next phase of the business. Embracing our many channels and working with the Boncoeur team, we are well positioned to take the business to the next level.

Finally, I remain ever grateful for your business and continued support. Many customers throughout the years have been so supportive and I cannot thank you all enough for your generous words of wisdom and help spreading the Boncoeur message. It always gives me great pleasure when customer calls to say how much they have enjoyed the wines, we are very fortunate to be part of your celebrations and wherever you are enjoying a glass of Boncoeur wine, I would simply like to say "thank you" and here's to the next 30 years!

SUSTAINABILITY COMMITMENT

We strongly believe environmental stewardship is important to help reduce the effects of climate change and we are pleased to work with wine producers who share in our passion, so we can continue to enjoy and share great wines for generations to come. Our Buying Team actively search for likeminded producers who make a conscious effort to have as little impact on the environment as possible in terms of production and distribution. We select partnerships that promote reduced intervention regarding viticulture, viniculture, and agriculture at their respective estates and we are champions of sustainable, organic, biodynamic and vegan wines. Lookout for the symbols throughout our portfolio to make a more informed purchase!

WINE INSIGHTS

WHAT'S HOT & WHAT'S NOT

Sustainability Producers are embracing sustainable practices to decrease carbon emissions, with many moving towards regenerative viticulture, organic and biodynamic wine making practices.

Regional Italy Italy has always been a most fascinating wine producing country, with the sheer number of native grapes and diversity of geographical locations. Check out Falanghina and Grillo, as well as Bardolino and Frappato. Viva Italia!

Re-emergence of South Africa South Africa is firmly back on the quality wine map, producing some of the best value wines in the Southern hemisphere. We have a number of new additions to our range from new wave producers focusing on quality and provenance.

No or Low Alcohol Wines The quality is continuing to improve and we have tried and tested a few of the best including Cielo Zero Sparkling, ALT sparkling wines (Chardonnay and Rose) and the Torres Natureo 0% Muscat and Syrah wines.

Connection from grape to glass We are witnessing an increased appreciation for the quality of the smaller producers and what they represent; their dedication and attention to their wines is meticulous and customers are driven by the stories behind the wines more than ever.

Home Grown Wines England can proudly claim to be a global contender on the Sparkling wine stage. The best vineyards are in the southern counties where the chalky, limestone-rich soils and the warming effect of the Gulf Stream help ripen the grapes and develop natural sugars and acidity.

HOT-HOT-HOT

Wines without provenance: Today sadly there are many mass-produced wines, which do not represent a particular area or demonstrate a sense of place. Consumers increasingly want to know exactly where, and how their wine is made, as well as understand the people behind the wine and their story.

Heavy weight bottles The single biggest source of carbon in the wine industry is manufacturing the glass bottle. Many producers are moving towards lighter weight bottles in order to reduce their carbon footprint.

High Alcohol Wines In a warming climate, higher temperatures mean more sugar in the grapes, resulting in higher ABV's and can be too much for some. In the UK, wines above 14.5% are also subject to a higher duty rate and so, consumers are fast losing appetite for these blockbuster wines.

Saving your best wines for special occasions Treat yourself, open that special bottle, no matter what the occasion or whether there is no particular occasion because a good bottle of wine can be enjoyed anytime. In the same way you shouldn't keep your best clothes for special occasions, wear them, enjoy them and get the most out of them.

Global Vineyard Global wine production is at a 60 year low with 237million hectare litres produced in 2023 (10% less than 2022). Contributing factors range from climate change and severe weather events to consumer drinking habits changing toward better quality and less quantity, as well as a move towards traditional agriculture which is lower yielding and more sustainable.

Champagne In the current geopolitical climate, the thirst for Champagne has fallen slightly in favour of other traditional method Sparkling Wines. Take a look at our fabulous selection of Crémant, Cava, Cap Classique, and English Sparkling!

LOSING GROUND

A LIFE IN THE DAY OF JAMES GOODHART

The alarm goes off at 6am and I head down for a quick coffee before taking our two black labradors, Merlot and Tinto for a good 45-minute walk at The Stang, our local forest – it’s a good time to clear my head, plan and prioritise the day.

We moved to our forever house five years ago. I love where we live, it’s on the edge of a moor in the middle of nowhere in particular, a few local farmers pass by; it’s the morning call of a curlew overhead that starts my day.

I really do love the outdoors and am passionate about the countryside and its conservation; I support the local branch of the GWCT and The Country Food Trust.

On my return I usually check my messages, currency exchange and markets. We hedge our own currency so need to have our finger on the pulse. Just after 7am I speak with our warehouse manager John to discuss any last-minute orders and get them added to the delivery run. It’s not always possible due to weight limits, run sheets and location of the vans, however we have a philosophy of trying to get orders out as soon as possible. Having a good team around you is key for a successful business and John plays a critical role making sure that all the vans are ready to go, when the drivers arrive at 8am.

We deliver wine throughout the UK and still go down to London in our own vans delivering before customers go to work. Good delivery and customer service has always been a big part of our mantra, with 30 years now under our belt, it remains a priority for us and many of our customers.

A quick 15-minute drive to work, which allows for a couple of calls in the car, perhaps to a European supplier checking on ready date on an Italian shipment or to check on fine wine releases on the Bordeaux Place. We import wine from all over the world and work with over fifteen different negociants in France, not only buying investment wines but also buying special, ready to drink parcels.

We moved the business and developed Moor Park nearly 10 years ago. This has been a real game changer for the business and our team. It’s a huge benefit to have our own retail and event space, as well as demo kitchen, we also have our own on-site bonded warehouse and private client fine wine storage. We ship around 85% of our wines direct from all around the world. Most days we have pallet deliveries and containers coming in from Europe and or ‘deep sea’. I surrendered my HGV licence a few years ago, however, I still drive a forklift, helping the warehouse when needed.

“Good delivery and customer service has always been a big part of our mantra, with 30 years now under our belt, it remains a priority for us and many of our customers.”

Recently, I was incredibly humbled to be awarded Best UK Wine Buyer 2024. It’s been a real journey, I am very fortunate to love my job, however, it’s the team around you that makes the magic happen. It would be remis of me not to mention Samantha, my wife, who as Managing Director of Bon Coeur, plays integral part in its success; juggling work, children, dogs and the journey has not always been easy, but she's always there, ready by my side to take the business to the next level.

For me, the wine bug really happened after school when I headed to Australia to join the wine-making team at Houghton winery, after that I did a few harvests in Bordeaux and Burgundy before kicking off my career with a wine merchant in London. When I look back, starting my business at the tender age of 24 was a huge leap of faith. I certainly have many people to thank for their tremendous support over the years, their loyalty and trust have been the cornerstone of our success story.

It's always a pleasure to welcome winemakers to Moor Park – about two/three times a week Andrew (my right-hand man) and myself will host tastings, meet new producers, try new wines, taste new vintages; it's all in a day's work.

An important role that isn't often highlighted is seamless supply; this is key for our 'on trade' customers, (restaurants, hotels and pubs) where we are committed to supply particular lines. The team manages this very well and we work in advance to negotiate stock supply and avoid any shortages. Being an independent merchant and not holding any agencies may not be the easiest route to market, however it gives us significant

“Friday night is steak night, the opportunity to have friends over and share a bottle of good wine... I am quite traditional in my taste, there are so many good wines to choose from I am spoilt for choice.”

advantages over our competitors. Not only do we have a free reign on the buying side, we have the flexibility to boycott poor vintages, buying enough stock forward to allow us to leapfrog a vintage.

Unless I have a working lunch with a hotelier, winemaker or private client, lunch is not an event and is grabbed at my desk. I will usually have a couple of internal meetings with marketing, finance or sales teams. I have always approached problems in a practical way “what's the best solution”. Challenges of running a business come from all angles, whether it's HMRC pulling containers at port, strikes, high temperatures and shortage of reefers (temperature controlled containers). The challenges are also at source with shortages of raw materials, increasing costs across the board as well as global warming ... let's just say, there is never a dull moment!

I am dyslexic which brings many challenges, working with numbers, writing, communicating... in today's fast world I still double check everything and am a slow reader, which can be frustrating. However, the upside is that I have a fantastic memory. I can remember what I sold a wine for 20 years ago, what it tasted like when I first tried it En Primeur and recall how it has developed over the years. I also never forget a face, nor pass up the opportunity to recall a good story.

The last few hours in the office are often kept for returning calls, selling wines and or a private client tasting for a wedding or private party. I really enjoy helping customers find wines, it gives me enormous pleasure for our wines to be part of a client's special day or to be simply enjoyed quietly at home.

I still find something comforting about the pull or pop of a cork; sharing a glass of wine and the stories of the day with Samantha whilst she cooks is time to unwind and relax. Friday night is steak night, the opportunity to have friends over and share a bottle of good wine... I am quite traditional in my taste, there are so many good wines to choose from I am spoilt for choice. Over time my palate has certainly changed. I now prefer my white Burgundy to be younger with more freshness and vibrancy, on the red side it's been a real wine journey, I like to try the wines at different stages. I am currently enjoying Domaine de Chevalier 2010, it's a touch young and broody, yet complex and enjoyable. In my fridge, old favourites like Cave Talmard Mâcon-Uchizy and Jean-Jacques Girard Savigny-Les-Beaune lie amongst our new range of wines from Italy and, of course, our family champagne Jacques Boncoeur.

When the children are home, family time together is very important. We are a sports mad household, whether it's playing hockey (with soft ball) in the living room or donkey in the kitchen. There's now a huge log basket in the games room, brimming full of different sports balls... only one window broken to date! My time off when I relax most is watching the children play sport, our best holiday is a skiing one and my happy sun place is Portugal... where we are always guaranteed some sun and fun BBQs with family and friends.

Unless I have a work deadline, when I can be up working until past midnight, I am an early to bed person. After checking my phone for the last time, I will perhaps continue to watch a box set or some sport on the tv before checking in with the news at 10pm. I sleep well.

FINE WINE SERVICES

IN BOND STORAGE

Whether you are keeping wine as an investment or laying it down to drink; the way you store is paramount. The most important factors are to keep the wine at a constant temperature, in dry conditions with good relative humidity making sure it is secure. We are delighted to offer our clients wine storage services both In Bond and Duty Paid.

Our dedicated bonded wine warehouse is the perfect solution to your wine storage needs. Located at Moor Park, our purpose built, state-of-the-art, temperature-controlled warehouse is essential for fine wine storage. To support this core service, we have invested in a dedicated team to deliver all your storage requirements with both a personal and proactive approach.

If you would like to relocate your holdings to Moor Park from another bonded warehouse, please contact us for information on moving/consolidating your wines, our storage charges and services offered.

“ I have been really impressed with the new fine wine storage facility at Moor Park it’s a real credit to you. I really enjoyed seeing my bonded wine in situ, it’s been a real help to consolidate my wine collection under one roof, thank you to the team for making the move go so smoothly and I look forward to collecting a few cases in person soon! ”

WINE BROKING

We have been broking wine on behalf of our customers for over twenty years, using traditional private client routes as well as, in recent years, the Liv-Ex Trading Platform and additional listings via online wine search platforms; ensuring maximum visibility for your wine.

Our broking service aims to personally hand sell your wines at the best possible price, using our expertise knowledge and multiple trading platforms.

Throughout the broking process, we provide regular updates regarding wines sold, activity within the market and any sensible bids on your wine. Our broking service is bespoke and tailor made to suit your requirements. We utilise the new routes to market whilst retaining our traditional private client services at the heart of everything we do.

Should you wish us to broker some of your wine or for further information, please contact the Private Client Team to arrange a wine portfolio consultation.

Fine Wine Reports

Stay informed with all latest news in the world of Fine Wine with our seasonal En Primeur reports and seasonal Fine Wine reports highlighting new releases and buying opportunities, key market trends, as well as market sentiment.

