PREFACE

Marka-e-Haq symbolizes the reiteration of the Nation's commitment and unshakable resolve to preserve its sovereignty and national dignity. On night 6/7 May 2025, in sheer hubristic miscalculation, India launched an attack on Pakistan's civilian infrastructure killing innocent men, women and children, in a blatant act of aggression. Pakistan blunted the aggression with strategic precision knocking Indians out of the skies and silencing their guns along the Line of Control. On 10th of May, in fair retribution to the unprovoked aggression, Pakistan launched Operation Bunyan-um-Marsoos (The Wall of Steel) that startled the Indians, leading them to scurry to international interlocutors for a ceasefire.

Pakistan's Armed Forces executed their mission with professionalism that comes through operational preparedness, technological expertise and a coordinated force application. Their confidence reflected the strength of military leadership and the clarity with which they interpreted the Pahalgam episode and India's strategic designs in the region. India's fighters, advanced drones and surveillance assets were swiftly neutralized reasserting Pakistan's credible deterrence based on state-of-the-art defense capability.

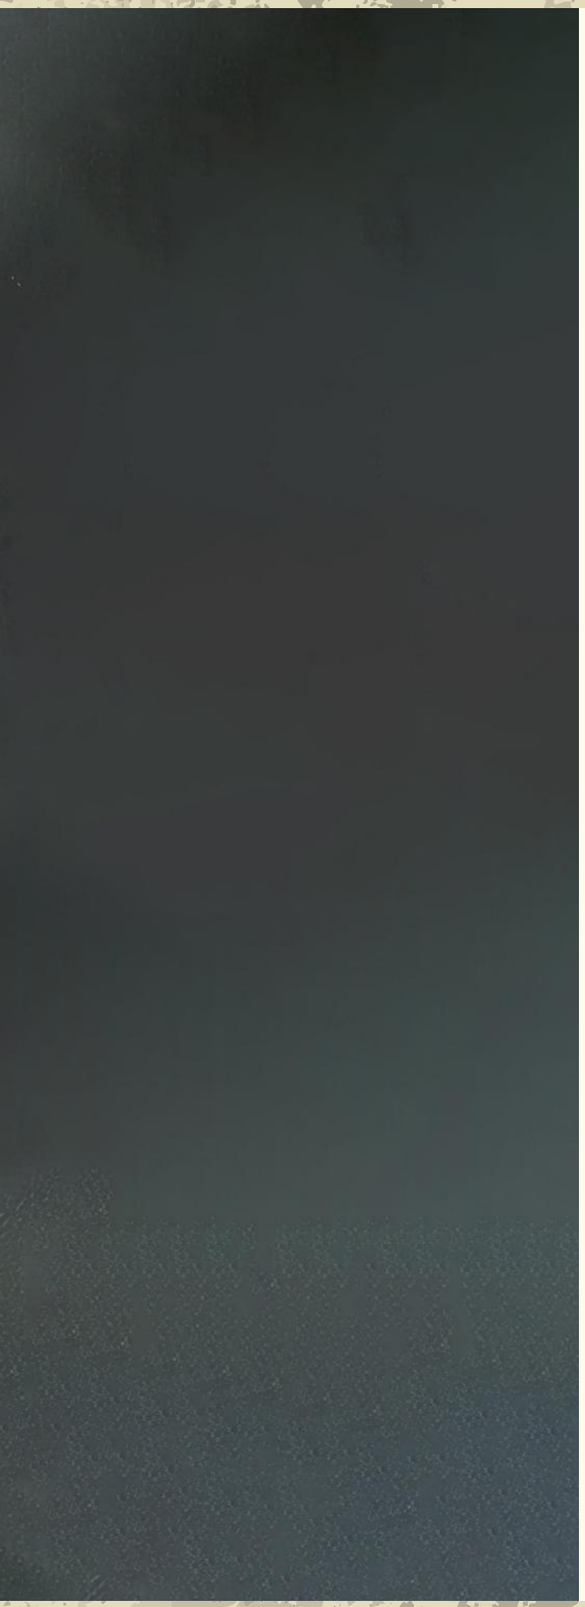

Marka-e-Haq does not symbolize only battlefield success; it was a moment when the entire nation stood as one - resilient, resolute, and united against uncalled for Indian attack. Citizens, State's machinery, and leadership spoke in one voice; Pakistan desires peace but will never tolerate aggression. From the streets to the command rooms and from the Parliament to the press, the nation displayed maturity, discipline, and unwavering confidence in its Armed Forces. This was a 'Whole of the Nation response'; grounded in international law, reinforced by moral conviction, and powered by the spirit of the people. The international community not only recognized Pakistan's military success but understood its strategic posture due to astute and deft diplomacy.

Military analysts view Marka-e-Haq as a textbook case study of modern conflict management - where tactical, operational and strategic brilliance was matched by national coherence amid responsibility expected out of a mature nuclear power. Pakistan did not seek escalation, it sought peace. And it achieved it through unity, through courage and through clarity of purpose. Marka-e-Haq will be remembered as the day when Pakistan, as one nation, stood firm and the world watched a country defend its truth with steel, spirit and dignity.

THE CREATION OF PAKISTAN

CARVING A HOMELAND

THE CREATION OF PAKISTAN

The eighteenth century marked the transition from a centralized Mughal polity to fragmented regional states. Economic rivalry, political opportunism, social insecurity and religious identity became an instrument for political mobilization. The Colonial Era fermented communal identity politics. For Muslims, the 1857 War of Independence proved to be a watershed event, resulting in severe repression and deepening political exclusion of Muslims in aftermath. Cultural differences between Hindus and Muslims grew manifolds. In 1885, Indian National Congress (INC) was formed as a secular and inclusive political platform. However, it gradually became dominated by Hindu elite, leading to a sense of alienation and under-representation among Muslims.

The partition of Bengal (1905) created a Muslim majority in Eastern Bengal, bringing to fore the political divide between Muslims and Hindus spurring, amongst other reasons, the formation of All India Muslim League at Dhaka in 1906. This accentuated separation of political paths of Hindus and Muslims reflecting social and cultural realities despite centuries of co-existence. In the succeeding years, tension between Hindus and Muslims grew due to insidious politics of Congress especially in the matter of revoking the Partition of Bengal and proposal for a new constitution with no separate electorate. When the RSS emerged in 1925 to champion Hindu supremacy, it further shattered the illusion of a shared national identity, pushing the Muslim League further to the idea of Pakistan as the only viable guarantee of Muslim security and autonomy. In 1930, in his Allahabad Address, Allama Iqbal presented this vision demanding a separate homeland for Muslims in the Northwestern Regions of India - the first formal expression of the "Two-Nation Theory". The historic Lahore Resolution by the Muslim League on 23 March 1940, called for independent homeland for Muslims in Muslim majority areas.

By August 1946, communal tensions escalated following the failure of British Cabinet Mission Plan, culminating in the Calcutta Riots, which were followed by widespread violence across India. By early 1947, despite brief attempts at reconciliation, negotiations continued to falter making it evident that partition was inevitable. On 3 June 1947, the British Government formally announced its plan to divide the Subcontinent and on 18 July 1947, the Independence Act was passed by the British Parliament. Finally, on 14 August 1947, Pakistan was established as an independent nation. After the partition in 1947, Pakistan faced severe hardships due to the unjust and unequal division of resources. Pakistan received only 17 percent of the total financial reserves and even that was partially withheld during the Kashmir Conflict, creating an immediate economic crisis for the new state. Most industrial centers, educational institutions and government offices remained in India, leaving Pakistan with minimal infrastructure to govern effectively.

