

BON COEUR FINE WINES

PORTFOLIO 2023-24

Moor Park 2023

Welcome to our biggest ever wine portfolio. A new look and the start of an exciting new chapter, as we continue to bring you the very best in wine and customer service.

Bursting with passion, this edition brings new discoveries from all around the world. Shortage of supply in traditional markets, such as Burgundy, has encouraged many customers to look elsewhere, or to the 'Petit Villages', offering better value. It is wonderful to see our team helping customers on their journey to new discoveries.

Our Fine Wine offering has greatly expanded over the last few years. Look out for the release of Burgundy 2022 this January - it promises to be a spectacular vintage for both red and white wine. Our depth of wines for both drinking and investment continues to grow, as we embrace Italy, Spain and New World markets. Whilst Bordeaux's 2016 and 2019 vintages still dominate customer focus, it's worth talking to our team, especially if you are looking for drinking Claret, there are many under-the-radar producers we would love to introduce to you.

As we forge ahead, we reflect on our journey. So much has changed over the years, yet much remains steadfast. What began in 1994 as a start-up with a six page wine brochure, has grown into a multi-channel wine business, yet our core values; love for discovering and sharing great wines, and offering value for money, remain a constant.

We are proud to be family-owned and continue to embrace our independence, holding no agencies means we are not bound to any buying contracts and are able to offer a broader range of products, whilst picking up great wine parcels along the way.

Our management team works hard to future-proof the business, aligning each channel with a cohesive approach. Top of the agenda in the current challenging climate is to keep our costs down, remain agile and re-invest in the business and our team. Working with like-minded people gives much pleasure; in an ever-increasing competitive marketplace, we are proud of the relationships we have built, both at home and abroad. Sustainability and the footprint we leave behind has never been more key. Our solar panel programme is now up and running and we are delighted to be welcomed to one of the industry's leading platforms, Harper's Sustainability Charter.

I cannot emphasise how much thought, care, and attention to detail goes into sourcing the selection of wines in our portfolio. We strive for excellence in all areas, and I am incredibly proud of the team and company we have become.

Finally, thank you to our customers, both old and new for your support; it is truly appreciated.

WINE INSIGHTS

ROSÉ ALL YEAR-ROUND

Rosé, Rosado, Rosato... no matter how you refer to it, Rosé is no longer pigeon-holed as a summer drink as consumers enjoy both still and sparkling versions all year round. It is an extremely versatile wine category with many variants produced around the world from light, vibrant, and easy-drinking styles to more serious, complex, and food-orientated examples. All in all, it's the perfect option for those dishes that are too light for red wine, yet too heavy for white wine... without a doubt, Rosé meets that middle ground.

BEYOND BURGUNDY

Following a run of several Burgundy vintages with low yields and increased prices, customers are always looking for alternative expressions of Chardonnay that offer great quality at a reasonable price. We have searched far and wide and are delighted to say we list some superb examples within our portfolio from New Zealand (Kumeu River), Australia (Robert Oatley), and South Africa (Rupert and Rothschild), to Argentina (Catena), and of course, California (De Loach) that are all well worth discovering.

PORTUGUESE POPULARITY

Portuguese wines are going from strength to strength, having seen excellent growth in both volume and value in recent years. There is no denying Portugal has become one of the most exciting and creative wine producing countries in Europe. For native grapes, diversity of styles, emerging regions, sustainability, high quality, and reasonably priced wines, it is certainly the place to go. We are delighted to have further expanded our Portuguese range to reflect this demand. Vamos, Portugal!

DISCOVERY CASES

Stuck in a wine rut? It's time to discover something new. Our Wine Discovery cases have been carefully curated by our wine experts to take you out of your comfort zone, whilst embracing key flavours, textures, and styles that you know and love. Simply pick your current go-to wine, for example, Sauvignon Blanc and we'll do the magic, selecting six delicious wines to try. Broaden your wine horizons and delve into a treasure trove of new, exciting varieties to treat yourself to. Enjoy journeying through your discovery case solo, or crack it open with friends and share the experience!

THE PERFECT SERVE

Take your home wine game to the next level with Coravin's preservation systems and pour your favourite wines without even pulling the cork. No compromises, just choices. The Coravin allows you to preserve still wines for weeks, months, or even years... from your weekday glass to your special occasion bottle, Coravin meets all your wine preservation needs! Please ask a member of the Private Client Team for more information all call into Moor Park for a demo.

PICK OF THE BUNCH

As a family owned, independent wine merchant we hold no agencies, meaning we are not bound to buying contacts. As such, our wine buying team work extremely hard throughout the year and strive to source wines that they truly believe in, taking pride in tasting and approving everything before being included in our portfolio. We are therefore elated to welcome a raft of new producers to our ranks this year, and we introduce the pick of the bunch who are well worth discovering.

CHAPEL DOWN The English wine industry has been bubbling away in the last few decades and is now considered as a premium wine region with many of its sparkling wines rivalling the élite of our French counterparts in Champagne. As quality and quantity of both still and sparkling wines have risen, so has interest with consumers becoming more aware and adventurous of our home-grown vinous efforts. We want to further fly the flag and in doing so announce that Chapel Down are our newest recruits. Raise a glass with the best of British... you won't be disappointed!

CRAMELE RECAȘ During his WSET Diploma studies, Andrew researched and wrote a dissertation on the burgeoning Romanian wine industry; little did he know how important this information would become a few years later. Fast-forward to Autumn 2023, and we are thrilled to welcome Cramele Recaș to the fold; without a doubt, the leading wine estate in Romania. Spearheaded by Englishman Philip Cox, the winery is a source of excellent quality wines made from indigenous and international varieties. A force to be reckoned with...

CAPUANO-FERRERI Jamie and Andrew discovered Domaine Capuano-Ferreri during their trip to the Côte d'Or in November 2022. As we all know, there has been a shortage of supply in Burgundy over recent years due to low yielding vintages that has encouraged consumers to look beyond the main villages of Meursault, Chassagne-Montrachet or Gevrey-Chambertin. We have long been advocates of the 'Petits Villages'; lesser-known satellite villages that offer brilliant value for money, and John Capuano runs this fine estate in Santenay, which does exactly that.

CIACCI PICCOLIMINI D'ARAGONA Andrew had been monitoring Ciacci Piccolimini d'Aragona for some time, although it was during our Brunello di Montalcino 2018 En Primeur tasting when the estate really caught his attention! Naturally, the Brunello di Montalcino and single vineyard Brunello di Montalcino 'Pianrosso', receive global acclaim and recognition from many of the top wine critics and are more than a welcome addition to our growing Tuscan offering. Nevertheless, don't overlook their Toscana Rosso IGT and Rosso di Montalcino as the Bianchini family craft quality wines that punch well above their weight!

QUINTA NOVA James first learnt about Quinta Nova on the grapevine through his network of wine spies and a hot tip off. This was then verified by one of Andrew's best friends who has a boutique wine bar in Porto, confirming the estate was one to watch. It is owned by the Amorim family, a major player in the production of cork for the wine industry, who have one of the most stylish properties in the Douro. The wine that impressed them both stood head and shoulders above the rest: Grainha Reserva Tinto. This is a full-bodied, full-throttle Portuguese red that provides brilliant bang for its buck and is truly something special...

COBALTE We are delighted to announce we have also further developed our spirits range this year too, including Cobalte Vodka, which is made by the owners of Champagne Gosset! This is the first grape-based Vodka and is made using the ripe, handpicked Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier from the rolling hills of the Montagne de Reims. The grapes are vinified and then distilled multiple times with lees to produce a unique Vodka with a fantastic vinous link!

Of course, there are many more wonderful producers waiting to be uncovered throughout the rest of brochure. Look out for feature highlights as well as the new symbol to learn all about them.

TOP 10 TIPS FOR BUILDING A GREAT CELLAR

I started my own cellar when I was 26; it was a working cellar. I was prepared to invest for at least ten years before I would realise / sell some of my first purchases. My first year was the 1996 vintage, which was an 8.5 out of 10. In some years I have bought more wines, in others I have curtailed my investment. For instance, 1997 wasn't that attractive when it was released, being more expensive in many cases than the previous good vintage (1996). However, in 2001 all the negotiants discounted back vintages, especially the 1997 vintage using some of their profit gained from the 2000 vintage release to improve their cash flow and move stock.

Many of the wines I have sold over the years were bought for my enjoyment, however, circumstances and price rises have meant I am sometimes unable to justify drinking them, so they have been sold. I always try to re-invest a proportion of the gains.

It's not all about En Primeur releases, it's about reading the market and being agile when the opportunities arise. This also translates into selling. A wine is always more likely to be worth more at its peak of drinking, and there's always someone looking to pick up good wine that's ready to drink. Not everyone has the patience to wait!

JAMIE'S TOP TIPS

01. MAKE A PLAN

Plan ahead: work out what type of cellar you want? Is it a working cellar, which is a combination of Investment and Drinking, where you put your gains into the drinking side, or is it purely for Investment or Drinking.

02. SUPPLY AND DEMAND

The fine wine market is all about supply and demand. You need to think about wine like a commodity, similar to gold or fine art it's about simple economics. The wine market is less volatile than stocks and shares, however they do go up and down, just like shares.

03. NO CAPITAL GAINS TAX

Over the last 20 years the fine wine market has outperformed many investments including the FTSE 100 and gold. If you buy wine as a personal cellar investment, any gains you make are free of Capital Gains Tax - unlike the stock market or other investment vehicles.

04. SIGN UP, GET INVOLVED

Do your homework: your merchant should look after you. However, it doesn't hurt to understand the critic scores, read the vintage reports, and get a little involved.