With over three decades of experience, let our expert advice and insight help you whether building an investment portfolio or buying some fantastic cases to lay down for future drinking. If you would like to receive our reports, please register your interest with the team.

Cellar Plan

Build A Cellar To Be Proud Of...

For over 30 years we have advised our clients on how to build and manage their wine cellars and portfolios. We would like to extend this service to you in an easy, affordable way.

Your Bespoke Plan – Your Wine, Your Way

We will help you build a cellar that you can be proud of. By setting aside an amount of money you are comfortable with each month, you can select the plan most suited to you. Whether it be for yourself, your business, your children, grandchildren, or a godchild; we can build a bespoke cellar, whether it be to drink now or in years to come, for investment, or a combination of both.

DRINKING CELLAR

With our advice you will start to build a cellar of wine for future drinking, recommend new wines that suit your taste and budget.

INVESTMENT CELLAR

Through our experience of the wine market, we will suggest wines that we consider would make a good investment. We can also help you to sell them when the time comes through our fine wine broking arm.

WORKING CELLAR

This is a combination of a drinking cellar and an investment cellar. For example, you buy 40% drinking wines and 60% investment wines – over time you will start to reap the rewards.

WHY JOIN OUR CELLAR PLAN?

- ✓ Dedicated Account Manager offering expert advice to get the most out of your Cellar Plan.

FRENCH COUNTRY

SHOP
NOW

French Country offers a diverse range of fabulous quality wines at a great price. Let the famous 'Mistral' wind guide you from the Ardèche down toward Provence, where vineyards nestled along the coast bask in glorious sunshine reaching optimum ripeness. Further southwest you will discover the Languedoc-Roussillon; a historical coastal area which extends through the Pyrénées mountain range all the way to French Catalonia on the Spanish border.

This area is highly influenced by the Mediterranean Sea, where the cool sea breezes help regulate temperatures in the vineyard. There is a wide variety of both soils and grape varietals, which when combined, make French Country a very exciting area to discover.

DOMAINE DE MONTMARIN – LANGUEDOC

Domaine de Montmarin is owned by Philippe de Bertier and located amongst the rolling hills that run down to the Mediterranean in southern France. The Domaine covers around 350 hectares of land with over 120 hectares of planted vines. Charismatic and charming, Phillippe makes exceptionally good and well-presented varietal Vin du Pays wines. We have a personal soft spot for Phillippe's wines, having featured in our wine portfolio for over 20 years, praise indeed! Stylistically their Rosé could easily be mistaken for a Provence Rosé, their fresh whites and approachable red wines outperform many Vin de Pays wines of a higher price, like a loyal, old dog, not to be underestimated.

LOUIS LATOUR - ARDÈCHE/VAR

It was back in the 1970s, when Louis Latour recognised the demand for high-quality, affordable wines. Successfully planting and cultivating vineyards beyond Burgundy's borders; today these vineyards are producing confident wines with signature styles. The Ardèche region offers the winemaker ideal conditions and soils for the cultivation of Chardonnay vines and further south in Var, high altitude vineyards were planted with Pinot Noir; to offer superb fresh wines, with great fruit character and personality. Consistently over delivers year after year.

RHÔNE VALLEY

Located in South-East France, the Rhône Valley stretches almost 150 miles from Vienne close to the Alps all the way to Nîmes in the south, near the Mediterranean Sea. Naturally, for a winemaking region of such size there are many climatic, geographical and geological differences from the steep-sloping, terraced hillsides of Cornas, Saint-Joseph, Hermitage and Crozes-Hermitage in the north to the flatter, pebble-dominated plains of Châteauneuf-du-Pape, Gigondas and Vacqueyras in the south.

From single varietal Syrah (a.k.a Shiraz) fine wines to a focus on specific blends made from Grenache, Cinsault, and Mourvèdre for reds as well as Viognier, Marsanne and Roussane for whites, we highly recommend re-visiting the Rhône Valley.

WHITE BURGUNDY

The heartland for White Burgundy lies in the Côte de Beaune, where interest has always been focused on the famous villages of Meursault, Chassagne-Montrachet, Puligny-Montrachet and Corton. In recent years as prices continue to rise, areas such as Saint-Aubin, Savigny-les-Beaune and Pernand-Vergelesses have improved both in status recognition and quality. Further south in the Mâconnais, Pouilly-Fuissé and Saint-Véran as well as Montagny in the Côte Chalonnaise, all offer great value for money and are definitely worth the detour to discover.

RED BURGUNDY

The emphasis for Red Burgundy is in the Côte de Nuits around the villages of Gevrey-Chambertin as well as Nuits-Saint-Georges and Corton. There is increasing popularity (and price) in both Chambolle-Musigny and Vosne-Romanée due to their charming and luscious nature. In addition, there is also heightened interest in the communes of Volnay, Pommard, Savigny-les-Beaune and Saint-Romain in the Côte de Beaune, which are becoming more attractive and fashionable. Don't overlook the Gamay based region of Beaujolais in the far south where villages such as Fleurie, Brouilly and Morgon seriously over-deliver in terms of value and quality.

SAUMAIZE-MICHELIN (POUILLY-FUISSÉ)

Saumaize-Michelin was created in 1977, when Roger Saumaize received 4-hectares of vines in Vergisson (the heart of the Pouilly-Fuissé appellation). A year later in 1978, he fully took over his father's estate. Over the subsequent decades along with his wife Christine (whose maiden surname is Michelin, hence the winery name), they have naturally increased vineyard holdings throughout Mâcon, Saint-Véran, and Pouilly-Fuissé to its current holding of 9.5-hectares. The estate has been producing wines according to biodynamic principles since 2005, and as a result, the old vines (40 to 45-years-old) are naturally low-yielding and disease-resistant, resulting in wines with increased complexity.

Wine critics and writers such as Neal Martin (Vinous), William Kelley (Wine Advocate), and Allen Meadows (Burghound) confidently place Saumaize-Michelin alongside iconic Pouilly-Fuissé producers such as Jean-Marie Guffens-Heynen and Daniel Barraud. We have been loyal supporters of Saumaize-Michelin for several years; however, we were simply blown away by the quality of the 2022s when tasted at the Domaine with Roger; it is the best vintage yet.

CÔTE CHALONNAISE

Located to the south of the Côte de Beaune, the Côte Chalonnaise lies in between the towns of Chagny and Saint-Vallerin. A region that is often overlooked and under-appreciated by many, despite offering crisp crémant sparkling, clean whites as well as smooth reds for early drinking from the villages of Rully, Montagny, Givry and Mercurey.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Roger Saumaize SAUMAIZE-MICHELIN

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Always producing wine.

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

How plants can be so resilient, and that I keep learning every day.

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards...

Both vineyards and winery are in the small and beautiful village of Vergisson, down in southern Burgundy. There, I work with my wife alongside my daughter and son to maintain the vineyard and produce the result of what the vines can give us.

What is your winemaking philosophy?

We try our best to respect the plant and the vineyard to produce our wines. We work the vineyards biodynamically; it has been a few years since we've been working that way, and the plant itself has become more resistant and is able to produce amazing grapes. We keep to a minimum (aside from green harvesting) the work we do in the vineyard, and everything is done by hand. If we take care of the vineyard, the vineyard takes care of us and gives back.

What is one of your favourite varietals to work with, and why?

Chardonnay is such an amazing grape; malleable and though probably the most studied, yet it doesn't stop it from being surprising year after year. After all my decades of working in the vineyard and vinifying the wines, each year I learn something new about Chardonnay. Millions of years ago the area of Vergisson was covered by the sea, and I think Chardonnay captures that element of salinity in its tasting note very precisely. It's capable of translating its origins very well.

How do you know when you have a particularly good vintage on your hands?

I think it really depends on what you expect, and more importantly, taste. I don't think there are bad vintages; we merely produce what the vine gives us that season. I think, when the weather in May is good though not too warm, so flowering can develop, followed by a bit of rain here and there, and not too warm a summer (without hail and frost) can make for a beautiful vintage. Again, it's more down to taste than anything else in my view!

If you had to recommend just one of your wines to a customer, which would it be, and why?

Pouilly-Fuissé 'Pentacrine' as it's affordable, yet quite a complete wine and a good introduction to what we produce from our vines. This is a selection of different plots from around our estate; some from deeper soils, some from iron rich soils, and others from chalk soils. All in all, a balanced cuvée.

Can you explain the importance of organic and biodynamic viticulture?

For sure, we have been working the vines organically and biodynamically for a long time now, everyone needs to do their part. We use no chemicals, promote biodiversity, and harvest everything by hand.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

We have adapted our work in the vineyards including the introduction of green harvest, however, more importantly climate change has made choosing picking dates more crucial. Given it is all done by hand, we start harvesting very early in the morning – at 5am with headlights as we have only two pressing machines, so we have to pick early as well at a cool temperature otherwise the grapes can reach above 30°C, which extracts unwanted flavours and we don't want that.

What are your thoughts on the Premier Cru status introduction for Pouilly-Fuissé?

I think maybe the association hasn't properly looked at why it should be Premier Cru or not in some instances as to my mind, some parcels have clearly the best soils and ability to produce a superb wine. All together though, it is good to differentiate and make it easier for customers to see differentiation.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

Cassis in Mâcon. It's a great restaurant for foodie's where authenticity and provenance are key in their dishes; some are traditional, some are more creative.

Name you desert island dish and paired wine...

Lobster with Bâtard-Montrachet or Le Montrachet!

CÔTE DE BEAUNE

Famous for Meursault, Puligny-Montrachet and Chassagne-Montrachet as well as all the white Grand Cru vineyards of Le Montrachet and Corton Charlemagne but more importantly some of what we are describing as the 'Petits Villages' of Pernand-Vergelesses, Savigny-lès-Beaune, Saint-Romain, Saint-Aubin and Santenay to name a few. With the increasing demand for Fine Wine, these special relationships formed over many years are how we are able to offer our customers Burgundian hidden gems from the region. Corton is the only Grand Cru for the red, however, some believe that Pommard and Volnay should have some Grand Cru.

GÉRARD THOMAS (SAINT-AUBIN)

Gérard has been in control of the Domaine since 1982, and is now helped by the next generation and his two daughters; Isabelle and Anne-Sophie. He is without doubt one of the finest Saint-Aubin producers, where his Premier Cru 'Les Murgers des Dents de Chien' can easily rival the greatest wines from Meursault, Puligny as well as Chassagne-Montrachet. We actually believe that Gérard may be the best source of Côte de Beaune in the whole appellation.

CLAUDIE JOBARD (RULLY)

Claudie Jobard boasts a proud viticultural and vinicultural heritage as her mother, Laurence, was the head winemaker at Joseph Drouhin for many years, and her father, Roger, founded one of the region's top vine nurseries. Roger developed the family Domaine in the 1970s through buying and planting land in Rully, which has now come to fruition as most of the vines are over 40 years-old and are producing some excellent wines. Claudie took charge of the estate in 2002, after graduating from her oenology degree, and changed the direction of the Domaine by stopping selling to négociants, and instead started a new venture by bottling wines under her own name.

CAPUANO-FERRERI (SANTENAY)

Domaine Capuano-Ferreri is a fine 8-hectare estate with extensive holdings in both Santenay as well as Chassagne-Montrachet. The estate is run by John Capuano who increases production, when possible (to 12 hectares), with the purchasing of grapes via long-term contracts with trusted growers. The wines are all vinified in barrels at the magnificent cellars in the centre of Santenay and, until very recently, over two thirds of the production was sold purely in France. We are therefore delighted to include Domaine Capuano-Ferreri to our portfolio.