Princely States of Kashmir, Junagarh and Hyderabad were forcefully annexed to India. Mass migration and communal violence led to a humanitarian crisis, with millions of refugees arriving in Pakistan without food, shelter and security. Trains and caravans carrying Muslim Refugees to Pakistan were attacked by Hindu mobs, killing thousands of refugees.

PAKISTAN-INDIA CONFLICTS

KASHMIR WAR
(1947 - 1948)

1948 — 1965

After partition, on 26 October 1947, Maharaja Hari Singh, signed the Instrument of Accession to India, against the will of majority Muslim population of Kashmir. Natives of Kashmir Valley and Gilgit-Baltistan along with Muslim Officers of British Army revolted against Maharaja's Dogra Forces for illegal annexation to India. Tribal youth from erstwhile Northwest Frontier Province (NWFP) entered Kashmir to support Kashmiri Muslims. They along with locals, succeeded in liberating Gilgit-Baltistan and part of Kashmir Valley from Dogra Forces. This was made possible due to the determination and courage of the brave hearts like Colonel Hassan Khan, Group Captain Shah Khan, Major Ehsan Khan, Subedar Major Babar Khan and Subedar Saifullah Baig. On 27 October 1947, Indian troops were airlifted into Kashmir Valley, marking the formal beginning of Indian military intervention in Kashmir. Pakistan Army moved to support Kashmiri people successfully stalling Indian Army advance into liberated areas due to indomitable resolve of heroes like Lieutenant Colonel Nausherwan Khan, Captain Raja Muhammad Sarwar and Naik Saif Ali Janjua.

The United Nation (UN) mediated ceasefire in January 1949, resulted in establishment of Ceasefire Line later known as the Line of Control (LoC). Though hostilities ended, the core dispute remained unresolved due to Indian intransigence. Not only did India fail to comply with UN directives, particularly regarding the withdrawal of troops and the organization of the plebiscite, it began a decades long effort to establish permanent control of the territory by force.

The War of 1965 was the second major conflict between Pakistan and India. In order to divert attention from the core issue of Kashmir, India launched an offensive against Mainland Pakistan on 6 September 1965. Pakistan Army and Air Force mobilized rapidly to defend key cities. A full-scale war spread across various fronts, including Kashmir, Punjab, and desert sector. Pakistan Army inflicted heavy losses on Indian troops, after intense battle in Lahore Sector. Brave sons of the soil like Major Raja Aziz Bhatti shattered Indian Army's dream of having a cup of tea in Lahore Gymkhana. Indian forces were eventually pushed back from the outskirts of the city. Sialkot Sector saw one of the largest tank battles since World War II, where Pakistan's 6 Armoured Division stopped the advance of Indian armoured formation in Chawinda.

Pakistani forces captured Khem Karan, Muna Bao Railway Station and significant Indian territory in desert sector. Pakistan Air Force (PAF) played a decisive role by launching daring air strikes deep into Indian territory, including Pathankot, Adampur and Halwara. PAF achieved air superiority in several sectors, despite being outnumbered, due to superior performance of pilots like MM Alam, who shot down five Indian aircraft in a minute. Pakistan Navy raided Indian Radar Station at Dwarka knocking it out of the battle.

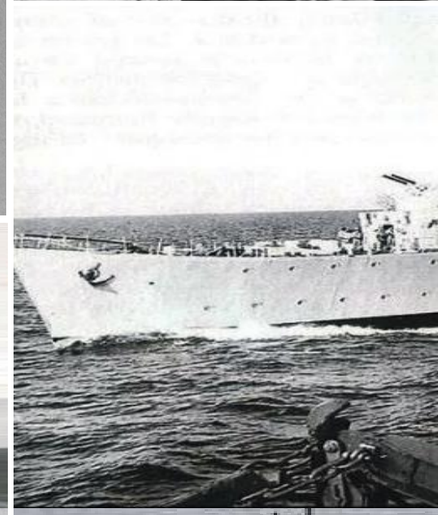

The war ended on 23 September 1965 with a UN mandated ceasefire. On 10 Jan 1966, Pakistan and India signed the Tashkent agreement bringing an end to the hostilities and reversion to pre-war positions of 5 August 1965. The 1965 War re-established that peace between India and Pakistan was not possible without resolution of the Kashmir dispute.

Having suffered a humiliating defeat in 1965, India focused on a sub-conventional strategy to disintegrate Pakistan laying foundation of a system of State sponsored proxies that continue to-date. Social and economic issues were capitalized to subvert young Bengali minds against the State. An insurgent organization, Mukti Bahini was created by serving Indian military personnel. Mukti Bahini received training, equipment, funding and guidance to carry out sabotage and subversive activities in East Pakistan. A Control Headquarter was established in Indian Army's Eastern Command at Calcutta under Rameshwarnath Kao, first Director of the Research and Analysis Wing (R&AW). Six Training Sectors were established, each commanded by a Brigadier, to organize, train and equip Mukti Bahini rebels. Each Sector was organized into a number of training camps, where over 100,000 rebels were trained. Serving Indian Army officers accompanied the rebels in civilian clothes inside East Pakistan to undertake mass sabotage activities resulting in deaths of tens of thousands of innocent men, women and children.

Bengali Leaders were subverted to disrupt political process in East Pakistan furthering India's objectives of disintegrating the country. Meanwhile, the political leadership in West Pakistan failed to bring about a settlement and the Eastern Wing went into a state of civil war. Armed conflict started in March 1971 and intensified in the last week of November when Indira Gandhi's Government ordered its Regular Armed Forces to move in support of Mukti Bahini, which had by then revolted against the State.

MISSION R&AW By R.K. Yadav (RAW Chief)

"RAW was formed on 21st September 1968 under the guidance of its first Director, Rameshwarnath Kao with a view to DISINTEGRATE PAKISTAN. He was also the brain behind the so-called War of Liberation in 1971. Rameshwarnath Kao created the Mukti Bahini guerrilla force from 1 lakh Bangladeshi refugees in India and engineered the series of events that led to the breakup of Pakistan." "Mission R&AW" (Research & Analysis Wing)

"By the summer of 1971, along with the hundreds of camps for refugees, India was also hosting training camps for Bengali guerrillas known as Mukti Bahinis."
Ramachandra Guha (Indian Historian & Writer)

War began on 21 November 1971, when India launched a large scale military assault. Pakistani ground forces were numerically outnumbered in the East; 45,000 pitched against 200,000 Indians where the local environment had also become openly hostile. Pakistan's Armed Forces conducted themselves with valour and resilience in the face of great odds. The troops presented a brave account of themselves on the battlefield. Numerous acts of valour emerged in battles of Jessore, Hilli, and Sylhet.

On the Western Front, Pakistan's Military launched effective defensive operations, successfully defeating Indian efforts. Pakistan Navy's Submarine, Ghazi managed to break naval blockade of East Pakistan by deterring and pushing back the Indian Aircraft Carrier, Vikrant to Andaman Island and laid mines to disrupt Indian shipping off the coast of Vishaka Patnam.

Despite heroic efforts of Eastern Garrison, the Eastern Wing capitulated concluding the war on 16 December 1971. The Simla Agreement, signed in 1972, served as the foundation for post war engagement, emphasizing peaceful bilateral resolution of disputes, particularly the Kashmir issue.

