Series Synopsis

The series follows Kiel detectives Klaus Borowski and Mila Sahin as they solve complex cases while navigating personal tensions.

Sahin often smooths things over between Borowski and others. Borowski is a brilliant but difficult loner, known for his unorthodox methods. Despite his prickly nature, the team knows they can count on him to show up where he's most needed – and least expected.

Inspector Borowski

Klaus Borowski

Police investigator.

"I believe in evidence and facts."

Borowski, a chief inspector with the KRIPO in Kiel, is a quiet lone wolf with a sharp mind and dry humour.

Though his methods are unconventional, he respects the law and knows his limits. Gruff but kind-hearted, he's the embodiment of Northern German sincerity.

Mila Sahin

Detective.

"I believe that everyone has the right to be heard."

Mila Sahin is Borowski's third assistant. The 28-year-old is a passionate boxer and brings her fighting spirit with her to work.

Sahin is not intimidated by authority or men. She is known for her empathy and razor-sharp mind.

Roland Schladitz

Borowski's and Sahin's Boss.

"We need to get onto that, guys. And pronto!"

Roland Schladitz is a dedicated commanding officer who often acts as a bridge between leadership and his team.

A longtime friend of Borowski, he cares deeply for his colleagues. Once shy and reserved, Schladitz has grown into a confident cop – balancing dedication, compassion, and a quirky sense of humour.