JOSEPH PASCAL (PULIGNY-MONTRACHET)

A true family affair as the Domaine started in the 1950s when Jean Pascal (who worked at Domaine Leflaive at the time) started buying up parcels of land with his wife Céline. Later in 1970s, their son Jean-Luc joined them and formed Domaine Jean Pascal et Fils, followed by their son, Jean-Luc, and his wife Alexandra in the early 2000s. Fast-forward to today and the Pascal estate is now named after the next generation: Joseph Pascal. Their 15-hectares of vines makes them one of the larger properties in Puligny-Montrachet, however, there is no compromise on quality with the crop now being vinified and bottled at the Domaine.

CHÂTEAU DE LABORDE (GEVREY-CHAMBERTIN)

Founded in 1119, the Chateau de Laborde boasts a long and rich history, however, it never hit its stride until it was purchased by Hervé Kerlann in 1998, who invested heavily in both winery and vineyards and in 2000 planted the first vines at the estate once again connecting it to its viticultural past. The estate now comprises of 4 hectares, with grapes purchased via long-term contracts from a further 5 hectares of select vines, which Herve vinifies, ages and bottles himself at the Château. He defines his winemaking as using the best resources available to him, producing wines that give pleasure first and foremost.

BURGUNDY

BEAUJOLAIS

Beaujolais lies to the south of Burgundy, covering 20,000+ hectares of vines between Mâcon and Lyon. It is predominantly planted with Gamay producing red wines from fresh, fruity and vibrant Beaujolais and Beaujolais villages, to more concentrated and complex wines from the Cru vineyards of Brouilly, Saint-Amour, Fleurie and Morgon.

MORE

STÉPHANE AVIRON

The philosophy of Stéphane Aviron is to balance the richness of Beaujolais terroirs with the barrel ageing tradition, to obtain concentration, elegance and deepness for each wine according to the different types of terroir. The wines speak for themselves, offering much more depth and structure than normally associated with Beaujolais.

BORDEAUX

Thanks to its maritime climate, temperate winters and long, warm summers, Bordeaux is capable of producing some of the greatest wines and has often been referred to as the centre of the Fine Wine world. There is a wealth of diversity in terroir over the 120,000 hectares of vines divided by the Garonne and Dordogne rivers, where production is predominantly suited to red. Nevertheless, there are also fantastic whites from Entre-deux-Mers, as well as excellent sweet wines from Sauternes and Barsac that are both well worth discovering.

On the 'Right Bank' most of the wines are Merlot dominated in areas such as Saint-Émilion and Pomerol, who steal the headlines for their ripeness and approachability. However, appellations such as Sainte-Radegonde, Côte de Castillon, and Lalande-de-Pomerol can overdeliver in terms of quality and price.

On the 'Left Bank' wines are mainly Cabernet Sauvignon dominated blends with the addition of Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot. The communes of Saint-Estèphe, Pauillac, Saint-Julien, Margaux as well as Pessac-Léognan take centre stage though don't overlook Cru Bourgeois and Petits Chateaux properties, as they are sources of some of the best value Clarets.

Croix de Labrie is one of the leading estates in Saint-Émilion with dynamic duo, Axelle and Pierre Courdurié. It's a trade secret that they also grow Chardonnay on their small plot of land at the top of the plateau and as Chardonnay is not a permitted grape variety in Bordeaux, so this must be designated as a "Vin de France". A superb wine (named after their daughter Camille), which is rich and rounded, yet with bright acidity fusing with a core of exotic fruit and integrated oak. Well worth a try!

AN INSIDER'S GUIDE TO BORDEAUX

Referred to as la perle d'Aquitaine (the pearl of Aquitaine), Bordeaux is the sixth biggest city in France and situated in the southwest of the country. Straddled to the left bank of the River Garonne around 60km inland from the Atlantic Ocean, Bordeaux's history has, of course, been dominated by the wine industry and is quite rightly known as the centre of the Fine Wine world. Over many years of travelling to both the city and region for En Primeur (tasting the previous years' vintage direct from the barrel), the Bon Coeur Wine Buying team have built up a little black book of the hottest addresses and need-to-know establishments so that when you visit, you can feel like a real Bordelais. Allez hop, c'est parti!

No trip to Bordeaux would be complete without visiting some of the world-famous Châteaux and vineyards... and believe us there are plenty to choose from! The best way to explore is by car (designated driver required) heading north on the D210 into the Médoc until you reach your favourite appellation: Margaux, St. Julien, Pauillac, or St. Estèphe... it's a wine lovers paradise and you'll be certainly spoilt for choice. Alternatively, cross the imposing Pont d'Aquitaine and make haste eastwards towards St. Émilion on the E70, taking in all the charm of the cobbled streets and beautiful views of this unique world heritage site. Nowadays many Châteaux are open to the public for tours and tastings, and there are even some who have restaurants on site (or nearby), such as Châteaux Lynch-Bages with Café Lavinal (Passage du Desquet, 33250 Pauillac), La Dominique with La Terrasse Rouge (1 La Dominique, 33330 Saint-Émilion), or Guiraud with La Chapelle (1 Château Guiraud, 33210 Sauternes), which are all well worth discovering and will elevate your visit to the next level.

Nevertheless, for those who don't want to rent a car, or simply want to stay closer to the town centre, Château Les Carmes Haut Brion (20 Rue des Carmes, 33000 Pessac-Léognan) is one of Bordeaux's rising stars and with an impressive new winery to boot that can be reached by TBM tram Line B – direction Pessac Centre. Otherwise, why not revel in the wonderful world of wine at La Cité du Vin (34 Quai de Bacalan, 33300). Whether a novice or connoisseur, the fully immersive, interactive, and sensory exhibition is the ideal activity for wine lovers of all levels... and even better, it concludes with a glass of wine at their rooftop bar with the finest panoramic views of the city!

You are in the de facto wine capital of the world so if you're looking for the best wine bar, our first port of call is always Aux Quatre Coins du Vin (8 rue de la Devise, 33000) with over 40 wines by the glass using their range of Enomatic machines... simply top up a card, choose your wine (and glass size), and go! For the real wine enthusiast, then L'Univerre (40 Rue Lecocq, 33000) is the place for you with an extensive 1,300 references from Bordeaux, Burgundy, and beyond... just make sure you leave enough time to peruse the list! If in doubt, and rather fortunately it doubles as a restaurant, so perhaps book in for lunch or dinner and make special.

One of the best ways to discover a city is on foot, and Bordeaux is perfectly sized for a casual stroll of discovery. En route you must visit Fromagerie Deruelle (66 Rue du Pas-Saint-Georges, 33000). In our humble opinion, it's quite possibly one of the best cheese shops in France and boasts a superb selection from across the country, as well as certain specialities imported from abroad. However, our tried and tested favourites include Gruyère, Comté, Mimolette and the star of the show Brillat-Savarin à la truffe... you'll certainly thank us for this recommendation.

One of our favourite stores to while away the hours in is L'Intendant Grands Vins de Bordeaux (2 Allées de Tourny, 33000), a multi-story wine Mecca with a spiral staircase that carries you up to vinous golden gates! Bottles of Bordeaux with impeccable pedigree and provenance can be sourced for all palates, preference, and price tags... we've enjoyed some stellar purchases over the years such as Châteaux d'Issan 1982, de Fargues 1996, and Rauzan-Ségla 2002, to name but a few. There's seriously something for everyone, so why not grab a bottle (or two) and pair it with some of your purchases from Fromagerie Deruelle... a guaranteed match made in heaven!

However, if you feel the need to escape the hustle and bustle of the city life, there's no better place to go than Cap Ferret. The Bordelais flock here in their droves for the summer; yet it's also a brilliant destination of choice for a day trip to enjoy sun, sea, and seafood! You can travel by car, however, there's only one road in (and out) as it's a peninsula, which can make it rather busy during peak summer season. So, we recommend taking a train direct from Gare Saint-Jean in Bordeaux to Arcachon, followed by a quick journey across the bay on one of the shuttle boats from the jetty on Arcachon seafront. Once you've arrived on terra firma again, take a stroll around the independent shops and make your way south to Chai Bertrand (48 Quartier des Pêcheurs, 33790) for the freshest oysters straight from the bay overlooking the famous dune du Pilat... with a refreshing glass of Bordeaux Blanc in hand, it takes some beating! For something a little more special, a reservation at Le Bouchon du Ferret (2 Rue des Palmiers, 33790) is a must. Indulge in array of delicacies from more local oysters and prawns, however, if on the specials then don't hesitate in opting for the sole meunière or turbot... which are all well worth discovering and will elevate your visit to the next level.

Back in Bordeaux one of our favourite restaurants is L'Entrecôte (Cour du 30 Juillet, 33000). Situated slap bang in the centre and distinguished by its black and yellow façade and constant long line of hungry diners (sadly no reservations here), it's a gastronomic institution, and a rite of passage whilst in the city. The signature set menu of walnut salad, followed by thinly sliced rib eye smothered in their famous garlic butter sauce and a portion of crispy fries, hasn't changed since 1959, and is a testament of both time, and tradition. It's the ultimate steak-frites.

Nevertheless, if you're like Jamie and Andrew with their ethos of "bigger is better in Bordeaux", then a visit to Gueuleton (5 Place du Palais, 33000), is certainly worth the detour. Gueuleton started life as a magazine for les bons vivants (lovers of the finer things in life with a penchant for food and wine) and has now expanded into several restaurants throughout France, each concentrating on the unique regional cuisine in which they reside. Although they offer cult classics such as Pâté en Croûte, Foie Gras, Poulet Rôtie and much more... for us it's all about the Côte de Boeuf! The choice is literally yours: Charolais, Limousin, Aberdeen Angus, and Galician ex-dairy as well as other breeds are served by the kilo. Complete the banquet with an array of sensational sides like Aligot or Potato Dauphinoise, creamed Spinach, roasted Bone Marrow, as well as Béarnaise sauce... and wash it down with a superb bottle of Claret from an extensive, and well-priced list. The relaxed, rustic décor combined with great food and wine strikes the right balance. Ask for Simon or Brice, who will look after you with the very best Bordelais hospitality. Bon appétit!

“Bordeaux's history has, of course, been dominated by the wine industry and is quite rightly known as the centre of the fine wine world.”

Clos Cantenac is an enchanting 6-hectare estate purchased in 2007 by Martin Krajewski (ex-Château de Sours) and with great investment developing the management of vines, to improving vineyard architecture, and finally renovating the 200-year-old winery. Martin's daughter, Charlotte (Lolly), is winemaker and her passion and expertise is beginning to shine through. Look no further than Petit Cantenac, the second wine of Clos Cantenac, which is a great introduction to the property and made from a traditional blend of Merlot, Cabernet Franc, and Cabernet Sauvignon creating a rich, rounded, and supple wine... quintessential St. Émilion Grand Cru that won't disappoint.

CROIX CANON, ST. ÉMILION GRAND CRU 2016

This second wine from the iconic Château Canon is sourced from an 11-hectare vineyard planted with Merlot and Cabernet Franc, at the foothills of the Saint-Émilion plateau. Nicolas Audebert and the wine-making team from Château Canon work with the same precision and dedication as they do the Grand Vin; from meticulous plot-by-plot management, manual sorting tables as well as finely integrated oak. Such commitment has seen Croix Canon become one of the leading wines in the appellation and shouldn't be overlooked!

This is an excellent Château where the fourth female generation, Annabelle Cruse-Bardinet, is at the helm. The 13-hectares of vines are split into two blocks located in the north-west of Saint-Émilion upon the Corbin plateau where the higher proportion of clay subsoil for the area produces rich, yet ripe and refined wines. We are big admirers of Corbin having discovered it during the pandemic when tasting it side by side with Canon... we were so impressed we lovingly refer to it as our "mini-Canon"!