INDIAN SPONSORED SINDHUDESH MOVEMENT

SEPARATIST MOVEMENT IN SINDH

Starting in 1970s, India began financial, logistical, and ideological backing to Sindhi nationalist movements and groups, notably the Jeay Sindh Mahaz (JSM), founded in 1972, followed by Jeay Sindh Qaumi Mahaz (JSQM), Jeay Sindh Muttahida Mahaz (JSMM) and Sindhudesh Liberation Army (SLA). These handful groups sought separation from Pakistan to form independent Sindhudesh. RAW facilitated the militant wing SLA by training them in camps established in India's Rajasthan and Gujarat, where they received guerrilla warfare training. SLA later conducted attacks on railway tracks and gas pipelines in Sindh Province. India also provided safe havens to Sindhi Separatist Leaders abroad and conducted diplomatic lobbying to raise so-called human rights concerns against Pakistan. Lately, India has made sinister efforts to associate these elements with similar sinister organizations operating in other provinces under its tutelage.

INDIAN VENTURE INTO SIACHIN GLACIER

The Siachen Conflict began in April 1984 due to India's illegal military occupation of the Siachen Glacier beyond Point NJ-9842, the last demarcated point on the map as per Karachi Agreement 1949. According to the agreement the line runs north from NJ-9842 to the glaciers, implying Siachen falls in Gilgit-Baltistan, which was reaffirmed in 1972 Simla Agreement. Till early 1980s, permanent deployment of troops remained restricted only along the demarcated line of control, South of Point NJ-9842. Even during wars of 1965 and 1971, no movement of troops was resorted to from either side. On 13 April 1984, India unprovoked and unilaterally, launched operation Maghdoot and occupied heights on Saltoro Ridge including Sia La and Bilafond La Passes, overlooking the Siachen Glacier from South-West.

Pakistan swiftly mobilized and secured the glacier's western approaches along with Gyong La and Yarma La Passes. The Convoy Saddle was also occupied, blocking access route to the K2. This move halted India from advancing further. A crucial component of this rapid response was Pakistan Army Aviation, carrying out high altitude reconnaissance, troop insertions, casualty evacuations and supply operations which required extraordinary skill and endurance. Army Aviation's contribution proved vital in sustaining forward positions during the critical early phase.

OPERATION BRASSTACKS

Operation Brasstacks was a massive Indian military exercise conducted between November 1986 and March 1987 in the deserts of Rajasthan, close to Pakistan's border. It remains one of the largest mobilization of troops in South Asia after 1947, involving over 400,000 soldiers, armoured and mechanized formations, artillery and advanced weaponry. Officially described as a "routine exercise" to test new concepts of mechanized warfare, its scale, location, and timing triggered one of the most serious crisis between the two countries short of actual war.

Brasstacks was not merely a defensive drill but a coercive strategy aimed at testing Islamabad's military resolve. The exercise coincided with India's development of new war-fighting doctrines and was preparation for a potential offensive to dismember Pakistan, particularly at a time when Pakistan was deeply engaged along Western Border. The massive deployment so close to the international border contradicted India's declared intentions and signaled an aggressive posture.

Pakistan responded with a counter-mobilization of its own forces in Sindh and Punjab, heightening tensions. Both armies stood in full readiness, raising fears of a large-scale war. Diplomatically, the crisis attracted international concern, with the United States and other powers quietly urging restraint on both sides. The standoff eased only after high-level talks between Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and Pakistani President General Zia-ul-Haq. Zia's famous "cricket diplomacy" visit to Jaipur in February 1987 played a major role in defusing tensions.

Operation Brasstacks highlighted the volatility of South Asia's security environment, where large-scale exercises could rapidly escalate into confrontation. It also underscored Pakistan's vigilance against India's evolving doctrines and intentions, while demonstrating the thin margin for error in a nuclearizing subcontinent.

1999

STORIES OF VALOUR WRITTEN IN COURAGE

Kargil Valley comprises of a cluster of most rugged, inhospitable and difficult to conquer mountain peaks and ridges. A part of the valley was liberated by Freedom Fighters during Kashmir Uprising from 1947 - 1948 but was later recaptured by the Indian Army. Kashmiris and native of Gilgit Baltistan continued to manifest their resolve for freedom of lost territory. In early 1999, this dispute took another turn, resulting in intense hostilities between Pakistan and India. By April 1999, India carried out blatant aggressions by violating the sanctity of LoC at various locations. Consequently, Pakistan Army deployed troops at tactically dominating positions and inflicted heavy casualties on Indian forces. Pakistan Army, owing to the heroes like Captain Karnal Sher Khan and Havaldar Lalak Jan, displayed extraordinary tenacity and held out against overwhelming odds. This limited war ended in mid-July 1999 and both armies reverted to pre-war positions.

CHITTISINGHPURA MASSACRE OF SIKH COMMUNITY (2000)

THE UGLY FACE OF INDIA

Indian soldiers, on 20 March 2000, gathered 35 Sikh men from their houses in the village of Chittisinghpura in Anantnag District of IIOJK, lined them up and shot them dead in a brutal execution style killing. The attack took place during US President Bill Clinton's visit to India. Indian Army claimed that these were militants disguised in Indian Military Uniforms. Aim of the attack was to portray; indigenous Kashmiri Freedom Fighters as terrorists and Pakistan as their supporter, instill fear in Sikh Community against Muslims and particularly Pakistan and to mold US stance on Kashmir and Pakistan. Indian Military subsequently killed five innocent Kashmiris in Pathribal in a fake encounter, claiming them to be individuals responsible for the massacre. A Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) investigation later confirmed innocence of the five men killed, leading to major outrage. The massacre remains one of the worst targeted attacks on Sikhs in Kashmir, deepening mistrust between communities.

ATTACK ON INDIAN PARLIAMENT

Following an attack on the Parliament, which India quickly blamed on Pakistan, India ordered mobilisation of troops. Operation Parakram became India's largest deployment, of nearly 500,000 troops, along the international border and the Line of Control (LoC). The mobilization lasted ten months, making it one of the longest military standoffs between the two nuclear-armed neighbors.

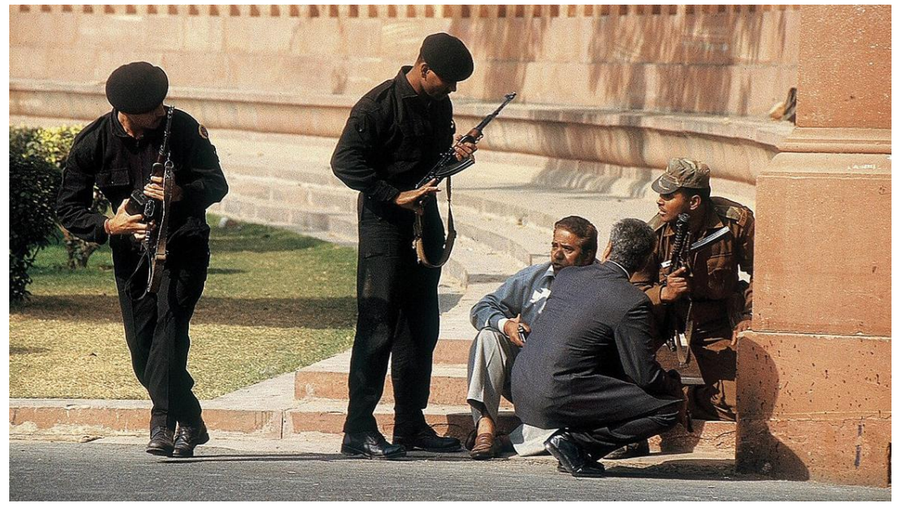

India's stated objective was to apply military pressure on Pakistan to curb cross-border terrorism. However, the massive movement of troops exposed limitations in India's war preparedness and doctrine. The deployment took several weeks to complete, forfeiting any chance of strategic surprise. By the time Indian forces were in position, Pakistan had already mobilized and fortified its defenses. This delay made a quick, punitive strike—the supposed goal of coercive diplomacy—militarily unfeasible.