Subscribe to merchants and critics fine wine reports - follow wines that have a proven track record and history of investment yield. Best to avoid garage wines / new fads; they rarely work.

05. BE A SAVVY INVESTOR

Avoid any merchants declaring quick wins, as well as wine investment funds – the first are not to be trusted, and the second will charge handling and management fees that will eat into any profit. There are scams as well as badly run wine businesses, so be careful.

06. BUILD RELATIONSHIPS

Get to know your merchant. Go and see them. Taste Fine Wines if you have a working cellar, get to know what you like, and what you don't! Also be aware people's palates change over the years so a mix of different wines, countries, and styles will give you a good selection for you to enjoy in years to come. Understand how much you would like to drink a year. Hopefully you should be buying at £30 and drinking/selling it at £60+ after 10 years.

07. SUPPORT YOUR MERCHANT

The really good investment wines are often the most difficult to get hold of due to huge demand. Your wine merchant can often sell them 5 x over, so build a relationship with them. Try and support them by buying your everyday and party wines from them and they are more likely to support you in return.

08. INSURANCE IS KEY

Find out where your wine is stored and most importantly how it's insured. It needs to be insured at replacement / market value not at purchase price. Also make sure that it's held under your name and the case reference (rotation number) is unique to you. So many bonded warehouses do not do this unless you request it, as it's both costly and labour intensive.

09. PREMIUM WINE STORAGE

Store investment and working cellars In Bond, do not get them out Duty Paid. You will not get the duty or VAT back when selling. Provenance is key; with numerous fake wines scams out there it's more important than ever to know where it has been stored. Today the Châteaux know where their wine is being sold. When selling your wine, you need to prove where it's been stored, so use a reputable bonded warehouse through your merchant. Please note merchants should not charge to accept your wine into their bond if you have bought the wines through them.

10. MARKET TRENDS

Don't just look at still wines: in recent years Vintage Champagne has done really well; this market is currently buoyant. And despite what some may say, Port is not an investment wine. There are always exceptions, however, it's a decreasing market and the Port houses are now declaring most years; which was once only twice a decade, so there is more volume in the market with declining demand in the UK.

FINALLY, ENJOY IT...

Wine gives so much pleasure, sharing with family and friends, and telling the story is most enjoyable. Invest in yourself and drink it – you're worth it!

FINE WINE SERVICES

IN BOND STORAGE

Whether you are keeping wine as an investment or laying it down to drink in the future; the way you store is paramount. The most important factors are to keep the wine at a constant temperature, in dry conditions with good relative humidity and making sure it is secure. We are delighted to offer our clients wine storage services both In Bond and Duty Paid.

Our dedicated bonded wine warehouse is the perfect solution to your wine storage needs. Located at Moor Park, our purpose built, state-of-the-art, temperature-controlled warehouse is essential for fine wine storage. To support this core service, we have invested in a dedicated team to deliver all your storage requirements with both a personal and proactive approach.

If you would like to relocate your holdings to Moor Park from another bonded warehouse, please contact us for information on moving/consolidating your wines, our storage charges and services offered.

I have been really impressed with the new fine wine storage facility at Moor Park it's a real credit to you. I really enjoyed seeing my bonded wine in situ, it's been a real help to consolidate my wine collection under one roof, thank you to the team for making the move go so smoothly and I look forward to collecting a few cases in person soon! ”

BON COEUR FINE WINES

Your unique wine experience...

A NEW FRONTIER

The Bon Coeur buying team are always on the lookout for exciting new wines from up-and-coming regions.

Central and Eastern Europe is proving to be a fascinating area of vinous delights; from hidden gems such as the multi-faceted Grüner Veltliner from Austria, zesty Assyrtiko from Greece, as well as complex Lebanese reds from Caladoc and international varieties. Let us guide you through a new wave of top-quality wine producing countries that need to be on your radar!

Austria

Austria is considered by many to be one of the best-kept wine secrets in Europe. It has a plethora of native grapes and quality-focused, small family producers making consistent, quality wines which express the terroir from which they have been grown. It is a treasure trove for those wanting to expand their wine horizons with delicious, food-friendly wines. Grüner Veltliner is the country's most highly regarded and well-known grape, making crisp, refreshing white wines with notes of ripe apple and a characteristic twist of white pepper spice.

Austria is considered by many to be one of the best-kept wine secrets in Europe.

Check out our new, sustainable producer Markus Huber who is producing distinctive, terrific quality, organic wines, grown on fantastic lime and conglomerate soils in the Traisental Valley, full of character, clear in style and site-related minerality.

Hungary

Hungary is most definitely not considered a 'new' wine producing country, it has a wine making history dating back to the 5th century AD. Today, however, the dry wines made from Furmint have become an essential part of the production. The wines can be outstanding and Furmint has very high acidity, a reason why the Tokaj Aszú (the sweet wine made from botrytized grapes) is never cloying despite being extremely sweet. This acidity also gives the dry wines a superb and refreshing vitality. They are often vinified and aged in stainless steel, but some are also barrel-aged. To explore further, try the exciting dry white wines by Château Dereszla.

Romania

Romania has developed a reputation for great value, and delicious wines from international grape varieties as well as native grapes such as Fetească Regală (meaning 'Royal Maiden') because of the grape's delicacy and elegance, and Fetească Neagră (meaning 'black maiden') which produces wines with notes of plum, blackberries, vanilla, cinnamon and pepper that are well-balanced and has potential for ageing.

The Receaş DOC is a region in western Romania, bordering Serbia, which has been making wine since 1447. Our new producer, Cramele Receaş, was founded in 1988 and has been integral to bringing Romanian wines to the international primarily through the red wines of the famous Château Musar. However, new energy, a return to indigenous grape varieties, and experimental techniques make it a great time to revisit Lebanese wines, particular the wines from new producer, Ixsir.

...a return to indigenous grape varieties, and experimental techniques make it a great time to revisit Lebanese wines...

Hubert de Bouard from the iconic Bordeaux estate, Château Angéus, is consultant for Ixsir where grapes are selected from the best terroirs throughout the country, with a desire to sponsor sustainable development within growers' communities. The winery is situated beneath an historic manor house in Basbina and it's a breathtaking blend of sleek modern lines with ancient heritage has seen it win awards for its green status. The Altitudes range of wines are named after the exceptional 1000-metre-plus terroirs of the Bekaa Valley and they are pure and unoaked, whereas the Grande Reserve wines are powerful, rich and barrel-aged.

We all have a certain affinity to our favourite countries and regions, however, it's a big wine world out there with so much to discover.

Take your wine journey in a new direction and get off the beaten track with these emerging countries and exciting wines... we're certain you won't be disappointed!

market. The climate in Reçaş offers a balance of sunlight and cooling air, which encourages flavour development in the grape, acidity, and structure of the wine. While the clay, sand, limestone, and iron-rich soils are responsible for some of the complexity and quality that you can find in the wines, they all offer excellent value for money.

Greece

Greece is an ancient wine producing country, however, until relatively recently it was difficult to find decent Greek wine on the UK market. You could always drink wonderful wines whilst you were there on holiday, you just couldn't find them anywhere when you returned. Greek wines are having a huge revival right now and are being increasingly respected for their vitality and the potential to develop further complexity as they age.

Our new producer, Lyrarakis, have been producing quality wines in Crete since 1966, from native grapes including white grapes such as Assyrtiko and Vidiano, as well as the red grape, Kotsifali. Although Crete has a warm climate, most of the vineyards are planted above 500m altitude, which helps to cool the vines and preserve acidity and fresh fruit aromas and flavours.

Lebanon

The last stop on our voyage of discovery is Lebanon. Lebanon has achieved international fame

FRENCH COUNTRY

Situated in the rolling hills north of Aix-en-Provence, iconic lavender fields sit alongside the vineyards where the most celebrated terroir creates the purest possible expression of what a rosé wine can be...

French Country offers a diverse range of fabulous quality wines at a great price. Let the famous 'Mistral' wind guide you from the Ardèche down toward Provence, where vineyards nestled along the coast bask in glorious sunshine reaching optimum ripeness. Further southwest you will discover the Languedoc-Roussillon; a historical coastal area which extends through the Pyrénées mountain range all the way to French Catalonia on the Spanish border.

This area is highly influenced by the Mediterranean Sea, where the cool sea breezes help regulate temperatures in the vineyard. There is a wide variety of both soils and grape varietals, which when combined, make French Country a very exciting area to discover.

DOMAINE DE MONTMARIN – LANGUEDOC

Domaine de Montmarin is owned by Philippe de Bertier and located amongst the rolling hills that run down to the Mediterranean in southern France. The Domaine covers around 350 hectares of land with over 120 hectares of planted vines. Charismatic and charming, Phillippe makes exceptionally good and well-presented varietal Vin du Pays wines. We have a personal soft spot for Phillippe's wines, having featured in our wine portfolio for over 20 years, praise indeed! Stylistically their Rosé could easily be mistaken for a Provence Rosé, their fresh whites and approachable red wines outperform many Vin de Pays wines of a higher price, like a loyal, old dog, not to be underestimated.

RHÔNE VALLEY

The impressive pre-phyloxera vines of Perrin's 'La Gille' Gigondas parcels thrive in the unique "safres" soil, which helps provide finesse, elegance and freshness to these robust Rhône reds drenched in southern French sunshine...

Located in South-East France, the Rhône Valley stretches almost 150 miles from Vienne close to the Alps all the way to Nîmes in the south, near the Mediterranean Sea. Naturally, for a winemaking region of such size there are many climatic, geographical and geological differences from the steep-sloping, terraced hillsides of Cornas, Saint-Joseph, Hermitage and Crozes-Hermitage in the north to the flatter, pebble-dominated plains of Châteauneuf-du-Pape, Gigondas and Vacqueyras in the south.