A superb estate on an upward trajectory thanks to big investments being undertaken in both the winery and vineyards by the Malet-Roquefort family (owners for more than 300 years!). Situated just next door to the iconic Château Ausone, with 22 hectares of vines occupying prime sites on the limestone plateau, the south facing mid-slope, as well as in the hamlet of La Gaffelière itself. Thanks to the varying terroir and blend (Merlot and Cabernet Franc) the resulting wine is renowned for its complexity, elegance, and subtle finesse, as well as their ability to age well for decades.

The vineyards lie adjacent to the famous Pomerol plateau and Château l'Église Clinet (also owned by Durantou), where the dominant clay soils produce a charming, supple wine that punches well above its weight in terms of value for money. Unsurprisingly given the appellation, the wines are still relatively unknown to many, however, they shouldn't be as Les Cruzelles often beats many St. Émilion and Pomerol's in blind tastings and is a superb wine for its price!

SPARKLING WINE

There are several methods for creating sparkling wines such as Tank, Transfer, Ancestral, and Traditional. The most well-known and appreciated is, of course, the Traditional Method (also referred to as Méthode Champenoise); thanks to its secondary fermentation and ageing in bottle creating rich and complex sparkling wines with a delicate mousse. Cava, Cap Classique, Crémant, Champagne, as well as some English Sparkling wines, are great examples of this style.

The Tank Method (also known as Charmat Method), on the other hand differs due to the secondary fermentation taking place in a large tank for a short amount of time. It is then bottled with no ageing to produce light, vibrant, and more fruit forward sparkling wines. Prosecco, Lambrusco, Asti, and some English Sparkling wines are brilliant examples of this category.

There's certainly a type of sparkling wine for everyone to enjoy; discover your new favourite today!

There are many different production methods and types of sparkling wine just waiting to be discovered; from alcohol free to fresh and fruit driven Prosecco, as well as slightly more complex and richer styles of Cava and Crémant. One thing which does unite them, however, is they are all perfect aperitifs served with canapés. Give them a go!

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Isabella Bisol TERRE DI SANT'ALBERTO

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Easy going, spiritual, sparkling!

How did you get started in the wine trade?

My family has been working in wine for three generations, so I can say I grew up in the field, but at some point, I wanted to start my own project.

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

How you are at the same time deeply rooted in your place and communicating with people and places all over the world, so far away and different.

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards...

In the heart of Valdobbiadene, ten hectares of vineyard and a small plot of Cartize. These are the steep and beautiful hills that have been farmed by hand for centuries, and since 2019 are UNESCO world heritage. The job of preserving this beauty and making high-quality wine is passed from one generation to the next. Our winery is based in Valdobbiadene, where we have been producing Prosecco for decades.

What goals in winemaking are you still working to achieve?

My goal is always to be able to express at its best all the potential of Glera and all the different aspects of the identity of our territory.

What is your winemaking philosophy?

We emphasize the importance of preserving the distinct character of the Glera grape, native to the Valdobbiadene region, by maintaining traditional methods and integrating modern techniques to enhance quality. Our philosophy focuses on minimal intervention in the vineyard and winery to let the natural qualities of the grape shine through. We prioritise sustainability and respects the unique terroir of their vineyards and aim to produce Prosecco that embodies elegance, freshness, and authenticity.

Who has influenced your winemaking style the most?

My father, for sure!

How do you know when you have a particularly good vintage on your hands?

Looking at the grapes, talking with the vine growers, and tasting the samples in the laboratory.

If you could make wine anywhere else in the world, where would it be?

Frankly, I have no desire to make wine anywhere else. Valdobbiadene's hills are so beautiful! However, if I must pick up one place I would say Sicily; to see how it is like to work in such a different climate and soil.

Can you explain how and why you employ sustainable winemaking?

Yes, we prioritise environmentally friendly practices, minimizing our ecological footprint while maintaining the highest quality standards. Our vineyard management and winemaking processes are designed to respect and enhance the natural ecosystem. By employing these practices, we ensure our wines reflect the true character of our unique terroir.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

Through the years, we saw the season changing and we now harvest in early September, while my grandfather's generation used to do it in early November! For now, we just have to look at the plants, be in tune with their growing season and be ready when its time.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

Can I say my grandmother's home?!

What is your favourite wine, and who would you share it with?

I love Prosecco of course! If you ask me to pick up something different, I would go for a Pinot Noir and I would share it with my friends.

CHAMPAGNE

Situated in North-East of France some 90 miles east of Paris, the Champagne region boasts 34,300 hectares of vines tended by almost 16,000 growers! Unsurprisingly, with an area of such size there are two distinct climatic influences (oceanic and continental) as well as geological (chalk, marl, and limestone) as well as topographical variations (12-59% slope gradient) between the five main sub-zones of the Côte des Blancs, Côte de Sézanne, Montagne de Reims, Vallée de la Marne and the Aube, which each produce unique styles of Champagne.

The main grape varieties are, of course, Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, and Pinot Meunier with some smaller, artisan producers who use Pinot Blanc, Pinot Gris, Petit Meslier, and Arbane. All Champagne undergo the time and tested traditional method production, by which there are two fermentations; the first in tank, and the second in bottle, to create this classic fizz we all know and love. Whether you prefer Non-Vintage or Vintage, Rosé or Blanc de Blancs, or even Prestige Cuvée... there's a Champagne for everyone to enjoy!

NON-VINTAGE CHAMPAGNE

Non-Vintage (NV) is the most popular Champagne category and a blend of the three main varieties; Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier from various vintages to create a "house style". Year upon year the Chef de Cave (winemaker or cellar master) will adjust the blend accordingly from the reserve wines available to produce a Champagne that is in keeping with the house style, whilst maintaining the highest quality standards. Non-Vintage Champagnes must be aged for a minimum of 15 months on the lees, which produces balanced and elegant wines that can develop more intensity and concentration when aged.

JACQUES BONCOEUR

Our family Champagne, Jacques Boncoeur, was registered with the Champagne Board (CIVC) in 2001 and is produced exclusively for Bon Coeur by one of the leading co-operatives in the region. A blend of Pinot Noir and Chardonnay hand-selected by founder, James Goodhart, is aged for a minimum of 3 years (much more than the minimum 15 months AOC requirements) on lees to ensure the perfect conditions to produce a complex, yet elegant and charming Champagne. No surprise it's our best-selling Champagne and has won many awards over the years. Recently it has been given the seal of approval from esteemed wine critics such as Joanna Simon and Jancis Robinson MW!

ROSÉ CHAMPAGNE

Rosé Champagne has increased in popularity over recent years, and rightly so! Interestingly, Champagne is one of the few places in world where you are legally allowed blend red and white still wines to make rosé. Typically, winemakers blend about 15% still red wine (from Pinot Noir or Pinot Meunier) into the final wine. Alternatively, the “saignée” (“bleeding”) method is also popular and consists of the must having minimal skin contact, generally for only a couple of hours before blending. This low maceration technique allows the must to develop stronger aromas and flavours while simultaneously deepening the colour. However, don't be fooled by the colour as Rosé Champagnes are powerful and really pack a flavourful punch.

VINTAGE CHAMPAGNE

The ultimate expression of Champagne which is richer, fuller and perfect for special celebrations! Vintage Champagne is made only in the very best harvests, where the highest quality is all but guaranteed; normally only declared three or four times per decade. Made in the same way as Non-Vintage Champagne with the exception that instead of a blend of different base wines, 100% of the grapes come from just the one particular year. By law, Vintage Champagne must spend a minimum three years on its lees, however, many of the Grande Marque Champagne Houses cellar and age their wines for upwards of five to ten years. Works wonders with the richness and earthiness of wild mushroom and truffle risotto, or try with pan fried langoustine.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Odilon de Varine CHAMPAGNE GOSSET

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Open-minded, passionate and Champenois.

How did you get started in the wine trade?

I was born in Champagne and started making wines at my family's Domaine in Burgundy, then I worked in Alsace before moving back to Champagne.

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

One can never make the exact same wine twice: every wine is unique, and winemaking cannot rely on any recipe.

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards...

The winery consists of stainless-steel tanks exclusively, to maintain the freshness and the fruitiness of the wines at their purest expression. We do not own vineyards, which allows us to benefit from a choice when sourcing our grape musts at the harvest, thanks to an over-supply resulting in a sorting exercise by blind tasting of the musts, as the very first winemaking step.

What goals in winemaking are you still working to achieve?

Keeping an intense mineral freshness while building a deep vinosity (consisting of in both the aromatic complexity with secondary aromas freshened up by primary aromas, a mouth filling sensation and density, and a long aftertaste) is the goal, and these are the fundamentals of the Gosset Champagne wine style.

What is your winemaking philosophy?

My winemaking philosophy is quite basic and humble: there is no pre-set recipe, and one must start from a blank page again, every time.

Who has influenced your winemaking style the most?

My own palate! I like to make wines that I like to drink and to share with friends.

If you had to recommend just one of your wines to a customer, which would it be, and why?

Gosset Grande Réserve, because it's the flagship of the House style, offering both intense mineral freshness (thanks to our take on vinification – keeping the natural acid of the fruit) and deep vinosity (our non-vintage blends benefit from 3 to 4 years of cellar maturation on their lees).

Can you explain why mindful winemaking is important and how this is employed in the vineyard?

We source organic grapes, biodynamic grapes, grapes that benefit from another "sustainable" label (High environmental value, Sustainable viticulture in Champagne, etc). As long as the grapes bear an environmental certification (or are being converted into green farming practices), it's fine: we need the growers to choose their own way into sustainability, because that's how they will produce the best grapes they can according to their terroir, and their own technical choices and convictions.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

Climate change has impacted our grape selection more than our winemaking: we had to evolve our grape sourcing, to maintain the consistency of our wine style – we source more Chardonnay than ever, and we strive to avoid over-ripe grapes, as our style relies on a long maturation of the wines on their lees, more than on the maturity of the fresh fruit.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

La Grillade Gourmande in Epernay, because it offers fine cuisine mixing traditional and local dishes with a touch of contemporary gastronomy and because its size is perfect for a small group of friends.

What is your favourite wine, and who would you share it with?

I love wine too much to have a single favourite wine! The wine world is extremely diverse and there always are new wines to be discovered. The best wine is the one to be shared with friends, and that helps warmth and friendliness emerge.

ENGLAND

Wine grape cultivation in the UK goes back to Roman times, however, the cold, wet climate has always been a major hurdle to producing wines of significant quality. Thankfully, the English wine industry has undergone a sizeable revolution in the last fifty years, and can now proudly claim to be a global contender, particularly when it comes to sparkling wine. The classic varietals of Pinot Noir, Pinot Meunier, and Chardonnay are used to create traditional method sparkling wines, made in the same way as those from Champagne. Good quality red, white and rose still wines are also crafted from Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, and Pinot Gris, as well as lesser known varietals such as Sylvaner and Bacchus; England's alternative to Sauvignon Blanc!

The best vineyards in England are found in the southern counties including Kent, Sussex, Surrey, Hampshire, Dorset and Cornwall where the chalky, limestone-rich soils (similar to those in Chablis and Champagne), and the warming effect of the Gulf Stream help create a unique climate for grape growing. The recent succession of hot summers in Southern England has produced some stellar vintages, which have produced English wines that can now go toe to toe with many established countries in international competitions for both still, and sparkling wines. Rule Britannia!

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Josh Doneghay-Spire CHAPEL DOWN

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Honest, conscientious, passionate.

How did you get started in the wine trade?

It started with a work experience placement at the tender age of 14 in a wine bar! Working in hospitality when I was young gave me a great overview of wine, but I soon realised I wanted to be involved with it on a deeper level

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

How much non-winemaking knowledge you need to learn. This brings breadth and perspective.

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards...