Pakistan responded firmly by positioning its own forces and warning of full retaliation in case of aggression. The risk of escalation into nuclear conflict drew international concern. The United States and other global actors intervened diplomatically, pressing both sides to exercise restraint. Despite several months of tense brinkmanship, India ultimately refrained from launching an offensive.

The operation officially ended in October 2002, after heavy costs in resources and manpower. More than 700 Indian soldiers reportedly died in accidents, mine blasts, and harsh conditions during the prolonged deployment—without achieving any concrete strategic outcome.

Operation Parakram is widely regarded as a failure in Indian strategic circles. It demonstrated the inadequacy of India's slow mobilization model and directly influenced the evolution of the "Cold Start" doctrine, which envisioned faster, limited strikes against Pakistan in future conflicts. For Pakistan, the crisis reaffirmed the effectiveness of deterrence and the stabilizing role of nuclear parity in South Asia.

BOMBING OF SAMJHAUTA EXPRESS

(2007)

The bombing on 18 February 2007, which killed 68 people, mostly Pakistani civilians, came under scrutiny, with mounting evidence, suggesting that the attack was a false flag operation orchestrated by extremist elements within India. While Indian authorities initially attempted to blame Pakistani based groups, the narrative began to unravel when investigations revealed links to Hindu extremists, including members of groups associated with the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS). The arrest and confession of Lieutenant Colonel Shrikant Purohit and Swami Aseemanand, figures tied to Hindu radical networks, exposed deep contradictions in the Indian State's original claims. Aseemanand's own confession, later controversially retracted, described meetings and planning sessions for the attack. Yet despite this, India's judicial system failed to secure convictions, and all accused were eventually acquitted in 2019, citing lack of evidence, a highly suspicious outcome given the earlier investigative findings. The sudden shift in the investigative focus, lack of political will to pursue Hindu extremist links and the erasure of key testimonies suggest deliberate suppression of the truth. These inconsistencies point to a broader strategy of scapegoating Pakistan while shielding domestic perpetrators, reinforcing the argument that the Samjhauta Express Attack was not just a failure of security, but a state-enabled operation to serve communal and political ends.

URI FALSE FLAG OPERATION

2016

The attack on 18 September 2016 on Indian Army's Brigade Headquarters in Uri, resulting in deaths of 19 Indian soldiers, was immediately blamed on Pakistan by the Indian Government. Investigations revealed serious gaps in the official Indian narrative proving it to be a politically motivated false flag operation. The attack occurred just days after growing unrest in Kashmir following the martyrdom of Burhan Wani. Incident provided a timely diversion and justification for aggressive military posturing by India. Despite Uri being one of the most fortified Army installations near the LoC, the attackers breached it with ease, raising eyebrows over the security lapses. Investigative voices like Pravin Sawhney and former military officers questioned how militants could carry out such a sophisticated attack without insider assistance, especially when intelligence agencies issued multiple warnings about possible strikes in the area. The rapid attribution of blame to Pakistan within hours and without a thorough investigation suggested a pre-set narrative rather than evidence-based conclusions. India's subsequent so-called "Surgical Strikes", which failed miserably, were heavily politicized, proving that the Uri Attack was exploited to boost nationalist sentiment and serve domestic political interests. The lack of transparency, ease of access by the terrorists and security failures, all point to the fact that the Uri Attack was facilitated and strategically used to escalate tensions and shift public focus.

PULWAMA FALSE FLAG OPERATION

On 14 February 2019, a deadly attack in Pulwama, IIOJK, killed over 40 Indian paramilitary personnel. Blamed immediately on Pakistan, the incident is now widely regarded as a false flag operation staged for electoral and strategic gains. Coming just weeks before Indian general elections, it generated nationalist fervor and provided the ruling party with justification for the controversial Balakot airstrikes.

Multiple inconsistencies surround the attack. The alleged bomber, Adil Ahmad Dar, had been in custody by Indian Authorities a year earlier, raising questions about his re-emergence. Authorities never explained how 300 kilograms of explosives were sourced and transported, nor did they produce credible forensic evidence. Former J&K police officer Davinder Singh—later arrested for escorting militants and previously implicated in the 2001 Parliament attack—was never properly investigated. In 2023, former Governor Satya Pal Malik, who later died under mysterious circumstances, admitted Pulwama was the result of "intelligence and security failure" and accused the central government of suppressing facts.

PAKISTAN-INDIA STANDOFF

India used the incident to escalate hostilities. On 26 February, it launched "Operation Bandar," violating Pakistani airspace and targeting civilian areas under the guise of hitting militant camps. Pakistan responded the next day with "Operation Swift Retort," striking Indian military positions across the LoC and downing two Indian aircraft. One pilot, Wing Commander Abhinandan, was captured and later released in a goodwill gesture, reinforcing Pakistan's commitment to peace.

Indian claims of destroying terrorist camps were debunked after Pakistan invited foreign diplomats and journalists to inspect the sites, where no evidence of militant infrastructure was found. The episode exposed how India manufactures crisis to advance political agendas while sustaining its Hindutva-driven project of destabilizing Pakistan through propaganda and covert support to separatist movements.

& Proxy War

INDIAN STATE SPONSORED TERRORISM & PROXY WAR

EXPLOITATION OF UNREST IN BALOCHISTAN

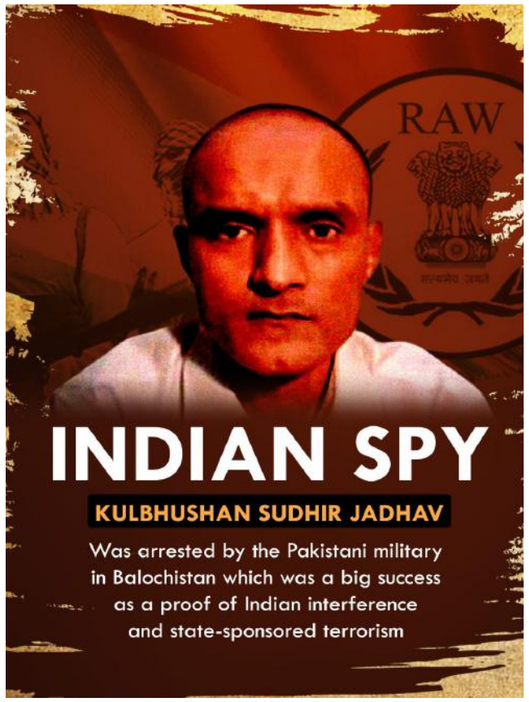

India has long considered Balochistan a strategic pressure point against Pakistan. Exploiting governance gaps, ethnic grievances, and economic disparities in the province, R&AW has worked to fuel separatism and create instability that serves India's broader regional goals. The primary objective behind India's involvement is to counter Pakistan's stance on Kashmir by opening a new front, to disrupt the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) and to weaken Pakistan internally without engaging in direct military confrontation. This hybrid warfare approach allows India to pursue strategic gains while avoiding the costs of conventional war.

Evidence of R&AW's operations is substantial. The arrest of Kulbhushan Jadhav in 2016 exposed a sophisticated network tasked with coordinating sabotage and militancy in Balochistan and Karachi. Financial trails, recovered communication devices, and confessional statements point to R&AW's role in funding and training insurgent outfits such as the BLA, BRA, and BLF. These groups have targeted security forces, critical infrastructure, and Chinese engineers working on CPEC projects. R&AW has used Afghan territory as a base for training camps and logistical support, often leveraging its influence over Afghan intelligence networks. Illegal conduits are in use for transfer of funds through informal banking systems.