From single varietal Syrah (a.k.a Shiraz) fine wines to a focus on specific blends made from Grenache, Cinsault, and Mourvèdre for reds as well as Viognier, Marsanne and Roussane for whites, we highly recommend re-visiting the Rhône Valley.

BURGUNDY

The inspiring state-of-the-art cellars of Domaine Faiveley in Nuits-Saint-Georges built in an industrial style in homage to the family business. A wonderful space where some of the finest Burgundian wines are crafted with the utmost care and attention to detail.

WHITE BURGUNDY

The heartland for White Burgundy lies in the Côte de Beaune, where interest has always been focused on the famous villages of Meursault, Chassagne-Montrachet, Puligny-Montrachet and Corton. In recent years as prices continue to rise, areas such as Saint-Aubin, Savigny-les-Beaune and Pernand-Vergelesses have improved both in status recognition and quality. Further south in the Mâconnais, Pouilly-Fuissé and Saint-Véran as well as Montagny in the Côte Chalonnaise, all offer great value for money and are definitely worth the detour to discover.

RED BURGUNDY

The emphasis for Red Burgundy is in the Côte de Nuits around the villages of Gevrey-Chambertin as well as Nuits-Saint-Georges and Corton. There is increasing popularity (and price) in both Chambolle-Musigny and Vosne-Romanée due to their charming and luscious nature. In addition, there is also heightened interest in the communes of Volnay, Pommard, Savigny-les-Beaune and Saint-Romain in the Côte de Beaune, which are becoming more attractive and fashionable. Don't overlook the Gamay based region of Beaujolais in the far south where villages such as Fleurie, Brouilly and Morgon seriously over-deliver in terms of value and quality.

CHABLIS

Chablis is geographically and climatically closer to Champagne than Burgundy, and as a result produces a leaner style of Chardonnay with usually less emphasis on oak. They have 20 hectares under vines with 2.5 hectares in Petit Chablis, 16 hectares in Chablis and 1.5 hectares of Premier Cru. Jean-François Bordet, the youngest of the family, places particular emphasis on obtaining the best fruit possible, through careful pruning, debudding and harvesting. Cool fermentation, allows the wines to mature for 2-5 months on their lees; this maximises the grape skin contact and promotes a luscious style to the wines.

SAMUEL BILLAUD

Samuel Billaud is part of an esteemed Chablis family, and was the former head winemaker at the iconic Domaine Billaud-Simon. After a family feud when his Uncle sold Domaine Billaud-Simon to Domaine Faiveley, he left and decided to go it alone; building a new, state-of-the-art winery in the heart of Chablis. Samuel crafts wines from Petit Chablis through to Grand Cru Chablis level using both his own vines, as well buying in grapes from only the very best climats using his deep-rooted connections with vigneron in the village, and the resulting wines seriously over deliver at a fraction of the price of his big name competitors like Raveneau and Dauvissat.

MÂCONNAIS

The Mâconnais is found at the southern tip of Burgundy, located in between the villages of Tournus and Saint-Véran. The Mediterranean climate plays a major role in the region, which helps produce well-structured and ripe Chardonnay-based wines from Mâcon-Villages to Saint-Véran, Pouilly-Fuissé and Viré-Clessé. As prices continue to rise in the Côte de Beaune, it's worth revisiting the Mâconnais.

CAVE DE LUGNY (LUGNY)

The biggest cooperative in the Mâconnais who often sell their wines to better known négociants, whilst offering exceptional value. The Mâcon-Lugny is a special cuvée that comes from one of the best vineyards in the commune of Lugny. The vineyard has a west side exposure on mainly chalk soils, which results in slower ripening of the fruit helping maintain freshness, and the chalk adds a creamy texture to the wine.

JA FERRET (FUISSÉ)

Located in the heart of the Mâconnais, Domaine Ferret has been exploring the richness of Pouilly-Fuissé's terroirs since 1840. The history of the property has been intertwined with that of a series of strong women; most notably Jeanne Ferret who pioneered bottling her own wine as well as vinifying wines by parcel (Tete de Cru cuvées) to her daughter, Colette, and from 2008, Audrey Braccini. All of whom have helped raise the profile of this great estate for their superlative Chardonnay-based wines from Fuissé. Under the same ownership as Louis Jadot.

Famous for Meursault, Puligny-Montrachet and Chassagne-Montrachet as well as all the white Grand Cru vineyards of Le Montrachet and Corton Charlemagne but more importantly some of what we are describing as the 'Petits Villages' of Pernand-Vergelesse, Savigny-lès-Beaune, Saint-Romain, Saint-Aubin and Santenay to name a few. With the increasing demand for Fine Wine, these special relationships formed over many years are how we are able to offer our customers Burgundian hidden gems from the region. Corton is the only Grand Cru for the red, however, some believe that Pommard and Volnay should have some Grand Cru.

Daniel Rion created the Domaine in 1955 when he inherited 2 hectares of vines from his father. It is still a family run estate and has been under the careful watch of his children Olivier, Christophe and Pascale Rion since 2000. Today the Domaine consists of 18 hectares of vines throughout six villages in the Côte de Nuits, namely Nuits Saint Georges, Vosne-Romanée and Chambolle-Musigny. The vines vary in age from 25 years up to 60 years old, and are selected for their high-quality fruit; small berries with thick skins that produce aromatic, fine and well-structured wines.

CHÂTEAU DE LABORDE (GEVREY-CHAMBERTIN)

Founded in 1119, the Chateau de Laborde boasts a long and rich history, however, it never hit its stride until it was purchased by Hervé Kerlann in 1998, who invested heavily in both winery and vineyards and in 2000 planted the first vines at the estate once again connecting it to its viticultural past. The estate now comprises of 4 hectares, with grapes purchased via long-term contracts from a further 5 hectares of select vines, which Herve vinifies, ages and bottles himself at the Château. He defines his winemaking as using the best resources available to him, producing wines that give pleasure first and foremost.

BURGUNDY

Beaujolais lies to the south of Burgundy, covering 20,000+ hectares of vines between Mâcon and Lyon. It is predominantly planted with Gamay producing red wines from fresh, fruity and vibrant Beaujolais and Beaujolais villages, to more concentrated and complex wines from the Cru vineyards of Brouilly, Saint-Amour, Fleurie and Morgon.

MORE

STÉPHANE AVIRON

The philosophy of Stéphane Aviron is to balance the richness of Beaujolais terroirs with the barrel ageing tradition, to obtain concentration, elegance and deepness for each wine according to the different types of terroir. The wines speak for themselves, offering much more depth and structure than normally associated with Beaujolais.

BORDEAUX

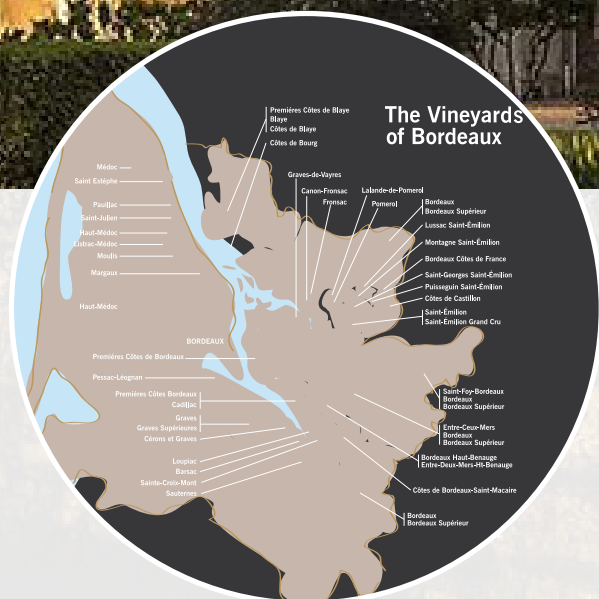

Château d'Issan is one of the most beautiful estates in Bordeaux with its unique moated property in the heart of the Margaux appellation on the Left Bank

Thanks to its maritime climate, temperate winters and long, warm summers, Bordeaux is capable of producing some of the greatest wines and has often been referred to as the centre of the Fine Wine world. There is a wealth of diversity in terroir over the 120,000 hectares of vines divided by the Garonne and Dordogne rivers, where production is predominantly suited to red. Nevertheless, there are also fantastic whites from Entre-deux-Mers, as well as excellent sweet wines from Sauternes and Barsac that are both well worth discovering.

On the 'Right Bank' most of the wines are Merlot dominated in areas such as Saint-Émilion and Pomerol, who steal the headlines for their ripeness and approachability. However, appellations such as Sainte-Radegonde, Côte de Castillon, and Lalande-de-Pomerol can overdeliver in terms of quality and price.

On the 'Left Bank' wines are mainly Cabernet Sauvignon dominated blends with the addition of Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot. The communes of Saint-Estèphe, Pauillac, Saint-Julien, Margaux as well as Pessac-Léognan take centre stage though don't overlook Cru Bourgeois and Petits Chateaux properties, as they are sources of some of the best value Clarets.

The finest vintages in recent years are, of course, '15, '16, '18, '19 and '20. However, we are also big fans of '07, '11, '12 and '14, which we believe are drinking better than people expect and offer great value for money.

SPARKLING WINE

The mesmerising patchwork of Terre di Sant'Alberto vineyards lie on beautiful slopes in the heart of Valdobbiadene, where Glera grapes are able to ripen to perfection thanks to the unique cool microclimate

There are many different production methods and types of sparkling wine just waiting to be discovered; from alcohol free to fresh and fruit driven Prosecco, as well as slightly more complex and richer styles of Cava and Crémant. One thing which does unite them, however, is they are all perfect aperitifs served with canapés. Give them a go!