We grow the majority of our grapes on the chalky south facing slopes of the Kent Downs. Here the cool maritime climate allows them to ripen slowly and with a naturally crisp and fresh character

What goals in winemaking are you still working to achieve?

To discover the terroir of Kent. We don't have centuries of tradition which could tell us how the wines of a particular area will taste like, as they do in more established wine regions. We only plant a new vineyard after lots of research and analysis but the taste of the wines which come from that vineyard can only be revealed with time.

What is your winemaking philosophy?

Plant the best land possible, keep the soil and vines healthy, tread as lightly as possible. If we can do this and grow top quality grapes, then winemaking is much simpler and focusses on revealing the potential of the grapes.

Who has influenced your winemaking style the most?

I don't think any single individual. We're making wine in a brand-new wine region where we don't yet know how good our wines can be. We need to work collaboratively and seek inspiration from the vineyards we plant.

What is your most exciting grape variety to work with?

Chardonnay. When grown in our cool maritime climate and particularly on chalk it has a precision and freshness which can't be made anywhere else.

How do you know when you have a particularly good vintage on your hands?

Every springtime is full of the potential of a great vintage. We closely track the weather, grape analysis and flavour as harvest approaches. As the fruit is picked you have a good idea of the potential quality but the real confirmation comes when you start to taste the wines post-fermentation, it's a real highlight of the year.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

It's impossible to separate the impact of the changing climate from the fact that as we grow, we are planting better vineyards with better equipment and making better wine. That said, the varieties we grow would not have been possible 70 years ago, so it has undoubtedly affected it.

What is the best vintage that you have made?

I'm very proud of the wines we've made at Chapel Down, but I always think the best one is just around the corner...

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

I love Wheelers in Whitstable. Amazing seafood and BYO so I would often take some special Chapel Down bottles to share with friends

Name your desert island dish and paired wine...

Instead of desert island beach can I have Whitstable beach with Whitstable oysters and Kits Coty Blanc de Blancs. An amazing combination of food, wine and place!

GERMANY

Situated on the French–German border of north–eastern France, Alsace is governed by two natural boundaries; the Vosges mountains and the Rhine river. Gentle slopes and extensive, warm summers produce complex wines made from Pinot Blanc, Gewurztraminer and Riesling.

In neighbouring Germany, the Mosel is also dictated by a slightly more challenging terrain; steep slopes and close proximity to the river provide ideal conditions for dry to super-sweet Riesling (and everything in between!).

Further south in the underrated region of Pfalz, obsessive care and attention to detail results in fruity, easy-drinking and approachable wines.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Ernst Loosen DR LOOSEN

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Curious. Determined. Impassioned.

How did you get started in the wine trade?

When I was young, I liked wine and had been to the winemaking school in Geisenheim, but I wasn't really interested in going into the wine business. I was more interested in archeology and Roman history. But when I was studying archeology at the University of Mainz, my father fell seriously ill. My mother issued an ultimatum to the family: one of you kids must take over the wine estate, or we'll sell off the vineyards. With no real employment prospects as an archeologist, I was the only one in a position to take it on. So, I did it. That was 37 years ago!

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

The truly surprising thing was just how simple it is to make a great wine. A lot of work goes into it, of course, but with minimal-intervention winemaking, the process is not very complicated. You just need to pick good-quality fruit, maintain a clean cellar, and let nature do the work. The real challenge is in selling the wines once you've made them!

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards?

Our family has been growing and producing wine for over 220 years. When I took over the estate, I inherited some wonderful old vineyards, with ungrafted vines up to 130 years old. Since then, we have acquired more vineyards and now have holdings in 11 top-rated Grosse Lage sites in the Middle Mosel, as well in several Erste Lage and village sites. From the beginning, our idea was to focus on those Grosse Lage vineyards, to produce the best wines possible and to bring back the concept of vineyard classification, which had been abandoned with the 1971 German wine law.

Are you implementing any measures in the vineyard or winery to make the winemaking process more environmentally friendly?

You know, for 2,000 years of wine making and wine growing on the Mosel they didn't employ fertilisation. So, we have been going back to this old way of thinking. Let nature do things itself a little bit more. Also with the wine making, it's exactly the same. These are all the things I have been implementing; trying to find out what they did 130 years ago. There must be a reason that Mosel wines were the once the most expensive in the world, two or three times more expensive than Châteaux Latour and Margaux.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

An important topic! So far, to be perfectly honest, the warming climate has been good for winegrowers in Germany. We've had to adapt our viticulture and harvest decisions, naturally, but right now we are enjoying an exceptional run of fully ripe vintages, which were not very common, even just 50 years ago. The big question, of course, is where will we be in another 50 years?

I have many more thoughts on this topic, which you can read in my "Thoughts on Climate Change" – please ask Bon Coeur for a copy!

How do you know when you have a particularly good vintage on your hands?

Even if everything looks perfect during the growing season and the harvest, you can never really be sure about the quality of a vintage until you have the finished wines in your glass. But it's only with some age that you see the greatness of a vintage. My grandfather always told me that you need at least 10 years for a wine to truly show you how great it will be.

What are your thoughts on the perception of German (and/or Mosel) wines in today's fine wine market?

I've been running around for over 30 years preaching about Riesling and it's slowly coming back to the high reputation it had at the beginning of the 20th century. Riesling is still a small part of the wine market, however, and probably always will be. But we'll keep on preaching about the amazing diversity and versatility of Riesling – it truly is a remarkable grape and people usually love it if you can just get them to try it.

In particular, high-quality dry-style German Rieslings are gaining in popularity around the world as today's consumers discover how versatile, full-flavoured and food-friendly they are. However, while modern palates tend to prefer dry wines overall, there is still a larger quantity of off-dry Riesling sold globally. But no matter the style, Riesling is deeply satisfying for wine lovers who prefer intensely aromatic wines with energy, pure flavours and a crisp, refreshing finish.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

Any restaurant that has great food! There are many great restaurants that I love, so it's impossible to choose just one. But a local example of the type of restaurant that I prefer is Schanz in Piesport. What I like about it is the elegance and precision of the cooking and the fact that they focus on fish dishes. The food is just brilliant, the dishes beautifully prepared and from start to finish just absolutely delicious.

What is your favourite wine, and who would you share it with?

I have a cellar full of favourites and I love to share them with friends over dinner at home.

Austria is landlocked on all sides, however, most of the wine growing regions are in the east of the country, where geological and climatic conditions are more favourable for production of high-quality wine such as fresh, mineral Gruner Veltliner and Riesling, as well as fruit-forward, luscious reds from Zweigelt and St. Laurent.

Hungary is one of the oldest and most important wine producing regions and is famous for the deliciously sweet, unctuous wines of Tokaji. Nevertheless, there has been a revolution in recent years and a new wave of producers have been using modern techniques and facilities to craft bright, vibrant dry white wines from native grapes such as Furmint, Hárslevelű and Sárgamuskotály.

Romania has been making wine for centuries and is one of the biggest producers in Europe, yet until recently very little was exported. How times are changing, and with it, there are some fantastic wines to be discovered from international varieties like Sauvignon Blanc and Pinot Noir, to the indigenous grapes Fetească Regală and Fetească Neagră.

With hundreds of indigenous grape varieties to choose from, Italy is a wine lover's paradise. From the romantic, mist-shrouded slopes of Piedmont to the flat, sun-baked plains of Puglia as well as the idyllic island of Sicily; Italy is as complex as it is varied. With 20 wine producing regions to choose from, the diversity in terroir and style available throughout the length and breadth of the country is nothing short of impressive.

Re-discover classic varieties such as Nebbiolo, Barbera and Sangiovese as well as exciting newcomers like Nero d'Avola, Vermentino and Grillo. Sparkling, white, red or sweet... Italy really has it all.

NORTHERN

Northern Italy has always been a bastion for great wines, no more so than Piedmont, which is beginning to step out of the shadow of neighbouring France to claim back its crown. Here the Dolcetto, Barbera and Nebbiolo grapes reign supreme, creating powerful, yet perfumed and elegant wines from the villages of Alba, Barbaresco and Barolo. There is plenty of choice in the Veneto too with varying forms of Vapolicella from Ripassa to Amarone as well as Recioto, known as rich and plentiful wines. However, it's not all about reds as fantastic crisp and clean whites can be found from Gavi, Soave and the Veneto too, all offering consistent quality and great value for money.

CENTRAL

Central Italy is, without a doubt, one of the most prestigious winemaking areas in the country that includes famous appellations such as Chianti, Brunello di Montalcino and Bolgheri to name but a few. The Super Tuscan movement has long divided opinion by blending (or sometimes replacing) the indigenous Sangiovese with international varieties such as Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, Merlot, and Syrah. However, the resulting wines are big, bold, and powerful with incredible ageing potential and now proudly take their place on the world's Fine Wine stage. Nevertheless, do not underestimate Sangiovese, which stakes a solid claim as the noble grape of Tuscany from easy drinking to village specific Chianti as well as vibrant Vino Nobile di Montepulciano and full-bodied blockbusters from Brunello di Montalcino. There are some fantastic white wines made from the local grapes of Pecorino and Vermentino just waiting to be discovered...

SELVAPIANA – TUSCANY

The Rufina zone is the smallest in Chianti (about 600 hectares of vineyard) but also one of the most special. The cool breeze that blows down the Sieve Valley gives the best wines a finesse and definition that few in Chianti Classico can match, and there is no better producer in Rufina than Selvapiana, which has been in the family of Francesco Giuntini since 1827. Federico Giuntini Masseti now runs the 250 hectare estate, which is situated just north of the town of Pontassieve and for the most part, the vineyards face west, except their prized Bucerchiale vineyard, which is south-west facing and creates powerful, more weighty wines.

CASANOVA DI NERI – TUSCANY

Casanova di Neri was founded by Giovanni Neri in 1971 and is one of the leading properties in Brunello di Montalcino, and more importantly, the pioneer behind the concept of single-vineyard wines. The estate has been in the capable hands of his son Giacomo since 1991, who now works alongside the third generation, his two sons: Giovanni and Gianlorenzo. The family philosophy is to produce wines that are approachable and drink well in their youth, yet also have the complexity, concentration, and structure to age impeccably.

Located in the village of San Vicente de la Sonsierra, at the foothills of the Toloño mountain range lies Hacienda López de Haro. In 2006 a new winery was built in the heart of the 70 hectare vineyard, allowing the team to craft wines in a traditional Riojan style. French and American oak are both used to add complexity to the Tempranillo-based wines, which are complemented by the addition of other indigenous varietals such as Graciano and Garnacha.

Compañía Vinícola del Norte de España (CVNE) is a historic Rioja wine producer founded in 1879. The company remains in the same family and is run by Victor Urrutia, who is a direct descendant of founding partner Eusebio Real de Asúa. CVNE boasts three impressive estates, each with its own winery and winemaker; CVNE itself in Haro (María Larrea), Viña Real in Laguardia (Eva de Benito) and Contino in Laserna (Jesús Madrazo). As a result, they produce a broad and diverse range of wines that has seen CVNE become a renowned and highly respected producer for outstanding quality Rioja.

LUIS CAÑAS – RIOJA

Bodegas Luis Cañas has been at the heart of Rioja since 1928, however, it wasn't until 1970 when its contemporary story begins when they became the first Rioja Alavesa winemaker to bottle his young wine rather than sell it in bulk. This was a bold move at the time yet cemented their position as one of the most progressive in the region. Situated in Villabuena (Rioja Alavesa) and sheltered below the Sierra Cantabria, their vineyards are all old, small plots on chalky-clay soils, where Luis Cañas knows the local climate and terroir inside-out and demonstrates a real sense of pride and dedication of this to create these unique wines. So much so that every harvest Luis, now 86, stands at the head of the selection table keeping a keen eye on proceedings and guaranteeing only the very best parcels of grapes are used to create his excellent wines.