India's strategy is no longer confined to covert operations. Prime Minister Narendra Modi's 2016 Independence Day speech, where he openly mentioned Balochistan, signalled a shift toward political endorsement of separatist narratives. This move aligns with Ajit Doval's "offensive defense" doctrine, which advocates exploiting Pakistan's internal vulnerabilities as a counter to its support for Kashmir. Baloch Proxies now find greater voice in Europe and International Organisations peddling the Indian narrative.

India's support for insurgents is long-term and integrated into its broader regional policy. The objective is clear: fragment Pakistan, disrupt its economic lifelines, and isolate it diplomatically.

ABETTING TERRORISM IN KHYBER PAKHTUNKHWA

Indian diabolical maneuvering against Pakistan in its West can be traced back to Soviet Invasion of Afghanistan in 1979, when it backed the Pro-Soviet and Anti-Pakistan regime of Communist People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan (PDPA). During Taliban's Government from 1996 -2001 India also supported Northern Alliance with intelligence, arms and funding to counter Pakistan's efforts for securing its Western borders. Indian efforts to reduce Pakistan's leverage and increase its influence in Afghanistan continued after US led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) toppled Taliban Government in 2001.

During Karzai and Ghani era India invested 3 billion Dollars in Afghanistan for construction of infrastructure like Zaranj - Delaram Highway, connecting the Iranian port of Chabahar to Afghanistan and Central Asia, bypassing Pakistan. This was aimed to increase its economic presence and reduce Pakistan's role as a key transit route. It also trained officer and men of Afghan National Army and National Directorate of Security (NDS) in India, brainwashing them and inducing hatred against Pakistan. India used its consulates in Jalalabad, Kandahar, Herat and Mazar-i-Sharif to fund, train, arm and direct operations of Anti-Pakistan terrorist groups in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan. These terrorist groups began attacking places of worship, schools, markets, hotels, judicial compounds and political gatherings; sparing no caste, creed, age or gender. Their violence against defenseless civilians; including women and children, revealed barbaric, uncivilized and dreadful character of their handlers sitting across the borders in East and West. The most horrific and bloody attack was on Army Public School in Peshawar on 16 December 2014, where more than 140 individuals were killed, of whom at least 134 were students. They purposefully selected this date to maximize the agony of Pakistani people in the context of 1971 War.

Pakistan Army with support of the nation and the government rooted out the menace in a series of military operations namely, Al-Mizan, Rah-e-Haq, Rah-e-Rast, Rah-e-Nijat, Zarb-e-Azb, and Radd-ul-Fasad with the strategy of clear, hold, build and transfer under the National Action Plan (NAP). Pakistan Army with the help of government carried out massive reconstruction and rehabilitation effort to resettle around 2.5 million Internally Displaced People (IDP), restored governance, generated economic activities, merged erstwhile Federally Administered Tribal Areas (FATA) into Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province and fenced the Pak-Afghan Border to curb the chances of terrorist resurgence.

Tehrik-e-Taliban Afghanistan (TTA) took over the government in 2021 after abrupt withdrawal of US Forces from Afghanistan, leaving behind colossal amount of weapon and equipment at the disposal of TTA Government. International isolation, lack of funds and resultant loose control of the government over complete country provided opportunity to India to reassert its influence on the disarrayed and defunct terrorist groups, especially the TTP, helping them reorganize and resurge in the region. The revitalized TTP managed to creep inside Pakistani territory, carryout terrorist attacks and flee to safe heavens inside Afghanistan.

Pakistan under the operation Azm-e-Istehkam exerted diplomatic pressure on Afghan Government to prevent use of its soil against Pakistan. Besides internal measures, Pakistan has continuously exposed Indian state sponsored terrorism at international forums by presenting dossiers and sharing intelligence with major countries.

THE INCIDENT

ATTACK STARTS

AN ORCHESTRATED DECEPTION

The domestic political and social circumstances and resultant fading influence of the Bharatia Janata Party (BJP) drove the incumbent Government to orchestrate yet another false flag terrorist attack on 22 April 2025. This time they targeted innocent civilian tourists in Baisaran Meadow, a tourist spot, 5 - 6 kilometers away from Pahalgam in IIOJK. The armed gunmen in Indian Military Uniforms and helmet-mounted cameras killed approximately 26 and injured more than 20 individuals. Indian authorities, just after 10 minutes, filed a First Information Report (FIR) in the local police station against unknown terrorists working on behest of their handlers across the border, clearly implicating Pakistan for sponsoring the attack. This behavior was a continuity of a pattern of staging false flag operations, notably Uri (2016) and Pulwama (2019), to distract Indians from domestic political challenges. This incident, besides multiple other staged encounters, was politically motivated and executed by a criminalized military institution, which has been unfortunately saffronized, to boost BJP's political prospects. Just prior to key elections in Bihar, Pahalgam, with gaping holes in its playout, promptly got questioned both by Indian public and international observers.

ATTACK ENDS

INDIAN PROPAGANDA

PERCEPTION BUILDING FOR ACTION AGAINST PAKISTAN

Without any investigation and providing credible evidence, the Indian Government immediately attributed the attack to Pakistan. Indian media readily took the line and created an Anti-Pakistan hype. This pattern was a page out of BJPs playbook of anti-Pakistan mantra repeated many-a-times in the past. Safronization and BJPization of institutions has narrowed their strategic discourse in a Hindutva driven framework that prioritizes ideological supremacy over pragmatic analysis and undermines institutional objectivity. Despite saner voices coming out from within Indian strategic community, politicians and civil society along with the ruling janta continued on its flawed plan.

PAKISTAN'S UNYIELDING REBUTTAL TO INDIA'S PROPAGANDA OFFENSIVE

Pakistan's leaders, including Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif, condemned the attack and called for a neutral and transparent international investigation into the incident, rejecting India's attribution of blame without formal inquiry. India however, persisted on its selected irrational course and the suggestion was never responded to. The Senate similarly passed a resolution rejecting India's allegations as politically motivated. Pakistan's mainstream media and the social media warriors successfully debunked Indian narrative. Inconsistencies like; presence of over 900,000 security personnel in IIOJK, 200 kilometers distance between the LoC and the location of the attack, registration of an FIR within ten minutes, claim by a little-known terrorist group and then its disowning of the attack, absence of security and many other aspects, were highlighted in front of the international observers. These questions raised by Pakistanis about the credibility of the narrative were never answered by the Indian Ruling Troika. As late as 28 July 2025, ex Home Minster Chidambarum stated that Indian National Intelligence Agency has not concluded its investigation and linkage of Pahalgam terrorists with Pakistan has not been established yet. The incident was orchestrated, to solicit internal political advantage, externalize serious internal issues and oppression by the Government.

"On the Contrary our eastern neighbor continues a pattern of exploitation leveling baseless allegations and false acquisition without credible investigation or verifiable evidence. The recent tragedy of Pahalgam is yet another example of this perpetual blame game which must come to a grinding halt. And now continue with its role as a responsible country, Pakistan is open to participate in any neutral, transparent and credible investigation."