CHAMPAGNE

Bollinger's cellars are situated deep beneath the town of Aÿ; a magical subterranean world where bottles are left to age to perfection and create powerful, complex yet refined Champagnes

Situated in North-East of France some 90 miles east of Paris, the Champagne region boasts 34,300 hectares of vines tended by almost 16,000 growers! Unsurprisingly, with an area of such size there are two distinct climatic influences (oceanic and continental) as well as geological (chalk, marl, and limestone) as well as topographical variations (12-59% slope gradient) between the five main sub-zones of the Côte des Blancs, Côte de Sézanne, Montagne de Reims, Vallée de la Marne and the Aube, which each produce unique styles of Champagne.

The main grape varieties are, of course, Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, and Pinot Meunier with some smaller, artisan producers who use Pinot Blanc, Pinot Gris, Petit Meslier, and Arbane. All Champagne undergo the time and tested traditional method production, by which there are two fermentations; the first in tank, and the second in bottle, to create this classic fizz we all know and love. Whether you prefer Non-Vintage or Vintage, Rosé or Blanc de Blancs, or even Prestige Cuvée... there's a Champagne for everyone to enjoy!

NON-VINTAGE CHAMPAGNE

MORE

Non-Vintage (NV) is the most popular Champagne category and a blend of the three main varieties; Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier from various vintages to create a "house style". Year upon year the Chef de Cave (winemaker or cellar master) will adjust the blend accordingly from the reserve wines available to produce a Champagne that is in keeping with the house style, whilst maintaining the highest quality standards. Non-Vintage Champagnes must be aged for a minimum of 15 months on the lees, which produces balanced and elegant wines that can develop more intensity and concentration when aged.

JACQUES BONCOEUR

Our award-winning house Champagne was registered with the Champagne board (CIVC) in 2001 and is produced exclusively by one of the leading co-operative houses in the region. Made in a Brut style, the current cépage is a blend of 90% Pinot Noir and 10% Chardonnay, aged for 3 years minimum before release and creates a rich, structured and sophisticated Champagne. Named after the founder of Bon Coeur, James Goodhart, it has proved immensely popular with our customers, winning several awards and even gives many Grandes Marques Champagnes a run for their money!

ROSÉ CHAMPAGNE

Rosé Champagne has increased in popularity over recent years, and rightly so! Interestingly, Champagne is one of the few places in world where you are legally allowed blend red and white still wines to make rosé. Typically, winemakers blend about 15% still red wine (from Pinot Noir or Pinot Meunier) into the final wine. Alternatively, the "saignée" ("bleeding") method is also popular and consists of the must having minimal skin contact, generally for only a couple of hours before blending. This low maceration technique allows the must to develop stronger aromas and flavours while simultaneously deepening the colour. However, don't be fooled by the colour as Rosé Champagnes are powerful and really pack a flavourful punch.

VINTAGE CHAMPAGNE

The ultimate expression of Champagne which is richer, fuller and perfect for special celebrations! Vintage Champagne is made only in the very best harvests, where the highest quality is all but guaranteed; normally only declared three or four times per decade. Made in the same way as Non-Vintage Champagne with the exception that instead of a blend of different base wines, 100% of the grapes come from just the one particular year. By law, Vintage Champagne must spend a minimum three years on its lees, however, many of the Grande Marque Champagne Houses cellar and age their wines for upwards of five to ten years. Works wonders with the richness and earthiness of wild mushroom and truffle risotto, or try with pan fried langoustine.

CHAMPAGNE

“A really cheery Champagne – properly aged and with pretty fruit - so one with wide appeal... it has an appetisingly fresh, floral nose with notes of just-baked bread and toasted nuts and the palate is softly succulent, round and nutty with lemon and peach fruit and gentle crème fraiche creaminess...”

ENGLAND

Nyetimber's vineyards are located throughout the rolling hills of the South Downs in Southern England, where the chalk soil is akin to that of Champagne, and helps craft the highest quality Traditional Method sparkling wines that rival of our French counterparts...

Wine grape cultivation in the UK goes back to Roman times, however, the cold, wet climate has always been a major hurdle to producing wines of significant quality. Thankfully, the English wine industry has undergone a sizeable revolution in the last fifty years, and can now proudly claim to be a global contender, particularly when it comes to sparkling wine. The classic varetals of Pinot Noir, Pinot Meunier, and Chardonnay are used to create traditional method sparkling wines, made in the same way as those from Champagne. Good quality red, white and rose still wines are also crafted from Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, and Pinot Gris, as well as lesser known varetals such as Sylvaner and Bacchus; England's alternative to Sauvignon Blanc!

The best vineyards in England are found in the southern counties including Kent, Sussex, Surrey, Hampshire, Dorset and Cornwall where the chalky, limestone-rich soils (similar to those in Chablis and Champagne), and the warming effect of the Gulf Stream help create a unique climate for grape growing. The recent succession of hot summers in Southern England has produced some stellar vintages, which have produced English wines that can now go toe to toe with many established countries in international competitions for both still, and sparring wines. Rule Britannia!

ALSACE AND GERMANY

ALSACE

GERMANY

A serene winter at the Dr Loosen estate in Mosel-Saar-Ruwer where the Bernkasteler Lay vineyard is seemingly frozen in time under a blanket of snow protecting the dormant vines

Situated on the French-German border of north-eastern France, Alsace is governed by two natural boundaries; the Vosges mountains and the Rhine river. Gentle slopes and extensive, warm summers produce complex wines made from Pinot Blanc, Gewurztraminer and Riesling.

In neighbouring Germany, the Mosel is also dictated by a slightly more challenging terrain; steep slopes and close proximity to the river provide ideal conditions for dry to super-sweet Riesling (and everything in between!).

Further south in the underrated region of Pfalz, obsessive care and attention to detail results in fruity, easy-drinking and approachable wines.

VILLA WOLF – PFALZ

Founded in 1756, the JL Wolf estate was a very successful and highly regarded winery for more than two centuries. Sadly, in the latter half of the 19th century it was then neglected for many years until 1996, when Ernst Loosen (of Dr Loosen fame), took over the vineyards and launched a dramatic turnaround in the estate's reputation and quality. Ernst knew the value and potential of the vineyards and under the guidance of Patrick Moellendorf, quality wines with wonderful purity and vibrancy are produced.

CENTRAL EUROPE

The small vineyard plots of Domäne Wachau are dotted throughout the scenic yet steep, reinforced terraces that bathe in the glow of the Danube River

AUSTRIA

ROMANIA

Austria is landlocked on all sides, however, most of the wine growing regions are in the east of the country, where geological and climatic conditions are more favourable for production of high-quality wine such as fresh, mineral Gruner Veltliner and Riesling, as well as fruit-forward, luscious reds from Zweigelt and St. Laurent.

Hungary is one of the oldest and most important wine producing regions and is famous for the deliciously sweet, unctuous wines of Tokaji. Nevertheless, there has been a revolution in recent years and a new wave of producers have been using modern techniques and facilities to craft bright, vibrant dry white wines from native grapes such as Furmint, Hárslevelű and Sárgamuskotály.

Romania has been making wine for centuries and is one of the biggest producers in Europe, yet until recently very little was exported. How times are changing, and with it, there are some fantastic wines to be discovered from international varieties like Sauvignon Blanc and Pinot Noir, to the indigenous grapes Fetească Regală and Fetească Neagră.

ALLRAM – KAMPTAL

The Allram estate is situated in the heart of the Kamptal region and the picturesque village of Strass, where it has been run by Michaela Haas-Allram and her husband, Eric Haas, since 1992 after taking over from her parents. Now the third generation are beginning to take the reins as their son Lorenz now helps run the vineyard and cellar, under the watchful eye of founder and grandfather, Walter Allram. Their mission is simple; to use all three generations viticultural knowledge as well as state of the art technology to produce organic, high quality wines.

CHATEAU DERESZLA – TOKAJI

Chateau Dereszla is one of the most iconic estates in Tokaj, boasting a rich history that dates back over 500 years. After many years of neglect, the winery was purchased in 2000 by the d'Aulan family from Champagne, who have invested and renovated the property and introduced state-of-the-art winemaking technology, allowing Dereszla to return to its former glory. As such, it now proudly is held in the highest regards alongside esteemed producers such as Royal Tokaj, Mád, and Disznókő.

ITALY

Cypress trees and vineyards stretch as far as the eye can see across the idyllic Tuscan countryside at the Tenuta Tignanello estate in Chianti

With hundreds of indigenous grape varieties to choose from, Italy is a wine lover's paradise. From the romantic, mist-shrouded slopes of Piedmont to the flat, sun-baked plains of Puglia as well as the idyllic island of Sicily; Italy is as complex as it is varied. With 20 wine producing regions to choose from, the diversity in terroir and style available throughout the length and breadth of the country is nothing short of impressive.

Re-discover classic varieties such as Nebbiolo, Barbera and Sangiovese as well as exciting newcomers like Nero d'Avola, Vermentino and Grillo. Sparkling, white, red or sweet... Italy really has it all.

FORZA Italia

Wine has been made in Italy for thousands of years and dates to the Phoenician and Greek settlers who imported vines from their respective homelands. The vinous influence was so strong on the country, that even the name Italy derives from the Roman-Greek term 'Oenotria' meaning "land of the grapevines".

Of course, wine has been a constant in Italian culture ever since.

In recent years Italy's presence within the global Fine Wine market has gone from strength to strength, and there is no denying it's one of the most dynamic wine producing countries in the world.

“Gone are the days of rustic wines served in squat bottles with straw baskets.”