Nestled at the southern foothills of the Sierra de Cantabria Mountain range in Northern Spain, La Rioja is, without a doubt, a food and wine lovers paradise. It is the smallest of the seventeen autonomous Spanish communities and is predominantly (and quite rightly) internationally famous for its quality wine production. However, ask if anyone has visited and the answer will be very few. Armed with our top tips on winery tours, places to visit, and where and what to eat; you'll be feeling like a true Riojano in no time at all... ¡Vamos!

Wine is, of course, at the top of most people's agenda when visiting La Rioja... and quite rightly so! It's Spain's most iconic wine producing region, with over 500 wineries dotted throughout the three sub-regions: Rioja Alta, Rioja Alavesa, and Rioja Oriental. There are plenty of options to choose from when visiting and wine tourism has become increasingly popular with tours and tastings, as well as restaurant and boutique hotel experiences all on offer. We would highly recommend starting in the town of Haro, which is the epicentre of production and boasts the largest concentration of century-old wineries in the world known as the Barrio de la Estación. The first port of call should always be La Rioja Alta, which has undoubtedly become a firm favourite with our customers in recent years. Not to be confused with the sub-region, this historic winery was founded in 1890, and is one of the most traditional that still has its own cooperage on-site to make their own barrels (sadly becoming a dying art). Conclude the tour of their impressive cooperage, winery, and cellars with a selection of tapas and a glass or two of flagship Viña Ardanza Reserva, or be tempted by back vintages of sublime 904 and 890 Gran Reservas in the state-of-the-art tasting room: El garaje del club de cosecheros.

At the top of the street, RODA is a must visit. Although a relatively late comer onto the Riojan winemaking scene (1987), they have rapidly gained respect for their meticulous research and development of grape varieties with a focus on select vineyards sites, specific clones, as well as planting at higher altitude. Immerse yourself in the super-modern winery and a tasting of SELA or Roda Reserva, overlooking the Ebro River. If you want a unique experience, book a horse-drawn rickshaw ride through the vines!

Enjoy the stunning vineyard vistas as far as the eye can see as you head east on the N-232 towards the village of Elciego and Marqués de Riscal. Another historic winery created in 1858, however, it shot to stardom when American Canadian architect, Frank Gehry, designed the boutique hotel that now dominates the skyline (picture above). Why not book a stay at this luxurious boutique hotel and enjoy a relaxing spa session followed by dinner at the Michelin-starred Restaurante recommend going on a pintxo crawl to sample some local delicacies.

Here are our top tips. Start proceedings at Calle Laurel's entrance and La Tavina with a Riojanito, minced spicy sausage with a fried quail egg. A great way to begin and pairs wonderfully with a glass of fruity Crianza; choose from the ever-changing by the glass list, there's always something interesting to drink. Bar Seba is next and one of the most classic Spanish dishes: tortilla, however, the main decision is whether to have a slice with their notorious spicy sauce (or not) ... be warned, it packs a serious punch! Still feeling peckish? Head around the corner to La Fontana for torreznos; crunchy pork belly and what can only be described as the ultimate Spanish pork scratching. However, here you must drink a beer, it's just a better pairing ... though to sound like a local rather than cerveza, ask for juna caña, por favor! A crawl is not complete without patatas bravas, and the Bar Jubera over the road is the best, though beware it gets busy so be prepared to fight for a spot at the bar! One of the great Riojan debates is who serves the best champi (mushroom pintxo), Bar Ángel or Bar Soriano... and for us it's the latter! On the surface, it's a simple pintxo of 3 grilled mushrooms on a slice of baguette topped with a prawn and drizzled in garlic sauce. It's a sensation, so order a few so you don't have to wait for more! Next door and the definitive stop of the crawl should be Bar Lorenzo for a tío Agus; chunks of spicy marinated pork cooked on the plancha and smothered in garlicky-herby sauce. A fitting end to your gastro tour. ¡Qué aproveche!

“Get off the beaten track and discover this wonderful under the radar region, you won't be disappointed!”

Marqués de Riscal, run by one of Spain's best chefs: Francis Paniego.

It's worth making a detour to visit the medieval hilltop village of Laguardia, which enjoys some of the best views in all of Rioja, including the impressive Ysios winery designed by Spanish architect: Santiago Calatrava. Make haste to the region's capital, Logroño, and end your vinous tour at the jaw-dropping Marqués de Murrieta. Founded in 1852 (you're starting to see the theme now), it took inspiration from the French Château surrounded by vines concept, and the resulting Castillo Ygay estate was as impressive then, as it is now. In 2019, extensive castle and winery renovations were completed with the utmost care and attention to detail after many years of hard work.

The same can be said for their vines and wines from the exceptional Capellanía Blanco Gran Reserva to the ever-reliable Reserva, as well as the legendary Castillo Ygay Gran Reserva Especial. Elevate your visit to the highest level by booking a tour followed by a wine-paired tasting menu by their private chef... an unforgettable experience in one of the most forward-thinking wineries in the world.

Logroño is a Mecca for food and wine lovers who travel from all over Spain to visit the famous Calle Laurel. On this tiny 200-metre street there are 60 bars packed in together each offering a tantalising array of tapas and pintxos (northern Spanish version of tapas). However, some remain very traditional and just offer one specific pintxo, so, we

Jorge Alves QUINTA NOVA

How did you get started in the wine trade?

A long story! In 1994, after I graduated (as an agronomist) I went to do an internship at Vertice, which at the time was a joint venture between Schramsberg Vineyards in Napa Valley and the cooperative winery in Alijó. I worked as an assistant winemaker for two years there, followed by a four-month internship in Napa Valley, a few trips to France (Champagne), and a post-graduate degree, oenology became my passion.

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

Understanding viticulture and the influence of geology, climate, and grape varieties on the quality of each wine as well as controlling the fermentation and the aging process, and the great challenge of blending!

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards...

Spanning a 1.5 km stretch of the right bank of the Douro River, with a unique area of 85 hectares, where the particularities of each of the 41 plots reflect on our wines the unique identity and personality of each vintage.

A new winery with concrete terraces has been designed, inspired by the morphology of the Douro River and the natural layout of the terraced vineyards. It has been built in cement and developed in partnership with the Italian company CLC Srl, which for the first time has interpreted an architectural design that reflects the landscape of the Douro wine region. There are a total of 32 cement tanks of different sizes, installed on two levels. There are also two traditional granite grape presses, with three centuries of history, which have been restored blending modernity and tradition together.

What is one of your favourite varietals to work with, and why?

Touriga Nacional for several reasons; it's a native grape from our terroir, it's the symbol of Portugal when we talk about grape varieties, and I personally really enjoy the floral element it has... the orange floral aromas that you obtain when you ferment it at moderate to low temperatures (19-21°C) always gets me excited. Touriga Nacional has one of the best fine textures I've ever tasted; full of layers, concentration, and tension with silky tannins... the best combination!

What is your winemaking philosophy?

Respect our terroir and put the soul of the Douro Valley inside of every bottle of Quinta Nova wine.

What goals in winemaking are you still working to achieve?

Now I'm working to surprise the Quinta Nova customers with different interpretations of our terroir and new wines. Restlessness is something that moves us; I'm always looking for new textures and interpretations to showcase our land.

How do you know when you have a particularly good vintage on your hands?

Each year is a unique vintage, and I always treat the grapes the best way possible. But I must be honest, for me when I see the concentration, aromatics, and alcoholic (sugar) levels and phenolic ripening on the right track... I know that year is going to be good.

If you could make wine anywhere else in the world, where would it be?

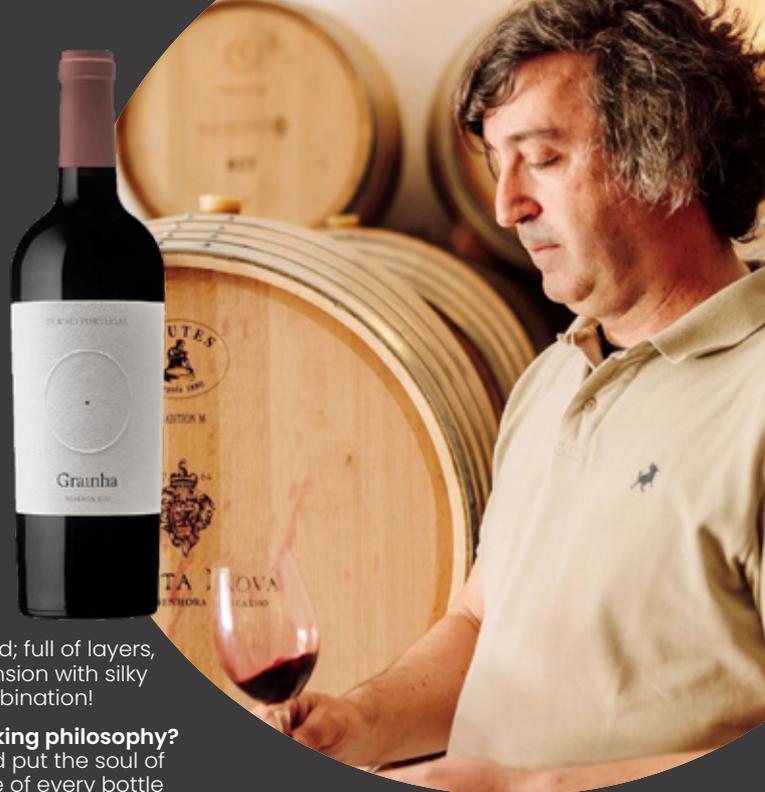

Burgundy and probably Gevrey-Chambertin (Côte de Nuits); great wine style, and the one I try to recreate the most.

Do you work in the vineyards and winery in a sustainable manner?

We are in a transition as we are sustainable certified (both grapes and winery), however, we are working to become organic and biodynamic soon. We know it's not easy, but we can always do better with fewer inputs, and ensure environmental, economic, and social sustainability, to leave a better world for the next generations.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

One of the main things is that grapes are becoming riper (14-15 % ABV) and less fresh (lower acidity). Problems found in the vineyard is that we are seeing drier berries and burnt grapes; so we try to harvest earlier to keep the freshness and lower alcohol levels. In turn we work in a gentler way with softer extractions and lower fermentations temperatures (reds 23°C and whites 12°C), we also use French oak foudres (1200L) for the aging of reds and whites (less oxygen contact), and concrete tanks (3,600-12,500 litres) for the storage and maturation of both red and white wines.

What are your thoughts on the perception of Portuguese wine in today's market?

Lots of work needs to be done... however, Portugal is a rising star; our classic regions are becoming more popular and trendier in several markets. The fact that we use native grape varieties is something that is appealing to consumers around the world looking for something new.

Demand for Portuguese wine has increased a lot in recent years, what do you believe has contributed to this?

The quality of the Portuguese wines has improved a lot. Our wines have become more sophisticated and elegant with international influence, yet without losing the regional character of the place where they were born.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

All restaurants that use local, seasonal ingredients to make traditional yet with a modern twist. Quinta Nova's restaurant, Terraçu, is a wonderful example of what we do the best in the Douro Valley!

Name your desert island dish and paired wine...

Roast Lamb with Mirablis Red 2017; what a combination! The fattiness of the Lamb with the concentration, fruit, and acidity of the wine seals the perfect meal in my opinion...

What is your favourite wine, and who would you share it with?

Every wine has its own time and place to be shared with the right people. So, all the bottles I open with my family at home every Sunday, is a blessing and the best wine for me!