Prime Minister of Pakistan Speech
at PMA Passing Out Parade (26 April 2025)

UNWAVERING RESOLVE AGAINST INDIAN INTIMIDATION

Following the Pahalgam incident, India suspended Indus Water Treaty unilaterally, downgraded diplomatic ties and suspended visa services. These actions aimed to intimidate Pakistan and reinforce the propaganda unleashed through its media to shape domestic perspective. Pakistan responded in kind after National Security Committee Meeting on 24 April 2025, by threatening to suspend Simla Agreement, downgrading diplomatic ties, closing its airspace and the land border, and suspending all trades with India. Indian Prime Minister, on 29 April 2025, granted the Armed Forces full operational autonomy to respond as they deemed necessary. Indian aircrafts conducted patrolling along the LoC in IIOJK on night of 29 - 30 April 2025. Sensing Indian nefarious designs of cross border aggression, Pakistan's Armed Forces displayed resolve and maintained readiness on all fronts. India was warned unequivocally by the Director General of Inter Services Public Relations (ISPR) that "we are ready, don't test us". Whole nation came out in support of its Armed Forces, against Indian assumption of division in the society, giving unified and resolute response to Indian provocations. The civil-military institutions, political leadership, and citizenry coalesced, articulating a collective stance that we do not provoke, but we will not be cowed down.

Indian Armed Forces, remaining true to their legacy of treachery, on the night of 6 - 7 May 2025, carried out missile strikes against civilian infrastructure and places of worship in Bahawalpur, Muridke and Muzaffarabad. These illegal strikes damaged civilian infrastructure and places of worship while killing innocent civilians including women and children. One of India's defense analysts later criticized the use of hi-end military assets against non-military targets. The attacks were launched by Indian aircrafts while remaining inside their territory, anticipating no response from Pakistan – another wrong assumption.

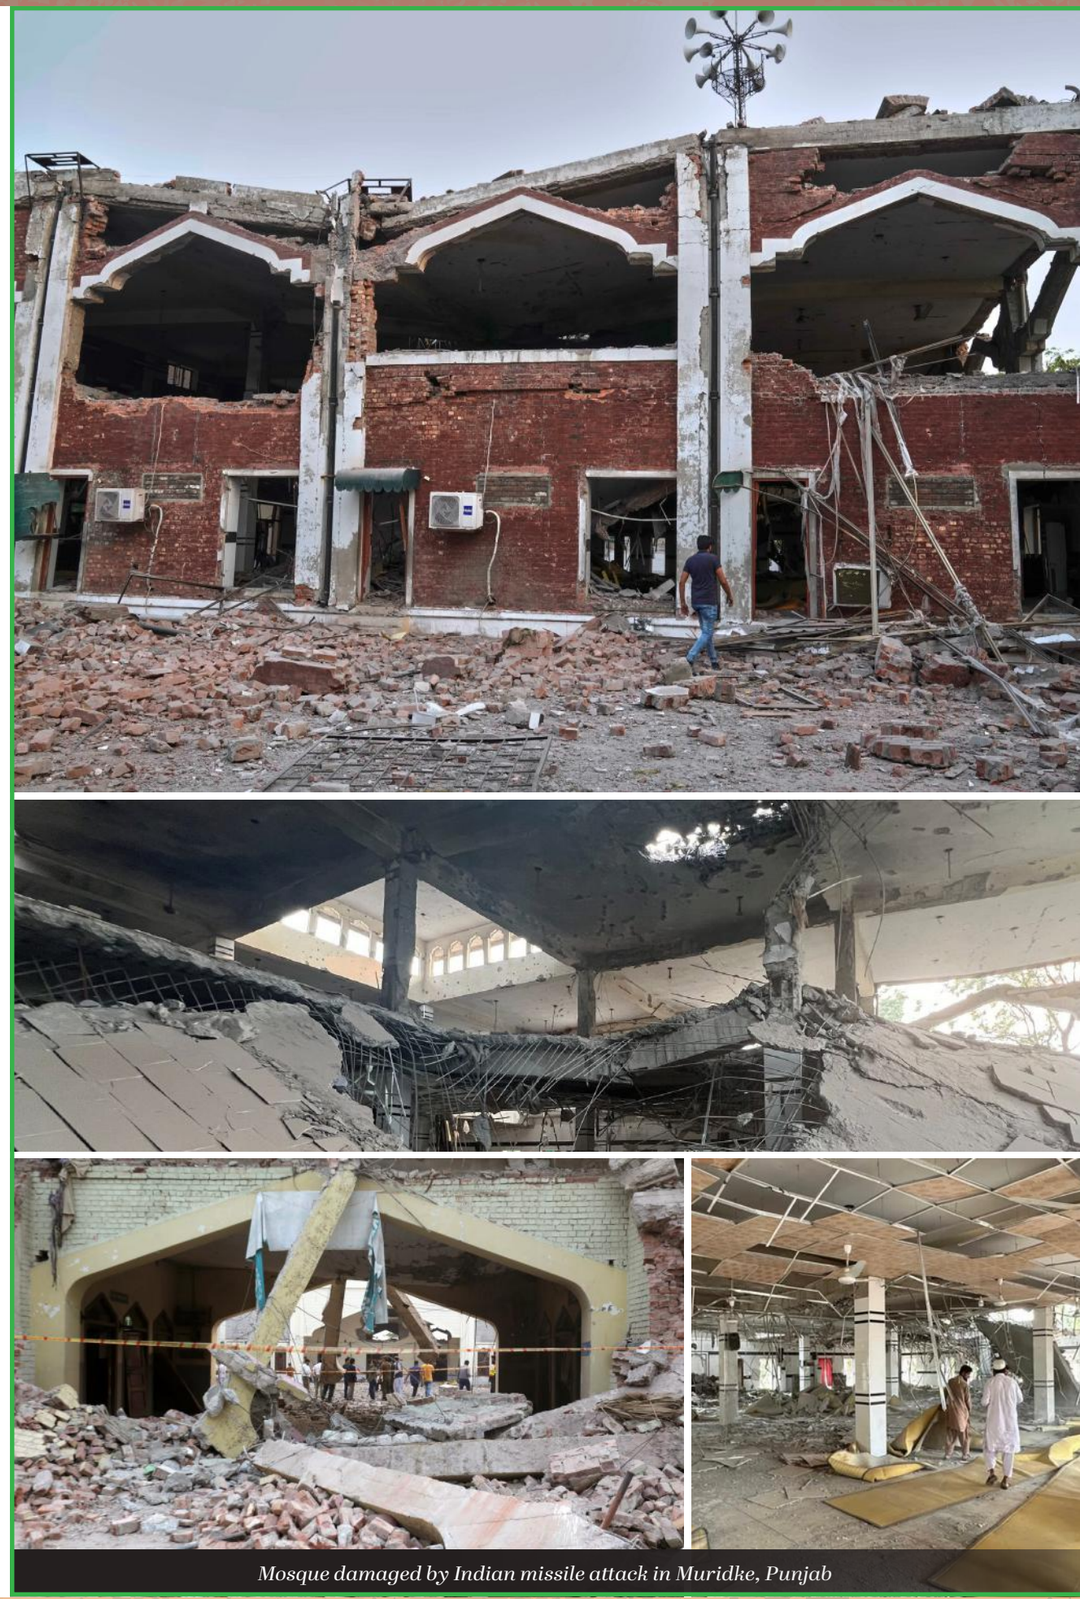

"India has committed a blatant mistake by resorting to aggression, it will surely have to pay the price for it. By the grace of Almighty Allah, we are a nation of brave people firm in our resolve like steel. Our sons have emerged strong from the battlefield ever ready to fight till the last drop of blood for the honor and protection of our homeland. We pledge that every single drop of our martyrs' blood will be avenged insha Allah. Pakistan knows how to give a crushing response in its defence for the dignity, sovereignty, and security of Pakistan. The Armed forces and the people stand united as one."