It now easily rivals the more traditional Fine Wine regions of Burgundy and Bordeaux, as consumers continue to diversify their portfolios, looking to Italy as a source of new and attractive opportunities, for both drinking and investment. This can largely be credited to the "Super Tuscan" movement and the iconic wines of Tignanello, Solaia, Ornellaia and Sassicaia, which came to the fore in the 1980s. These wines spearheaded a seismic shift in opinion by being quality-focused, well-priced and receiving annual critical acclaim from major wine critics. As you would expect, these wines, like the famed Bordeaux First Growths, are made in limited quantities and are therefore sold on an allocation basis.

BOLGHERI BLOCKBUSTERS

However, the apple doesn't fall far from the tree and several of the Bolgheri estates craft super second, as well as third wines that offer comparative value for money. We strongly believe these wines shouldn't be overlooked, so if you want to experience the ethos of these great Domaines without breaking the bank, then Guidalberto and Le Difese (Tenuta San Guido Sassicaia), as well as Le Serre Nuove and Le Volte (Tenuta dell'Ornellaia) should be on your wish list.

It's worth a detour to neighbouring producers like Tenuta Guado al Tasso too, who are located just a stone's throw from both Tenuta San Guido Sassicaia and Tenuta dell'Ornellaia. Although perhaps not as well-known as the aforementioned superstars; Guado al Tasso is still one of the appellations' leading producers that creates world class wines from Bordeaux varietals such as Il Bruciato (a Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Syrah, Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot blend) and Cont'Ugo (pure Merlot). Both wines are new to our portfolio this year and come highly recommended.

For an alternative representation of the Super Tuscan experience then you must travel inland from the coast toward the hilltop village of Montalcino, more famous for its namesake: Brunello di Montalcino. However, Tenuta Argiano has been producing their version, Solengo, a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Petit Verdot as well as Sangiovese, since 1995. It was created by Giacomo Taschis, the Godfather of the movement and creator of Sassicaia, Tignanello and Solaia, and exudes class and sophistication at a snip of the price of the famous trio. Without a doubt, Solengo is a must have for any serious Italian wine lover.

MARVELLOUS MONTALCINO

Nevertheless, you cannot overlook Brunello di Montalcino as a consistent and reliable source of great wine made from the native Sangiovese grape. We are proud to have championed producers such as Argiano for over 15 years now, as we believe they offer the best value in the whole appellation. We never rest on our laurels though, keeping our ears to the ground in the search for up-and-coming estates that are making heads turn. This year we are therefore delighted to welcome Ciacchi Piccolimi d'Aragona and Castiglione del Bosco to our portfolio, adding further expressions of the complex patchwork of zones, microclimates, and vineyards that make Brunello di Montalcino one of the most innovative and exciting designations. Sadly, Rosso di Montalcino is often neglected by many consumers solely as it's made from estates younger vines, however, it really shouldn't be. A burgeoning category that produces charming, pure, and affordable wines that are perfect to drink while its big brother, Brunello di Montalcino, matures in the cellar.

CHIANTI RULES

The same rule applies in Chianti; gone are the days of rustic wines served in squat bottles with straw baskets. Today a new generation of serious winemakers are more focused on unique, site-specific Sangiovese than ever before and are taking the subsequent wines to the next level. Look out for new arrivals from Selvapiana (Rufina) and Fontodi (Panzano)... these wines come top of the class. You won't be disappointed!

WINE ROYALTY

Last but by no means least, Piedmont in the northwest of Italy is home to Barolo and Barbaresco, the King and Queen of Italian fine wine. Barolo is amongst the most popular and expensive Italian wine, with single vineyard bottlings of elite producers commanding similar prices to Burgundy Grand Cru. You don't need to spend a fortune to drink some brilliant wines from this fabled area though; look no further than rising star Michele Reverdito who crafts elegant and approachable Barolo from the Crus of Castagni and Ascheri (La Morra) as well as Badarina (Serralunga d'Alba). Our top tip is his Langhe Nebbiolo Simane, which is technically a declassified Barolo San Giacomo Cru, at roughly half the price!

There is truly something for every palate and budget in Italy, if you know where to look... scratch the surface and you will be handsomely rewarded, there are some hidden gems just waiting to be unearthed. Andiamo... Forza Italia!

NORTHERN

Northern Italy has always been a bastion for great wines, no more so than Piedmont, which is beginning to step out of the shadow of neighbouring France to claim back its crown. Here the Dolcetto, Barbera and Nebbiolo grapes reign supreme, creating powerful, yet perfumed and elegant wines from the villages of Alba, Barbaresco and Barolo. There is plenty of choice in the Veneto too with varying forms of Vapolicella from Ripassa to Amarone as well as Recioto, known as rich and plentiful wines. However, it's not all about reds as fantastic crisp and clean whites can be found from Gavi, Soave and the Veneto too, all offering consistent quality and great value for money.

CENTRAL

Central Italy is, without a doubt, one of the most prestigious winemaking areas in the country that includes famous appellations such as Chianti, Brunello di Montalcino and Bolgheri to name but a few. The Super Tuscan movement has long divided opinion by blending (or sometimes replacing) the indigenous Sangiovese with international varieties such as Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, Merlot, and Syrah. However, the resulting wines are big, bold, and powerful with incredible ageing potential and now proudly take their place on the world's Fine Wine stage. Nevertheless, do not underestimate Sangiovese, which stakes a solid claim as the noble grape of Tuscany from easy drinking to village specific Chianti as well as vibrant Vino Nobile di Montepulciano and full-bodied blockbusters from Brunello di Montalcino. Time for TEMPRANILLO

Spain is still disregarded as an option by many consumers when it comes to Fine Wine, however, it really shouldn't be as it produces superb quality wines at a fraction of its peers in Bordeaux, Burgundy, Piedmont, and Tuscany. There is no denying that Rioja and Ribera del Duero are the two most recognised and respected regions, and rightly so, with producers such as CVNE, La Rioja Alta, Vega Sicilia and La Horra championing the cause that Spain is a source of world class wines that should be part of your collection...

RIOJA

Rioja is, without a doubt, Spain's iconic wine region and the oldest 'Denominación de Origen' (DO), having received its official status in 1925. In 1991, it was promoted to 'Denominación de Origen Calificada' (DOCa); the highest category reserved for wines maintaining the highest consistency and quality levels over a sustained period.

The region of La Rioja is in north-central Spain, nestled in a valley flanked by the Cantabrian Mountains to the north, and the Demanda Mountains to the south, running parallel to the meandering Ebro River. It has approximately 60,000 hectares of vineyards, divided into three main sub-regions: Rioja Alavesa, Rioja Alta, and Rioja Oriental.

Traditionally the highest quality grapes and the best wines came from the cooler, higher altitude areas of Alavesa and Alta, whereas high-volume production once came from the fertile hotter, flatter parts of Baja Oriental. However, nowadays the greatest producers can make the finest wines from grapes sourced throughout one of, or a combination of any three sub-regions. Rioja Baja was officially renamed Rioja Oriental in 2018, to showcase its potential for organic viticulture thanks to its warmer, drier climate. Previously there had been a misconception amongst consumers that 'Baja', meaning 'low altitude' in Spanish, produced lower quality wines than the other sub-regions. However, this myth is being debunked and a great example is La Rioja Alta who use a specific 6-hectare plot called 'La Pedriza' solely for Garnacha, which is a key component of their flagship wine: Viña Ardanza.

BLENDS

Rioja has been one of Spain's most revered wine producing regions for generations. Famous for its wines made from a blend of red grapes dominated by Tempranillo with the addition of Garnacha, Graciano and Mazuelo (Carignan) that add floral notes, red fruit aromatics, alcohol as well as colour. Modern incarnations of Rioja are bright and laden with red-fruit character, underpinned by sweet spice and vanilla. Most Rioja wines receive oak treatment, and it is this ageing criteria that defines their category, as opposed to village or appellation.

Joven translates as ‘young’ and the wines receive little or no oak, whereas Crianza wines ages for a minimum of one year in barrel followed by one year in bottle. Reserva wines age for a year in oak and minimum two years in bottle while the region’s finest wines, Gran Reserva, cannot be released until they have undergone five years ageing, two of which will be in oak barrel.

RIBERA DEL DUERO

Ribera del Duero produces equally impressive red wines, and their popularity has soared in recent years due to quality focused producers, as well as increased consumer interest in more robust and fruit-forward styles of wine. Ribera del Duero only gained its DO status in 1982, and although the region was approved DOca status in 2008, it chose not to pursue its higher classification acquisition. However, don’t let that deter you from these amazing wines; some of Spain’s iconic estates and highly sought after wines come from here!

Ribera del Duero is in Castilla y León, to the south-west of La Rioja, yet still in north-central of Spain. It has roughly 22,000 hectares of vineyards (a snip in comparison to La Rioja), stretching over 70 miles along the Duero River, and is split into four sub-regions: Burgos, Valladolid, Soria, and Segovia. Most vineyards are planted in the Burgos sub-region between the city of Valladolid and the town of Aranda de Duero, including the famous ‘golden mile’; a 15-kilometre strip that is home to many of the region’s finest estates.

“There is no denying that Rioja and Ribera del Duero are the two most recognised and respected regions, and rightly so, with producers such as CVNE, La Rioja Alta, Vega Sicilia and La Horra championing the cause that Spain is a source of world class wines that should be part of your collection...”

There’s a small percentage of old vines (80+ years old) in Ribera del Duero, thanks to the sandy, phylloxera-resistant soils that tempers the vine in the gruelling Continental climate. Most of the region’s vineyards are situated on a plateau at 800 metres above sea level, and experience extreme climatic conditions from sweltering, dry summers to bitterly cold winters. Tempranillo (known as Tinto Fino or Tinta del País here), loves this punishing climate and the long, hot ripening season allows it to develop excellent phenolic ripeness, bringing lifted, fragrant aromatics to the fore.