Greece is arguably one of the oldest winemaking countries in the world, albeit not the first country to make wine, it was indeed the Greeks who spread wine culture around the Mediterranean as far as France, Spain and Italy. Despite such a rich heritage, their unique wines have only grown in popularity in recent years thanks to the fusion of ancient tradition and modern-winemaking that highlight native varietals such as Assyrtiko and Vidiano as well as Xinomavro and Kotsifali to the show best of this new frontier.

Lebanon also boasts a 6,000 year vinous history, so you'd think that by now that Lebanese winemakers would know what they're doing... and they certainly do regardless of the surprised first reactions of wine drinkers when they learn that Lebanon has a recognised fine wine industry. Indigenous and international varietals thrive in the mountainous landscapes of the Bekaa Valley and Batroun creating rich, round whites and full-bodied, robust reds that are well worth discovering.

IXSIR – LEBANON

The name IXSIR derives from 'Iksir', the Arabic term for 'Elixir', a word common to many languages that defines the purest form of all substances. The vision behind IXSIR is to showcase the best terroirs in Lebanon, many of which have been long forgotten. Cultivated with respect to sustainable agriculture, IXSIR's vineyards are spread throughout the Lebanese mountains on clay-calcareous and limestone soil, from Batroun to Jezzine, benefiting from the unique microclimates Lebanon has to offer.

THE LISTENING STATION – VICTORIA

The Listening Station is a celebration of the old, Australian 'listening stations' that used to track satellites across the empty, pitch-black sky of outback Australia in areas like Victoria. The wines are a homage to the cooler, vast, dark night sky, and even the grapes for the wine were picked at nighttime to reinforce this whilst retaining impressive concentration and character. A great introduction to the brilliant wines of the region.

John Vickery is widely regarded as the "godfather of Australian Riesling" and is one of, if not, Australia's greatest Riesling producers and an inspiration to those who have followed in his footsteps. Vickery started making Riesling during the 1950s, at a time when Australia was predominantly making fortified wines, quickly recognising the potential of both Clare Valley (Watervale) and Eden Valley as sites to craft high quality wines that expressed a real sense of place, purity, and longevity. In 2023, Vickery retired and Keeda Zilm took over the reins and is now, in her words, "the proud custodian of John's philosophy, style, and technique." We'll raise a glass to that!

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Larry Cherubino ROBERT OATLEY VINEYARDS

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Pretty bloody dishy!

How did you get started in the wine trade?

By total accident! I needed a job and started working in a winery during harvest and the rest is history...

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

The constant learning process and how every vintage brings new challenges and opportunities. The unpredictability of nature keeps things exciting and fresh.

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards...

Margaret River is 100 km long. Our fruit comes from the finest resources of vineyards drawn from the length of the region; terrific Cabernet around Wilyabrup, Cowramup and Carburnup in the North and cool climate Chardonnay comes from Karridale in the south where the Indian Ocean meets the colder Southern Ocean. I have worked in Margaret River all my working life so know where all the best sites are. Between the Oatleys and myself we have over 100 years' experience in McLaren Vale so we know where to source the best Shiraz and Grenache.

What goals in winemaking are you still working to achieve?

I'm continually striving to enhance the expression of terroir in our wines and to innovate with sustainable practices that can adapt to the changing climate.

Who has influenced your winemaking style the most?

Many have influenced me but working with winemakers like Dr. Bryan Smith and in regions like Tuscany has profoundly shaped my approach to winemaking.

What is your winemaking philosophy?

Minimal intervention. I believe in letting the vineyard speak through the wine, using natural and sustainable methods to cultivate and produce wines that truly reflect their origin.

What is your most exciting grape variety to work with?

Chardonnay. It's incredibly versatile and can express the terroir in fascinating ways.

How do you know when you have a particularly good vintage on your hands?

You can feel it in the vineyard – the balance of the fruit, the health of the vines, and the conditions of the season all come together. The real confirmation, though, is in the cellar when the wines start to show their potential.

Consumers are becoming increasingly conscious of their impact on the planet and are trying to be more sustainable. Is sustainability something you actively employ throughout the wineries?

Yes, sustainability is at the core of our philosophy. We use sustainable practices where possible and are continually looking for ways to reduce our carbon footprint and enhance biodiversity in our vineyards.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

It has made us more adaptive and innovative. We've had to adjust our practices to cope with warmer temperatures and changing weather patterns, focusing more on water management and selecting more resilient grape varieties.

What is the best vintage that you have made?

1999, the wines are balanced, fresh and youthful.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

I opened my own restaurant in my hometown of Perth, Australia (Cherubino City Cellar). It reflects the style of dining I like – simple dishes done well with the best fresh ingredients and an extensive wine list including a lot of Burgundy and Italian wine. When in the UK I am drawn to the River Café for the same reasons and the views of the Thames.

Name your desert island dish and paired wine...

A chip butty and a glass of Chardonnay.

What is your favourite wine, and who would you share it with?

Barolo from Cannubi and I'm not sharing it!

ZEALAND

New Zealand is a tale of two islands where vineyards on both sides naturally enjoy a maritime climate. The cool nights and sea breezes help to produce high quality grapes with balanced acidity and great purity of fruit.

There is an impressive range of grape varieties now grown in New Zealand including classics such as Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. However, there are some producers pushing boundaries and have started to successfully grow Riesling and Pinot Gris as well as Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Tempranillo. The majority of wine regions are found on the East coast of both islands such as Hawke's Bay, Martinborough, Marlborough and Otago, which are all protected by the Southern Alps mountain range.

OLD ROAD WINE COMPANY – FRANSCHHOEK VALLEY

Old Road Wine Company tells the story of special pockets of vineyards grown in the rugged corners of the Franschhoek Valley that chief winemaker, Ryan Puttick, has specially sought out. Puttick works hand in glove with the growers of these unique old vineyards, some of them more being 85 years old, and in such a way to reflect the purest expression by following a philosophy of minimal intervention to coax the wine as gently as possible into the bottle.

It's all about the Andes when it comes to climate and terroir in South America. The high-altitude vineyards of Mendoza in Argentina find the perfect balance between hot days and cool evenings to fully ripen grapes, whereas vines on the steep slopes in Colchagua Valley are tempered by the Arctic winds of the Humboldt Current. As a result of these unique conditions the wines are fresh, clean and fruit driven. Argentina's most famous grape without doubt is Malbec, however, don't be afraid to try Cabernet Sauvignon or give Torrontés a go.

If you want to be adventurous then cross the border into Chile and try their Sauvignon Blanc, Viognier, Carménère and Pinot Noir wines, they should not be missed!

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Sebastián Zuccardi FAMILIA ZUCCARDI

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Hard working, passionate and creative.

How did you get started in the wine trade?

I grew up in the vineyards, my dad wasn't a winemaker: his place, and my grandfathers were in the vineyard. I went to the vineyard much more than to the winery. When I finished school, I knew I wanted to work outdoors, with nature, and in the vineyard, so I decided to study agronomy. It was vital, because today one of the revolutions we are making here in the Uco Valley shows that we are going from the vineyard to the winery, not the other way around. We cultivate wines with a sense of place.

When I joined the family winery, we only had vineyards near to Mendoza. However, I was convinced that we must cultivate closer to the Andes Mountains. I told my father, 'We have to go to the Uco Valley' and therefore once I finished my studies and harvest travels abroad, we began exploring and deepening our knowledge of the Uco Valley.

Provide a brief description of the vineyards and winery...

We make mountain wines and everything that happens in the Uco Valley is connected to the mountains. It is based on five key components: landscape, climate, water, soil, and lastly people. Each vineyard has a unique identity related to its soil, climate, landscape, and history. Our challenge is to faithfully interpret the diversity of each place to express its identity in the wine.

Our winery is also a tribute to the mountains. It is made entirely of concrete using stones, sand, and water from the land in the area. We wanted it to be part of the environment and integrated completely into the mountain landscape. We like to say it is a winery rooted in the vineyards, because, fortunately, we began cultivating our vineyards in the Uco Valley before building the winery. We studied the immense diversity of the soils and began dividing our vineyards by soil type. We have spent years researching the ideal vessel for aging our wines, and we decided upon concrete as it's a natural material that does not impart any flavors or aromas to the wine. So, we were able to build the winery to accommodate all the diversity that was coming from the vineyards.

What goals in winemaking are you still working to achieve?

In wine, one never truly arrives, it's always a journey. We strive for the wines to reflect the place where they grow and the year in which they were made, as transparently as possible. For this, we need a great terroir, knowledge of it, precision winemaking, and an interpretation that brings together our vision.

What is your winemaking philosophy?

We cultivate mountain wines. Our work begins in the vineyard. In the winery we need to be very respectful so that our wines express, with transparency and precision, the place where they come from.

What is one of your favourite varietals to work with, and why?

Malbec is my favorite varietal because of its history in Argentina, it's adaptation here, and is a great variety that acts as a vehicle to express the unique characteristics of different terroirs.

For white wines, we are very interested in Chardonnay grown in cold areas and calcareous soils.

Consumers are increasingly conscious of their impact on the planet and are trying to be more sustainable. Is sustainability something you actively employ at the winery?

Absolutely, sustainability is part of our family DNA. We make all our key decisions in the family business based on our core shared values. We have four pillars: quality, innovation, caring for the environment, and supporting our local community.

We have developed a wide variety of sustainable practices over the years, and we just recently formally received our sustainability certification, "Argentina Sostenible" by Ecocert.

What is the best vintage that you have made?

I like the fresh and dry ones... 2019 and 2022 are two great vintages.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

There's too many! Though thinking about our culture and our place, I really like the work Pablo Rivero does at Don Julio in Buenos Aires. There's a vision and they share similarities with our quest for respect for place, product, and culture, while pushing the limits at the same time.

Name the dish you would want to eat on a desert island, and what wine would you pair with it...

An asado with a Malbec. And if I had to choose one of our wines, it would be Finca Piedra Infinita.

The world's fourth largest wine producer, the United States has a wine history dating back to the 1600s, when colonisation began in earnest. More or less every state produces wine, however, mostly in tiny proportions. Over 95% of the output is restricted to just four states: California, Oregon, Washington and New York. California then produces about 80% of that output, making it far and away the capital of wine in the United States.

There are a plethora of grapes to choose from with regulations being more lenient than other countries, though the intense, creamy Chardonnays of California are the most famous white export. Amongst the red wines, loud and proud Zinfandel is California's statement wine, along with Cabernet Sauvignon, which relishes the warm California sunshine as well as riper, more fleshy and rounded styles of Pinot Noir.

Al Scheid first purchased a 10-acre parcel located on the edge of Greenfield, Monterey County in 1972. Monterey winemaking was still in its infancy; however, Al was drawn to the region for its untapped potential. Almost five decades later and having been joined by his son Scott and daughter Heidi, the family business has changed from selling its entire production, to a grape-to-glass estate that produces authentic and elegant wines. Furthermore, the family are fully committed to sustainable production; all vineyards are certified sustainable, all wastewater is recycled, grape must is made into compost and reused as nutritional spread in the vineyards, as well as implementing drip irrigation. As Al once said, "great wine begins in the vineyard", and this family motto still rings true today.

SHERRY

Sherry is made in the southern Spanish region of Andalucía, where the villages of Jerez de la Frontera, El Puerto de Santa María and Sanlúcar de Barrameda are affectionately known as the 'Sherry triangle'. The three key grapes; Palomino Fino, Moscatel and Pedro Ximénez produce a vast range of styles from bone dry Fino and Manzanilla, to complex Oloroso and Palo Cortado as well as deliciously sweet Pedro Ximénez. There is so much more waiting to be discovered than the bottle of Sherry tucked away in Granny's cupboard for Christmas!

