Modern architecture, or modernist architecture, was an architectural movement or architectural style based upon new and innovative technologies of construction, particularly the use of glass, steel, and reinforced concrete; the idea that form should follow function (functionalism); an embrace of machinery; and a rejection of ornament. It emerged in the first half of the 20th century and became dominant after World War II until the 1960s, when it was gradually replaced as the principal style for institutional and corporate buildings by postmodern architecture.

design is a plan or for the improvement or specification in design, expression, craft, comports, equipment, a certain engine