To be recognised by the DO, the wine must contain at least 75% Tempranillo, though most are 100%. Nevertheless, some producers do blend using other grape varieties such as the native Albillo, Garnacha, Cabernet Sauvignon, Malbec, and Merlot, but they can only make up to 25% of the final wine. Compared to Rioja, the wines of Ribera del Duero tend to be deeper in colour, fuller bodied with higher tannin and alcohol levels, as well as more intense black fruit character.

AGEING CRITERIA

The wines of Ribera del Duero are also classified according to their ageing requirements too, which are the same as those in the Rioja DO. However, there is the exception of the term Roble on some Ribera del Duero wines, which indicates the wine has spent some time in oak, but not enough to qualify as Crianza. It is another ageing classification, though not an official one.

We are proud to have built strong, long-term relationships with many of the elite producers in both Rioja and Ribera del Duero and are thrilled to offer some of the finest wines from these regions within our portfolio

Familia Pacheco Organic Monastrell 2021 NEW £9.96 £11.95 14.5% S

In the last three decades Portugal has, without a doubt, become one of the most exciting and creative wine producing countries in Europe. Once known solely for its prestigious Port production, there is now incredible diversity throughout the breadth and depth of the country from fresh, spritzy whites to more full-bodied and rounded examples (that would give some White Burgundy a run for their money), to easy-drinking reds as well as complex, concentrated offerings that could be easily mistaken for top Rioja, or even Bordeaux.

We are delighted to have further expanded our Portuguese range, so now is the time to get under the skin of the Portuguese winemaking scene, you won't be disappointed... Vamos, Portugal!

Vinho Verde

Separated from Galicia in Spain by the Minho River, the Vinho Verde region is situated in the lush, green north-west of the country where it bears the brunt of the Atlantic Ocean and all its fury. Like the people, the wines from this region are steely, yet bright and with a spring in their step. Most Vinho Verde wines are white and made from indigenous grapes you will probably never have heard of; namely Alvarinho (yes, the very same grape known as Albariño with its Iberian neighbour across the border!).

However, the wines can be monovarietal, or be blended with other native varieties such as Azal, Arinto, Avesso, Loureiro and Trajadura, in any combination the winemaker desires. The styles can range from the classic, vibrant, and spritzy versions such as Quinta da Calçada's Lago Cerquiera, to more rounded and textured examples with lees ageing like Quinta do Ameal's Loureiro.

Douro Valley

Follow the namesake river inland from the city of Porto on the Atlantic coast a few hundred kilometres and you'll arrive in the rugged, yet beautiful wilderness of the Douro Valley. It is here where Portugal's most famous wine, Port, is made from the ancient, terraced vineyards and many Quintas (wine estates) that hug the breathtakingly steep cliff edges. This is no longer the land that time forgot as the winds of change are sweeping through the valley with innovative producers creating both white and red still wines from these prized parcels. Again, pride is taken in promoting local varieties with Gouveio, Rabigato and Viosinho, as well as Touriga Franca, Touriga Nacional, Tinta Roriz (Tempranillo), Tinta Barroca and Tinta Cão (red) all taking centre stage. Kopke's São Luiz Colheita Branco is a wonderful example of what Douro white wines are capable of, and if you want a bottle that is bound to impress without breaking the bank, then are spread throughout its nine sub-zones. The most important geographical features in this part of the country are the Atlantic Ocean, of course, and the Serra de Montejunto; the latter providing a much-needed form of relief for grape growing that has made some draw parallels with Chilean winemaking in recent years. Both white and red wines thrive here from both indigenous (Arinto, Touriga Nacional and Castelão) as well as international varieties (Chardonnay, Cabernet Sauvignon and Syrah), resulting in the region being a great source of affordable, everyday drinking wines that offer value for money. If you're new to Portuguese wine, then look no further than Real Companhia Velha's Santhiago Tinto.

Alentejo

Landlocked on all sides and straddling the border with Spain, Alentejo is a relatively flat region with rolling hills as far as the eye can see. Amazingly it amounts to almost one third of the Portugal's land mass and as you would expect with a region of such size, there is a wonderful diversity of soil... from clay and schist to marble, limestone and granite that when combined with the hot and dry climate, produce a variation of wonderful white and red wines.

There is again a focus on Portuguese grapes such as Antão Vaz, Arinto and Roupeiro (white) as well as Alfrocheiro, Alicante Bouschet, Castelão and Trincadeira (red) that are sometimes blended with Syrah and Cabernet Sauvignon. Herdade de Esporão is one of Alentejo's pioneers and most revered producers, crafting a range of brilliant wines for every palate and budget from the quaffing Defesa range, through to their premium Reserva wines.

Portugal's regions and indigenous grape varieties are a spelling bee nightmare, but an adventurous wine lover's paradise! If you would like to discover more, please turn to page 69, for all Portuguese wines in our portfolio.

look no further than Quinta Nova's Grainha Tinto Reserva.

Dão Valley

Located due south of the Douro Valley, the Dão Valley is one of the oldest wine producing regions in Portugal albeit unbeknown still to many UK consumers... though we are sure that will change sooner, rather than later! The area is considered by those in the know as the 'Burgundy of Portugal' thanks to the combination of granite soils, high elevations and temperate climate that help craft vibrant, elegant, and refined wines.

You'll struggle to find any international varieties here like Pinot Noir, Merlot or Syrah as producers focus primarily on native grape blends led by Touriga Nacional and Tinta Roriz, as well as the addition of some Alfrocheiro and Jaen (Mencía). This is certainly a region on the rise, and a superb example is Carlos Lucas Vinhos 'Cota 700', which is a firm office favourite and punches well above its price tag!

Lisboa

An under the radar region that runs from the city of Lisboa in a 150km strip northward along the Atlantic coastline, where the best vineyards

PORTUGAL

Tucked away up in the Cima Corgo sub-region, Quinta Nova sits tranquilly amongst the steep, terraced patchwork of vineyards and meandering Douro River

In the last three decades Portugal has without a doubt become one of the most exciting and creative wine producing countries in Europe. Once known solely for its prestigious Port production, there is now incredible diversity throughout the breadth and depth of country from Minho's fresh and spritzy Vinho Verde, to powerful and complex red wines in the Douro and Dão Valleys as well as ripe, more luscious red hailing from Alentejo and Lisbon. Proud of their viticultural heritage, Portuguese producers are pioneering and advocates for indigenous grapes, so there's a world to discover from Loureiro, Arinto and Alvarinho, to Touriga Nacional and Tinta Roriz!

ΠΛΥΤΟ

Greece is arguably one of the oldest winemaking countries in the world, albeit not the first country to make wine, it was indeed the Greeks who spread wine culture around the Mediterranean as far as France, Spain and Italy. Despite such a rich heritage, their unique wines have only grown in popularity in recent years thanks to the fusion of ancient tradition and modern-winemaking that highlight native varietals such as Assyrtiko and Vidiano as well as Xinomavro and Kotsifali to the show best of this new frontier.

Lebanon also boasts a 6,000 year vinous history, so you'd think that by now that Lebanese winemakers would know what they're doing... and they certainly do regardless of the surprised first reactions of wine drinkers when they learn that Lebanon has a recognised fine wine industry. Indigenous and international varietals thrive in the mountainous landscapes of the Bekaa Valley and Batroun creating rich, round whites and full-bodied, robust reds that are well worth discovering.

LYRARAKIS – GREECE

The Lyrarakis estate is a family vineyard and winery which has been producing high quality wines since 1966. It is located to the south of the city of Herakloin in the Alagni commune (Crete), where Myriam Ambuzer oversees winemaking and focuses on native varieties such as Assyrtiko and Vidiano as well as Kotsifali to produce precise, pure, and fruit-forward wines with a real sense of place.

New Zealand is a tale of two islands where vineyards on both sides naturally enjoy a maritime climate. The cool nights and sea breezes help to produce high quality grapes with balanced acidity and great purity of fruit.

There is an impressive range of grape varieties now grown in New Zealand including classics such as Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. However, there are some producers pushing boundaries and have started to successfully grow Riesling and Pinot Gris as well as Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Tempranillo. The majority of wine regions are found on the East coast of both islands such as Hawke's Bay, Martinborough, Marlborough and Otago, which are all protected by the Southern Alps mountain range.

Villa Maria is one of New Zealand's most popular and most awarded producers who has been at the forefront of the Kiwi wine industry since its inception in the early 1960s. Ever the pioneer and never one to rest on its laurels, the winery continues founder Sir George Fistonich's innovative spirit with the Earth Garden range. These are the first wines to be 100% organically grown and certified, cultivated in vineyards with wildflower gardens between rows and regenerative viticulture to maintain soil health and ecosystems thriving.

SOUTH AFRICA

Glorious golden hour as the sun sets over the Klein Constantia vineyards at the foothills of the Constantiaberg Mountain in the Western Cape

The hub of South Africa's wine production takes place in South-Western flank of the country known as the Western Cape. Here many regions bask in a Mediterranean climate with long, warm and sunny summers which are tempered by a cooling wind known as the 'Cape Doctor'.

From Franschhoek to Stellenbosch and Hemel-en-Aarde, the mountainous slopes and valleys are perfect for both grape growing and producing high quality wines. The country is mainly known for its iconic grape Pinotage (a Pinot Noir-Cinsault cross), however, great examples of Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay, Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot are waiting to be discovered. South Africa offers some of the best value wines available in the southern hemisphere.