CRUSHING INDIAN AGGRESSION SEVEN ZERO

As Indian attack unfolded, the largest and the World's first Beyond Visual Range (BVR) air battle involving 120 fighters from both sides took place on night of 6 - 7 May 2025. The battle included advance 4.5 generation fighters, Airborne Early Warning and Control System (AEWACS) and electronic warfare platforms. PAF asserted its control over the skies shooting down seven Indian jets, including Rafales, Su-30, MiG-29 and Mirage aircrafts without suffering any loss to its assets. It demonstrated exceptional professionalism and achieved air superiority. That fateful night, PAF had locked innumerable Indian Fighters but exercised strategic restraint in order to maintain proportionality in its response. In a press conference on 7 May 2025, DG ISPR took the Nation into confidence enumerating the damage to civilian infrastructure and loss of innocent human lives. The World was awed by the losses inflicted on Indian Airforce, the famous phrase IAF vs PAF; 6-Nil reverberated across media initially and later it was revealed that the number of Indian aircraft destroyed were 7. DG ISPR publicly cautioned India, that there will be a just retribution at a place and time of choosing to the illegal and unjustified attack.

INDIAN DRONE ATTACKS

THE SOFT AND THE HARD KILLS

IAF, having suffered heavy loses and unable to fathom what hit them, lost the heart to take to the air. IAF was grounded, and remained so for the next 48 hours, giving Pakistan a clear edge in the skies. Indians then resorted to use of drones to target Pakistani military installations and high value assets. These drones were initially shot down with the help of Air Defense Guns but subsequently rained down to the ground in Pakistani villages due to successful jamming by the Electronic Warfare Units of Pakistan Army. Social media platforms buzzed with the footages of villagers chasing and shooting down drones with shotguns, alongside Civil Armed Forces Personnel. This bold and reckless spectacle, beside inducing psychological impact on Indian public, frustrated Indian Military, forcing them to escalate further. Simultaneously, Pakistan's Civil and Military Spokespersons warned India again for further escalation and stated in clear terms regarding Pakistan's resolve and capability to respond effectively.

"We are Fully Capable of Facing any Threats and Aggression and also have the Resolve to Teach Aggressors a Lesson."

THE PERPLEXING PHANTOM DEFENCE BY INDIA

By the morning of 8 May, Indians were humiliated; not only had their narrative fallen apart, but their Armed Forces had also utterly failed to attain their objectives and were by now under sharp criticism both inland and abroad. IAF had lost the courage to take to the skies, while the IN tucked into harbour. The situation along the line of control was no different where they were suffering heavy casualties due to precision targeting by own troops. At this point, the Indians pulled out another gimmick, the world's first; their media went into a new frenzy reporting swarm attacks by Pakistani drones and missile attacks. The attacks were reported to have been successfully defended by Indian AD. The drama of a phantom defence continued to unfold till late hours of the night and into the next day, presumably attempting to offer Pakistan an exit point in the conflict. The drama was rejected by Pakistan reminding India that a fair retribution would be given.

US President Trump offers to mediate Pakistan-India crisis

Amid India's unrelenting provocative measures following its reckless missile attacks on civilian targets in Pakistan, Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif told US Secretary of State Marco Rubio that 'Pakistan reserves the right to act in self-defence.' Premier Sharif received a telephone call from Secretary Rubio on Thursday evening in which they discussed the evolving situation in the South Asian region, according to a statement from the Prime Minister's Office.

The development came on a day when Pakistan's military continued to respond with both precision and restraint. 'Our nation is united in faith and resolve in the defence of its sovereignty,' he said.

PAK ESCALATES, INDIA STRIKES BACK

India hits back after thwarting Pak attack on military sites near the border using missiles and drones; reports say PAF jet shot down

Ravi Krishnan Khajuria and Rahul Singh

JAMMU/NEW DELHI: India on Thursday night repelled multiple Pakistani strikes in Jammu & Kashmir, Punjab, Rajasthan and Gujarat, and clamped a blackout across a wide swathe of the western border, as Islamabad stepped up hostilities hours after New Delhi issued a stern warning against any escalation.

There were unconfirmed reports of Pakistani aircraft, including at least one F-16, being downed and at least one pilot being captured by Indian forces. There were also unconfirmed reports late in the evening that India was using drones to target military locations in Sialkot, Lahore and possibly Islamabad, as a response to the Pakistani strikes.

The shower of drone and missile strikes on military sites seen on Thursday – India had thwarted Pakistani attacks on 15 places the night before – represented the worst face-off between the two nuclear-armed neighbours in decades and ratcheted up fears of a full-blown conflict. It came a day after India's Operation Sindoor struck nine terror targets in Pakistan and Pakistan Occupied Kashmir.

Eight Pakistani missiles were intercepted at Sarwari, Samba, RS Pura and Arnia in the Jammu region, defence officials said, as India's S400 air defence system shot down hostile missiles at multiple places along the western border. Drone and missile attacks were confirmed on military stations in Jammu, Pathankot, Udhampur and Jalandhar – all close to the international border.

"Military stations at Jammu, Pathankot & Udhampur were targeted by Pakistani-origin drones and missiles along the international border in J&K today. The threats were swiftly neutralised using kinetic and non-kinetic capabilities in line with established standard operating procedures. No casualties or material

NIGHT OF ESCALATION

THE FAILURE AND THE FRUSTRATION

INDIA ATTEMPTS TO DETER WITH MISSILE STRIKES

Following the drone humiliation, in the late hours of 9 May 2025, India undertook missile strikes at three locations in Pakistan. Multiple missiles were intercepted and the attacks failed to cause damage to infrastructure or important assets. India also feigned Pakistan's missile strikes in its Indian Punjab targeting civil infrastructure. The act was seen as a futile effort by Indian leadership to foment anti Pakistan hysteria in Indian Punjab and to rally domestic support and bring international pressure on Pakistan to constrict space for its just retribution. Pakistan called out Indian bluff and made it clear that such acts not only exhibited Indian Military's feeble and unrealistic strategy but also vividly showcased their ethical and moral degeneration.

OPERATION BUNYAN -UM- MARSOOS

THE JAW BREAKING RESPONSE

On the morning of 10 May 2025, Pakistan launched Operation Bunyan-um-Marsoos as its retribution against the illegal and unjustified Indian attack by engaging military targets deep inside IIOJK and mainland India. Pakistan's response was a textbook demonstration of integrated tri-services jointness enabled by real-time situational awareness, network centric warfare capabilities and seamless multi-domain operations. This synergy across air, land, sea, and cyber domains allowed for precision engagements, overwhelming lethality and rapid tempo. Indian leadership and public were taken by a jolt. All platforms operated in synergy, delivering coordinated effects at carefully selected decisive points, using precision guided long range Fatah series missiles of Pakistan Army, precision munitions of Pakistan Air Force, highly capable long range loitering killer munitions and precision long range Artillery.

THE WHITE FLAGS ACROSS THE LOC AND THE CRUMBLING PRIDE

Starting from frozen heights in the North to the green valleys of Kashmir, Pakistani ground forces, deployed across the LoC, caused havoc to the Indian posts and headquarters. Indian forces, bewildered and disarrayed, were forced to vacate forward posts in some areas and capitulate by raising white flags in others.

PAKISTANI MEDIA - A SHIELD OF TRUTH AGAINST THE SWORD OF HYSTERIA

During the operation, while Indian airwaves echoed with the drums of hysteria and sensationalism, Pakistani media demonstrated commendable restraint and responsibility in their reporting. Instead of speculating on unconfirmed operational details, they focused on official statements from the ISPR. This approach played a crucial role in bringing facts to the public and establishing credibility of Pakistan's point of view in front of the international audience.