	Inspired by the good old days when Fino would be consumed directly from cask, González Byass re-introduced in 2009 and have pioneered the En Rama style, the purest expression of the vine and the winery, of origin and ageing. Each year is a selection of the very best casks all hand-selected by Master Blender and Head Winemaker, Antonio Flores each contributing to the character of the final blend. The wine has an average age of about 5 years and is untamed, unfiltered, en rama. Best served with Iberico ham or Perelló olives.

	Referred to it as the "wild child of Jerez" by Master Blender and Head Winemaker, Antonio Flores, due to its mysterious ageing process from a full 12 years barrel maturation. A deliciously dry Sherry that is best described as having the nose of an Amontillado, and the palate of an Oloroso with an abundance of bitter orange, caramel, toffee and hazelnut. Serve with Manchego as well as Spanish cold cuts such as Chorizo or Cecina.
	González Byass 'Viña AB' Amontillado (75cl)	£14.58	£17.50	16.5%
	The best of both worlds as this Sherry is aged initially under flor, and then aged in controlled conditions for 12 years in American Oak. A dry Amontillado with hints of yeast and bread as well as further complex flavours of caramel, hazelnut and butterscotch.
	González Byass 'Alfonso' Oloroso Seco (75cl)	£14.58	£17.50	18%
	A dry and clean Oloroso with fragrant aromas of walnut and hazelnut as well as added leather and truffle notes due to 8 years ageing in American Oak. Best served chilled with cured meats, braised pork cheek or even a rich oxtail stew.
	González Byass 'Nectar' Pedro Ximénez (75cl)	£17.50	£21.00	15%
	As the name implies, this is a sweet style of Sherry made from 100% Pedro Ximénez. Smooth and velvety texture with luscious flavours of prunes, figs and dates. A wonderful accompaniment to sweet desserts and chocolate.
	González Byass 'Apostóles' (37.5cl)	£23.29	£27.95	20%
	A Palo Cortado from the VORS range, made from 87% Palomino and 13% Pedro Ximénez. The two grapes are aged for 12 years in oak casks separately, and then blended together for a further 18 years ageing. It is similar to Amontillado in style, yet with more complex and intense flavours of dried fruit, candied orange peel and toasted nuts. A great alternative to Sauternes with foie gras.
	González Byass 'Matusalem' (37.5cl)	£23.29	£27.95	20.5%
	A sweet Oloroso VORS made from 75% Palomino Fino and 25% Pedro Ximénez. After 30 years ageing, it has layers of incredibly complex flavours including spices, nuts, figs, and dried fruit. Enjoy with Christmas pudding, it's a match made in heaven.
	González Byass 'Noé' (37.5cl)	£23.00	£27.60	15.5%
	A full-flavoured and intensely sweet style of VORS. This is one of the world's rarest wines, which is the epitome of pure indulgence with notes of figs, raisins, and coffee with underlying cinnamon spice. Pour over vanilla ice cream or try with dark bitter chocolate.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Antonio Flores GONZÁLEZ BYASS

Describe yourself in 3 words...

Constant, creative, and bold.

How did you get started in the wine trade?

I was born in González Byass and followed in the footsteps of my father. The best start!

What has surprised you about being a winemaker?

Seeing, with Constancia wines, how the hard work and passage of time has created truly unique wines that clearly communicate their terroir while remaining loyal to the bodega's style.

Provide a brief description of the winery and vineyards:

The Palomino, Pedro Ximénez, and Moscatel vineyards, located in the Southwest of Spain, receive 300 days of sunshine a year with mild winters and hot summers. Fortunately, the white Albariza chalk soil is perfect for soaking up and holding the limited rainfall and the warm southeast wind and humid west wind keep the warehouse conditions perfect for the development and retention of flor, or yeast, a key stage for our signature Finos and Amontillados. The winery itself was founded in 1835 and remains family owned and run almost 200 years on.

What goals in winemaking are you still working to achieve?

Every year, after the harvest, begins a new cycle full of surprises and challenges. Searching for perfection is one of those challenges.

Can you explain how González Byass works in a mindful way throughout its vineyards and wineries?

González Byass owns 2,000 hectares of vineyards in nine of Spain's top wine-growing regions and in Chile and sustainable agriculture techniques are used in all of them. 20% of the total vineyards are organic and in 50% integrated crop management is in place. Biological vineyard treatments ensure biodiversity is maintained and we promote ground cover and tree planting to encourage the bird population, who can act as natural predators to insects.

González Byass' vines include indigenous varieties on the verge of extinction that have been coaxed back into production to preserve regional biodiversity. This work is in tandem with its efforts to protect local wildlife, such as placing nesting boxes in a number of its vineyards, creating adequate ecosystems to promote pollination by bees, and promoting reforestation efforts in all the regions where the company operates. Since water is essential for growing grapes and nurturing life, Gonzalez Byass employs sustainable irrigation techniques that use much less water in order to preserve this precious resource. We also re-use the water used in different winery processes and collect rainwater in reservoirs to use for irrigating. The wineries have closed circuits to avoid water loss, in the fermentation tank cooling systems and the bottling filter sterilization systems. Our workers attend courses on responsible consumption to ensure everyone from the ground up buys into this key philosophy.

Gonzalez Byass' ambition is to leave the lightest possible footprint on the environment. Consumers are becoming increasingly conscious of their impact on the planet and are trying to be more sustainable.

Is sustainability something you actively employ at the winery?

A philosophy that guides the day to day of Gonzalez Byass is its plan "5 + 5 Caring for the Planet". This covers everything from the tourist train that runs round the bodega going electric to vast solar parks capturing that renowned Spanish sunshine ensuring all the energy used at the winery is from 100% renewable resources. Gonzalez Byass' recent efforts have seen the replacement of plastic packaging tapes with paper ones, replacement of plastic in bottle caps with wood and cork, and adoption of more sustainable plastic alternatives like bioplastic made from sugarcane. These steps have been instrumental in helping to recover and recycle 99% of the waste generated. The company also buys cardboard boxes and wood sourced from certified forests in line with its commitment to preserve and regenerate natural resources.

How has climate change impacted your winemaking?

The wine maker is responsible for the creation and ageing of the wines as well as the vineyard management and its impact on the environment. We must opt for the minimum impact of these processes.

Tio Pepe is iconic, and the number one selling fino in the world, today sold in over 100 markets. What is next for Tio Pepe?

It is hard to say in an ever-changing sector; we created the first Sherry hotel so who knows! What we can say is that with the 6th generation coming through Tio Pepe will remain key. We are our origins, our brands are fundamentally linked to our culture and history, and we will continue to convey that through every element of our work.

What is your favourite restaurant, and why?

El Celler de Can Roca in Girona, without a doubt one of the best in the world.

Name your desert island dish and paired wine:

Jamón ibérico and Tío Pepe.

What is your favourite wine, and who would you share it with?

A glass of Amontillado with my father (if it was possible).

MAURY

Located in the Languedoc-Roussillon, Maury is the smallest, and one of the oldest appellations in the region. This 'Vin Doux Naturel' (Natural Sweet Wine) is made predominantly from Grenache Noir and blended along with Carignan, Mourvèdre and/or Syrah, and fortified with neutral grape spirit to stop fermentation and retain natural sweetness. Intense and complex with an abundance of blackcurrant, cassis as well as fig and prune with hints of added dark chocolate. A superb alternative to Ruby or Late Bottle Vintage Port, as well as Banyuls.

FORTIFIED MALBEC

Made in the same way as Port, yet with Malbec, rather than the traditional blend of Portuguese varietals. The use of classic fermentation methods achieves the required residual sugar level, which is then fortified with a neutral grape spirit and aged for just over two years in aged French oak. The result is rich, ripe, and complex fortified wine.

VERMOUTH

Vermouth is a fortified and aromatised wine, which originated in the city of Turin, Italy in the late 18th Century. Often flavoured with various botanicals from wormwood, clove and cinnamon spice to orange peel - it is excellent as an aperitif served neat, on the rocks, as well as used in cocktails... perfect for an alternative take on a Negroni!

MORE

Situated in Languedoc-Roussillon region in the south of France, Rivesaltes is nestled in between the Mediterranean Sea and the Pyrenées Mountains. Classified as a 'Vin Doux Naturel' (Natural Sweet Wine), they are made from Grenache Gris or Blanc, Muscat as well as Grenache Noir, and fortified with neutral grape spirit to stop fermentation and retain natural sweetness. Producers can choose to age the wine glass demi-johns (bonbonnes) outside for a year followed by maturation in oak barrels, creating rich and complex wines that are a great alternative to Port and Sherry, especially as a gift for special occasions.

Port is a fortified wine produced in the northern region of the Douro, Portugal. The majority of vineyards are located roughly 50 miles inland from the city of Porto in the Cima Corgo, Baixo Corgo and Douro Superior sub-regions. Port can be made from a blend of more than 80 permitted grapes, however, the main varieties for red wine are Touriga Franca, Touriga Nacional, Tinta Roriz, Tinta Barroca as well as Tinta Cão and for white wine Malvasia Fina and Gouveio. The grapes are crushed by foot in traditional stone lagares, which gently releases colour, tannin and flavour. Port can vary dramatically in style from clean and crisp White to nutty Tawny, fruity Reserve and Late Bottled Vintage as well as the powerful and most sought after, Vintage Port.

Tawny Ports undertake extensive ageing periods in wooden casks, exposing them to gentle and controlled oxidation. As a result, they gradually mellow to a golden-brown colour and develop complex and concentrated flavours of nuts, dried fruit, coffee and caramel. There are two styles of Tawny; a house style blend of recent vintages with no specific indication of age known as 'fine' or 'basic' Tawny, as well as older wines bottled and labelled as 10, 20, 30 and 40-year-old.

Single Quinta Vintage Ports are produced from a Port house's finest single estate or 'quinta' from one specific year (that is not a declaration). They are made in a very similar way to Vintage Port; where ageing takes place for 2-3 years in oak casks, followed by at least 10-15 years ageing in bottle. Single Quinta Vintage Port are usually more approachable and offer good value for money. As they are bottled with their sediment, they need to be decanted before drinking.

VINTAGE PORT

MORE

Vintage Port is a small fraction of total production; however, they are the finest examples of Port and are only declared once or twice per decade. It is the flagship wine for each house created from a blend finest vineyard plots from one single year. Vintage Port is aged for an average of 24-30 months in wooden casks, followed by then at least 15-20 years ageing in bottle. As Vintage Ports are bottled with their sediment, they need to be decanted before drinking.

SWEETIE CORNER

SHOP

At Bon Coeur, we believe that sweet and stickies are often under-appreciated and overlooked. From the iconic botrytis-affected wines of Sauternes, Barsac and Tokaji to the passito method of Recioto and straw wines of South Africa, as well as frozen Eiswein from Germany and ice cider from Sweden, and everything in between. We have a wonderful selection just waiting to be discovered...

LIGHT AND VIBRANT

Made with a range of grapes Sauvignon Blanc and Sémillon, to Furmint and Hárslevelű to name but a few, these wines are aromatic and vibrant with notes of lemon, apricot, and peach with touches of honey. Fresh, clean, and balanced on the mid-palate with a lovely, ethereal mouthfeel and uplifting acidity. A classic combination is Sauternes and strong blue cheese such as Roquefort... however, these wines work wonderfully serve chilled with oysters or foie gras, as well as with panna cotta and mille-feuille!

BRÄNNLAND – SWEDEN

Founded in 2010, Brännland Cider produces exceptional artisanal ice cider from a combination of orchards in Sweden; the winter apples are hand-picked in both their home county of Västerbotten on the Baltic seaboard, as well as from a specific, carefully selected grower in the heart of the Swedish apple country in the south. The production method is exactly the same as for ice wine, whereby apples are frozen during the depths of winter and thus concentrating the natural sugars and then in the Spring cider must is extracted (between 35-40 Brix), which is fermented slowly to create a wonderful, sweet yet balanced ice cider.