Dream Wine DESTINATIONS

Inspired not only by our own wine trips, but by our customers (you know who you are!), why not do something different with your holiday and take a wine trip. Immerse yourself in the local wine culture as you taste your way around the world. From luxurious wine trains in Napa Valley, to street festivals in Jerez and bicycle tours in Burgundy; here are our top dream wine destinations to get your wine fix, wherever you are!

La Feria del Caballo Jerez 4th-11th May 2024 (Jerez de la Frontera, Spain)

A very traditional and important festival in Jerez, located in the southwest of Spain, deep within the famous Sherry producing region. May is also the perfect time to visit Andalucia before it gets too hot! Most of the sherry towns have their own version of 'La Feria', however, our suggestion would be to focus on Jerez; the largest and most accessible. You will be able to soak up so much culture in a short space of time. Expect a series of flamboyant equestrian displays with endless volumes of chilled sherry and other local wines. There will be immaculately presented horses, carriages, flamenco dancing, bright colours, and the very best tapas. It's a fantastic people watching opportunity in tandem with cultural activities conducted with pure exuberance. Stay in Jerez and visit nearby Cádiz or Sanlúcar de Barrameda, to completely immerse yourself in all things Andalucia...

Bordeaux Wine Festival 27th- 30th June 2024 (Bordeaux, France)

This festival is very special and takes place in late June on the left bank of the region's famed water course, the River Garonne. Traditionally a very divergent river in terms of winemaking depending on which side you are situated. A river that divides opinions and unique terroirs once a year does the very opposite and brings everyone together to celebrate all things Bordeaux. Essentially, the festival is an outdoor tasting nerve centre with many themes from on site catering, live music, tours of local attractions such as the Tall Ships (if you are after a very wine trade focussed activity), interactive tasting events as well as drone displays. For an historic region, this is quite a modern experience and way to sample its wines. Take advantage of this unique opportunity to expose yourself to what the region offers both in a cultural, and vinous capacity!

Visit www.bordeaux-wine-festival.com for a plethora of helpful information on ticketing etc.

Franschhoek Wine Tram (Franschhoek, South Africa)

The Cape Region of South Africa offers breathtaking scenery, incredible culinary produce and, of course, a rich tapestry of fine wine. If you're planning a trip to Cape Town or Stellenbosch, seriously consider a sojourn over to nearby Franschhoek where you can board the gentle wine tram. Choose the 'hop on, hop off' approach as you please, or settle for a guided tour where you don't have to plan a thing! Highlight visits would include Chamonix Wine Estate, Vrede en Lust and our very own close friends; Franschhoek Cellar Wine Estate. The website below has detailed and helpful information. While it maybe tricky to enjoy a glass of wine on the tram, you are guaranteed some time to sit back and relax on the railroad barge!

Visit www.winetram.co.za to book your tickets now.

Napa Wine Train (near San Francisco, USA)

If you find yourself over the pond in the San Francisco Bay area, why not explore the world-famous Napa Valley wine region by rail? You will be wined and dined until your heart is content amongst the iconic scenery of this often-overlooked wine growing region. Forget Blossom Hill and Echo Falls... California has always produced some seriously high-end wine that often never leaves the State line... So, this is possibly the best way to take in a few iconic wineries in a single day. Daytime, evening, or full-day itineraries are available all year round. The most terrific route takes you from Napa (about 50 miles north of San Francisco) to St Helena and back again. It's roughly a 36-mile round trip with several stops that allow you to visit esteemed producers such as Cakebread and Opus One as well as Charles Krug.

“Why not do something different with your holiday and take a wine trip. Immerse yourself in the local wine culture as you taste your way around the world.”

Visit www.winetrain.com where you can take a virtual tour of the train to further tempt you to get on board!

Burgundy by bike (Dijon or Beaune, France)

La Bourgogne, the land of quality mustard and arguably some of the world's most revered wine. This picture-postcard region with its beautifully tiled roofs and cherished vineyards simply must be visited. The pace of life is tranquil, and our suggestion is to absorb this impressive rural expanse properly and therefore adopt transport with a similar ethos, the humble bicycle. Burgundy is easily accessible by flying to either Lyon or Geneva. Failing that, why not plan a trip to Paris on the Eurostar? You can then nip down to Dijon or plot a trip on the way to or from the Alps by road. The cycle routes are ubiquitous and the picnic locations between cellar doors are plentiful; so, you really can't go wrong. Do research where to stop as well as their opening times, as not to be caught out by the famous French two-hour lunch! By cycling, you can quite literally get off the beaten track, giving you the chance to explore some of the more obscure villages who's wines don't often get exported. Get in touch for advice!

Finally, don't forget to look up the burgeoning list of wine hotels that have sprung up in the last decade. Not only can you stay, but you can enjoy Michelin starred restaurants, wine tours, spas and of course, a stellar wine list will await your arrival.

In the shadow of the Andes mountain range, Kaiken's Malbec vines grow in the high altitude Luján de Cuyo area of Mendoza

It's all about the Andes when it comes to climate and terroir in South America. The high-altitude vineyards of Mendoza in Argentina find the perfect balance between hot days and cool evenings to fully ripen grapes, whereas vines on the steep slopes in Colchagua Valley are tempered by the Arctic winds of the Humboldt Current. As a result of these unique conditions the wines are fresh, clean and fruit driven. Argentina's most famous grape without doubt is Malbec, however, don't be afraid to try Cabernet Sauvignon or give Torrontés a go.

If you want to be adventurous then cross the border into Chile and try their Sauvignon Blanc, Viognier, Carménère and Pinot Noir wines, they should not be missed!

CARO (LAFITE ROTHSCHILD) – MENDOZA, ARGENTINA

Bodegas Caro is a co-venture between Domaines Barons de Rothschild (Lafite) and Nicolás Catena's Argentinian winery. One of the top priorities for Domaines Barons de Rothschild (Lafite) and the Catena family was to select the finest terroir to enhance the alliance between Malbec and Cabernet Sauvignon. The plots of vines come from within the Catena family's own vineyards and are supplemented with grapes from other top vineyards in Mendoza, known for the high quality of their fruit, and in particular, old vine Malbec.

CATENA – MENDOZA, ARGENTINA

Founded in 1902, Bodegas Catena Zapata is without a doubt one of the best producers in Argentina, known for its pioneering role in heavy research and development of Malbec, truly placing it on the world stage. The iconic Nicolás Catena has now passed the reigns over to his daughter, Laura, who has the same drive and dedication to produce world class wines.

USA

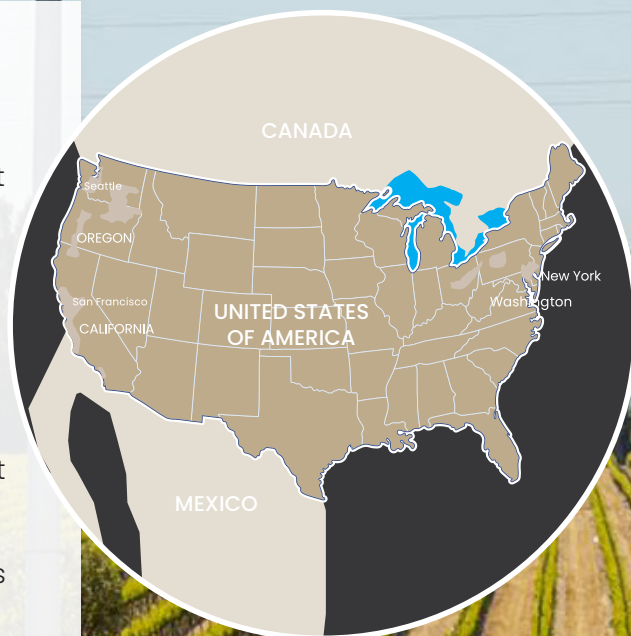

Flanked by the Gabilan mountain range to the east and the Santa Lucia Mountains to the west, the Salinas Valley maintains its cool coastal conditions due to the influence of the Monterey Bay

The world's fourth largest wine producer, the United States has a wine history dating back to the 1600s, when colonisation began in earnest. More or less every state produces wine, however, mostly in tiny proportions. Over 95% of the output is restricted to just four states: California, Oregon, Washington and New York. California then produces about 80% of that output, making it far and away the capital of wine in the United States.

There are a plethora of grapes to choose from with regulations being more lenient than other countries, though the intense, creamy Chardonnays of California are the most famous white export. Amongst the red wines, loud and proud Zinfandel is California's statement wine, along with Cabernet Sauvignon, which relishes the warm California sunshine as well as riper, more fleshy and rounded styles of Pinot Noir.

DE LOACH - RUSSIAN RIVER VALLEY (SONOMA COUNTY)

Based in the Russian River Valley AVA of Sonoma County, De Loach has been tweaking and perfecting their combination of soils, microclimates and varietals for over 30 years. In 2003, the Boisset family brought two generations worth of sustainable winemaking experience and know-how from Burgundy to California with the aim of re-focusing on the estates winemaking philosophy of small plot, high quality wines.

SCHEID VINEYARDS - SALINAS VALLEY (MONTEREY COUNTY)

Al Scheid first purchased a 10-acre parcel located on the edge of Greenfield, Monterey County in 1972. Monterey winemaking was still in its infancy; however, Al was drawn to the region for its untapped potential. Almost five decades later and having been joined by his son Scott and daughter Heidi, the family business has changed from selling its entire production, to a grape-to-glass estate that produces authentic and elegant wines. Furthermore, the family are fully committed to sustainable production; all vineyards are certified sustainable, all wastewater is recycled, grape must is made into compost and reused as nutritional spread in the vineyards, as well as implementing drip irrigation. As Al once said, "great wine begins in the vineyard", and this family motto still rings true today.