COUNTERING INDIAN PROXIES AND TERRORIST GROUPS INSIDE PAKISTAN

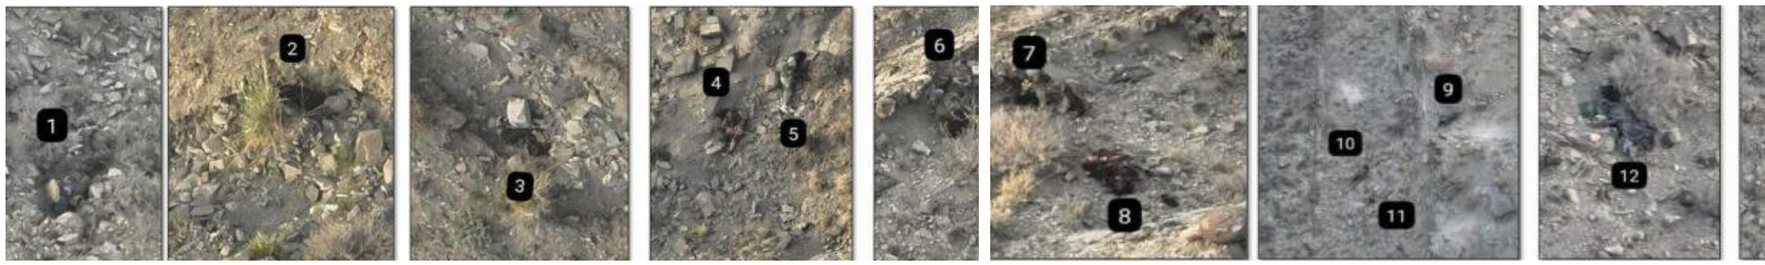

India unleashed its proxies, namely Fitna al Khwarij (FaK) and Fitna al Hindustan (FaH), to conduct terrorist activities in KP and Balochistan during Marka-e-Haq. IN WAR AND IN WILL, THE PEOPLE STOOD, NOT BEHIND THE ARMY, BUT BESIDE IT

Indian naked aggression and the coward actions against civilians created a euphoria in the society and the public came out in support of its Armed Forces. The enthusiasm and patriotic fervor were seen in the shape of youngsters helping the soldiers carrying Artillery and Tank Ammunition in forward deployment areas. The troops were served with meals and helped in hunting down Indian drones.

PAKISTAN TRIUMPHS ON THE DIPLOMATIC FRONT

Pakistan's Foreign Office sent multiple missions to important capitals and friendly countries to explain Pakistan's principled stance on the conflict. While much larger Indian mission failed to gain any traction, as international community realized the lies being told by India. Global security experts could piece together that India had lost squarely on the strategic and military levels, hence the Indian narrative fell flat. On the contrary, the Pakistani delegations headed by Mr. Bilawal Bhutto Zardari met key government functionaries and political leadership articulating that Pakistan is a country of peace. India had illegally violated the sovereignty of Pakistan killing innocent women and children without any evidence and fair investigation. The belligerent, hubristic and immature behaviour of Modi & Co had put the lives of 1.6 Billion people of the region and beyond at grave risk. It also communicated that India was itself a State sponsoring terrorism, while Pakistan is the bulwark state against the perverted terrorist ideology creeping from west, sponsored and abetted by India.

Azerbaijan 'Parrots' Pak, Asks India 'To Not...' | Baku Joins Turkey, China In 'Shielding' Islamabad

Pakistan has gained a new supporter in Azerbaijan following the Pahalgam terror attack, intensifying regional tensions. After backing from China and Turkey, Baku has echoed Islamabad's face-saving stance, calling for a "transparent probe" and urging India to "refrain from unilateral actions." The language used by Azerbaijan's foreign office closely mirrors Pakistan's narrative, signalling a clear diplomatic alignment. This development is ... Read More

PAKISTAN STANDS VICTORIOUS

Pakistan secured victory on all fronts, starting from countering Indian propaganda, when it tried to implicate Pakistan in Pehelgam Incident. Pakistan secured higher moral grounds by exposing Indian aggression against innocent civilians. Pakistan Armed Forces shattered Indian pride by giving a crushing blow to Indian military. Pakistani diplomatic delegation was successful in grabbing attention of international community to present Pakistan's just and principled stance.

We are a peace loving nation we want peace within and without. We only respond to aggression so no one dares to look our way again, and if they do, we'll take their eyes out.

HEROES RETURN, NOT JUST WITH VICTORY

BUT WITH THE NATION'S ETERNAL GRATITUDE

The heroes of Marka-e-Haq returned from the battlefield triumphant, solemn reminder of their courage, sacrifice and unwavering commitment to the defense of the country. As they marched back home, they carried the salutes of millions, a respect that endures far beyond the battlefield - etched forever in the soul of the nation.

HONORING THE BRAVE

The national and military leadership stepped forward with solemn pride, honoring the martyred and the brave souls who had stared death in the face and emerged victorious. In a moment charged with pride and reverence, the nation's heroes were conferred with battle honors and prestigious awards for their exceptional courage and unwavering service. These honors immortalized their deeds, ensuring that their legacy lives on. In a heartfelt gesture of solidarity and respect, senior officers also visited the injured soldiers in hospitals, offering words of encouragement and gratitude. These visits not only uplifted the spirits of the wounded but also reaffirmed the deep bond between the leadership and the soldiers on the ground.

HOSTILITIES CEASED BUT WAR MONGERING CONTINUES

While the ceasefire reached on 10 May 2025 holds, the reason of conflict endures. Indian saffronized polity, haunted by political and strategic blunders, appears determined to rewrite the narrative militarily, for their political survival. The Indian Prime Minister announced continuation of Operation Sindoor despite the condemnation by the Indian Polity.

Indian atrocities in IIOJK continue without pause. Enforced disappearances, demographic manipulation and the silencing of dissent have become routine tools in India's occupation strategy. The irrational political leadership, now more than ever, is choosing rhetoric over dialogue and impunity over introspection. India has accentuated state sponsored terrorism inside Pakistan.

At home, the Indian ruling polity peddles false narratives to its citizens - feeding them doctored victories, manufactured nationalism, and denials of responsibility. Rather than confront its growing extremism and violent internal fragmentation, it has chosen to project these as external threats. In doing so, it externalizes what is internal - blaming neighbors, particularly Pakistan, for its own failures.

This inversion of realities has had deadly consequences beyond India's borders. Terrorist incidents in Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa - executed through Indian proxies - have escalated.

Although guns have momentarily fallen silent, the war of narratives and mindsets is far from over. The Indian establishment's obsession with regional dominance, and its unwillingness to reconcile with reality, has cast a long shadow over South Asia. The ceasefire may have frozen guns, but it has not healed the wounds of belligerence nor calmed the Hindutva driven ideological fires that continue to destabilize the region. Peace, it seems, remains hostage not to the absence of war, but to the presence of a mindset unwilling to abandon conflict. Ultimately, Pakistan's resolve, strength, diplomacy and unity is the only guarantee of peace and stability in the region.

Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi warned Pakistan that India will punish its neighbor if there are future attacks on India as he marked 78 years of independence from British colonial rule.

Modi's remarks Friday come three months after nuclear-armed rivals India and Pakistan engaged in four days of intense fighting, their worst clash in decades.

Modi addressed the country from New Delhi's 17th-century, Mughal-era Red Fort, saying India has established a "new normal" that does not differentiate between "terrorists" and those who support terrorism. He said he would not tolerate what he called Islamabad's "nuclear blackmail."

"India has decided that it will not tolerate nuclear threats. For a long time, nuclear blackmail had been going on but this blackmail will not be tolerated now," Modi said.

Pakistan previously has rejected India's statements about nuclear blackmail as provocative and inflammatory.