SWEETIE CORNER

At Bon Coeur, we believe that sweet and stickies are often under-appreciated and overlooked. From the iconic botrytis-affected wines of Sauternes, Barsac and Tokaji to the passito method of Recioto and straw wines of South Africa, as well as frozen Eiswein from Germany and ice cider from Sweden, and everything in between. We have a wonderful selection just waiting to be discovered...

LIGHT AND VIBRANT

Made with a range of grapes Sauvignon Blanc and Sémillon, to Furmint and Hárslevelű to name but a few, these wines are aromatic and vibrant with notes of lemon, apricot, and peach with touches of honey. Fresh, clean, and balanced on the mid-palate with a lovely, ethereal mouthfeel and uplifting acidity. A classic combination is Sauternes and strong blue cheese such as Roquefort... however, these wines work wonderfully serve chilled with oysters or foie gras, as well as with panna cotta and mille-feuille!

BRÄNNLAND – SWEDEN

Founded in 2010, Brännland Cider produces exceptional artisanal ice cider from a combination of orchards in Sweden; the winter apples are hand-picked in both their home county of Västerbotten on the Baltic seaboard, as well as from a specific, carefully selected grower in the heart of the Swedish apple country in the south. The production method is exactly the same as for ice wine, whereby apples are frozen during the depths of winter and thus concentrating the natural sugars and then in the Spring cider must is extracted (between 35-40 Brix), which is fermented slowly to create a wonderful, sweet yet balanced ice cider.

RECOMMENDATIONS

La Guita Manzanilla 37.5cl

The purest expression of flor-aged Sherry, meaning the wine has been interacting with a local yeast called 'flor' while ageing in oak barrels. Produced and matured close to the coast, this dry style offers intense green apple skin notes, fresh dough, stone fruit and a salinity matched only by the surrounding ocean breeze. Pair with olives, freshly prepared salad, or salted almonds.

Alfonso Oloroso, Gonzalez Byass 75cl

Oloroso is a style produced with no interaction with 'flor' and so the wine is essentially a very old fortified white wine which soaks up the flavour of almost a decade in large oak barrels. It boasts wonderful aromas and flavours of salted caramel, hazelnut, candied orange peel – a real sensory encounter. A dry style perfect with mushrooms, hard cheese, or red meat.

Dulce Nombre 1986 Sweet Palomino, Gonzalez Byass 50cl

A rule breaker and rare anomaly. Most sweet sherries are produced from one grape: Pedro Ximénez (PX for short), however, here is a sweet wine made from the Palomino grape... very unusual and opposing traditions. Furthermore, it's also vintage from 1986! You'll find multi-layered flavours of coffee, chocolate praline, sultanas, and heaps of clove spice on this special wine.

La Copa Vermouth Rojo 75cl

Sherry Vermouth! The key here is using older material before the liquid is macerated through a plethora of botanicals. It's produced from 8-year-old dry Oloroso and sweet PX, so the complexity is enormous; cola, cinnamon, orange peel, clove, star anise, menthol... so much going on. Try it simply on the rocks with a wedge of fresh orange or play around with your own version of Negroni.

Nomad Outland Whisky 70cl

Not a Sherry but this perambulating Whisky does share a huge association to the Andalusian climate. A blend of single-malt Scotch Whisky, nearly 10 years old, transported to Jerez and further aged in old sherry casks at González Byass. Final finish in a combination of Tio Pepe and PX casks in the Mediterranean weather makes a huge difference, giving this dram a spicy, sweet finish. A real innovative crowd pleaser.

THE SHERRY REVOLUTION

The wonderful and generally misunderstood microcosm of Sherry in recent years has often been marketed as a revival or revolutionary category in the sphere of wine. We've been subjected to flirtatious packaging, colourful labels on limited edition products targeted at new demographics of consumers... but for the first time in many many years, the region and its wines are genuinely undergoing a transformation! Take a dive with us into arguably the best value style of wine you could ever hope to enjoy. The region of Sherry in the south west of Spain has everything – a range of wines transcending categories, offering flavours from bone dry and refreshing, to ultra sweet, not to mention how food versatile they all are. Finally, the potential to be included in a plethora of cocktails.

Even with the recent duty increase (whereupon fortified wines have suffered severely), Sherry still offers tremendous value. You can obtain up a 30 year old bottle of wine for a fraction of the price comparably to other classic regions around the world, not to mention spirits of a similar age statement. Aside from the Fino sherries, the wines also keep remarkably well once open in the fridge. You'll easily get a couple of months enjoyment out of Olorosos, Palo Cortados and the sweeter medium styles, sherry vermouth and PX much much longer, so don't be afraid to expand your own horizons if you are not familiar with how many styles sherry has to offer. That is, if you're able to resist drinking them before then!

Sherry wines have long been a hidden gem for their quality, but have also suffered from being misunderstood. Many consumers believe sherry only to be sweet and this is simply not the case – the vast majority of wines are actually bone dry and these are generally the styles more typically enjoyed domestically in any Tabanco in the south west of Spain.

Now is the time for the real revolution; new regulations are being carried out in the region for the first time in many, many years. In fact, it is only the sixth time a change has been made since 1935! Just some of the changes include:

- Single Vineyard or site specific wines will be permitted.
- Fortification of wines will not be mandatory.
- Six new grape varieties will be permitted for use in the production of Sherry.
- Extension of the permitted regional growing area for grapes.

There are many more changes occurring too and we will likely witness much more maverick winemaking in the coming months, utilising new grapes, new methods of production and ageing. This region is already wide open with opportunity but has been given a fresh lease of life to expand the horizons even further. Watch this space!

SHERRY COCKTAIL

Sherry has so much potential for cocktails given its wide-ranging variety of flavour characteristics. Even substituting Tio Pepe Fino for Gin with your tonic gives a unique experience and lowers ABV! Or you could use La Copa Sherry Vermouth in your Negroni for incredible and memorable complexity. The opportunities are endless, here we've shared a few basic 'hacks' and will end with our favourite Sherry based cocktail.

- Substitute Fino for half of the fresh lemon juice in any cocktail
- Experiment with Oloroso, Amontillado, Palo Cortado or PX instead of sweet vermouth in any recipe
- Extend gin drinks with Fino
- Extend Scotch drinks with Oloroso
- Extend Rum drinks with Palo Cortado or PX
- Add oxidative notes to any drink with Oloroso
- Add salinity to any drink by adding Fino

Camomile Martini

Ingredients

- 1 1/2 oz Dry Gin of your choice
- 1 oz Tío Pepe Fino
- 1/2 oz honey water
- 1/2 oz fresh lemon juice
- 1 oz strong camomile tea
- 2 springs of lemon thyme

Select Your favourite martini glass (or nearest equivalent), combine ingredients. Shake well & double strain over ice. Garnish with a sprig of charred lemon thyme or rosemary from the garden!

SHERRY

Sherry is made in the southern Spanish region of Andalucía, where the villages of Jerez de la Frontera, El Puerto de Santa María and Sanlúcar de Barrameda are affectionately known as the 'Sherry triangle'. The three key grapes; Palomino Fino, Moscatel and Pedro Ximénez produce a vast range of styles from bone dry Fino and Manzanilla, to complex Oloroso and Palo Cortado as well as deliciously sweet Pedro Ximénez. There is so much more waiting to be discovered than the bottle of Sherry tucked away in Granny's cupboard for Christmas!

Port is a fortified wine produced in the northern region of the Douro, Portugal. The majority of vineyards are located roughly 50 miles inland from the city of Porto in the Cima Corgo, Baixo Corgo and Douro Superior sub-regions. Port can be made from a blend of more than 80 permitted grapes, however, the main varieties for red wine are Touriga Franca, Touriga Nacional, Tinta Roriz, Tinta Barroca as well as Tinta Cão and for white wine Malvasia Fina and Gouveio. The grapes are crushed by foot in traditional stone lagares, which gently releases colour, tannin and flavour. Port can vary dramatically in style from clean and crisp White to nutty Tawny, fruity Reserve and Late Bottled Vintage as well as the powerful and most sought after, Vintage Port.

TAWNY

Tawny Ports undertake extensive ageing periods in wooden casks, exposing them to gentle and controlled oxidation. As a result, they gradually mellow to a golden-brown colour and develop complex and concentrated flavours of nuts, dried fruit, coffee and caramel. There are two styles of Tawny; a house style blend of recent vintages with no specific indication of age known as 'fine' or 'basic' Tawny, as well as older wines bottled and labelled as 10, 20, 30 and 40-year-old.

LATE BOTTLED VINTAGE (LBV)

Late Bottled Vintage Ports are made with grapes taken from a single harvest, yet not necessarily a declared vintage year. They have been aged for 4-6 years, usually in large oak vessels, which makes the wines more approachable on release and rarely benefit from ageing.

SINGLE QUINTA VINTAGE

Single Quinta Vintage Ports are produced from a Port house's finest single estate or 'quinta' from one specific year (that is not a declaration). They are made in a very similar way to Vintage Port; where ageing takes place for 2-3 years in oak casks, followed by at least 10-15 years ageing in bottle. Single Quinta Vintage Port are usually more approachable and offer good value for money. As they are bottled with their sediment, they need to be decanted before drinking.

VINTAGE PORT

Vintage Port is a small fraction of total production; however, they are the finest examples of Port and are only declared once or twice per decade. It is the flagship wine for each house created from a blend finest vineyard plots from one single year. Vintage Port is aged for an average of 24-30 months in wooden casks, followed by then at least 15-20 years ageing in bottle. As Vintage Ports are bottled with their sediment, they need to be decanted before drinking.
