MESSAGE FROM Pam McCormack

President of the Sherwood Park & District Chamber of Commerce

Welcome to the Chamber Connection, your convenient desktop reference for goods and services available right here in Sherwood Park and Strathcona County.

We ask that everyone, when possible, shop local and support the businesses that support our community.

The Sherwood Park & District Chamber of Commerce is where local businesses Meet, Learn, Speak, and help each other's businesses to grow through member benefits, events, and government advocacy.

Some of the Chamber's many activities include:

- Facilitating networking events that build relationships among Chamber members that lead to new business opportunities and increased sales.
- Learning opportunities regarding topics that are timely and relevant to business owners and key staff. These opportunities can be in the form of workshops or presentations at events.
- Speaking as a strong voice on business issues to advocate for change positively but forthrightly at the local, regional, provincial, and federal levels in concert with the Alberta Chambers of Commerce and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

- Affordable programs for Chamber members such as healthcare benefits, merchant services programs and commercial/home/auto insurance, courier, and fuel discounts.

Businesses and industry create wealth and jobs in our community and provide 66 per cent of the municipal tax revenue, which helps pay for services such as police and fire protection, parks and recreation, road repairs, and snow removal.

It is the investment from our membership, by way of annual membership dues and community events, which allows the Chamber to strengthen both in numbers and influence. The Chamber membership provides a tremendous number of volunteer hours throughout the year, dedicating both time and sponsorship to our numerous events. I thank every one of you for your continued support.

On behalf of the 975+ businesses who belong to the Sherwood Park & District Chamber of Commerce, I invite you to visit and shop at the businesses listed in the Chamber Connection. You will find both the services and the quality of goods are unsurpassed. With your support, we will continue to grow and strengthen this progressive community. ●

MESSAGE FROM THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL

Rod Frank

Welcome to Strathcona County!

Discover Strathcona County, our unique and thriving specialized municipality, located on the eastern boundary of the Edmonton Metro Region. We are home to the Alberta Industrial Heartland, the UNESCO-designated Beaver Hills Biosphere at Elk Island National Park, the Strathcona Industrial Association, a diverse agricultural sector and so much more.

With over 100,000 residents living across dynamic rural and urban communities, we are a County that strives to provide an exemplary standard of service for our residents, in a fiscally responsible manner. Strathcona County is, and will continue to be, a truly desirable place to live, work and do business.

I encourage you to explore all that Strathcona County has to offer. Take a drive and see the many natural areas and amenities we are blessed with. The sheer size of Strathcona County, at nearly 1,200 square kilometers, needs to be seen to be appreciated.

Every corner of the County offers something unique, from the historic Bremner House, Class 1 farmland and petrochemical refining in the north, to the lakes and country residences in the east, to the rolling hills and acreages of Colchester in the south and the urban community of Sherwood Park in the west. I recommend exploring all nine of our hamlets, and all that they have to offer, to gain a true appreciation for what makes Strathcona County great.

The Alberta Industrial Heartland and Strathcona Industrial Association are indeed the heart of Western Canada's energy and petrochemical sector. This is the lifeblood of our economy and provides a rich environment for small- and medium-sized businesses to grow and prosper. Opportunity is in abundance in Strathcona County.

Of course, Strathcona County proudly builds upon this foundation by investing in fantastic services for our residents. Our fire, police, roads, transit, parks and recreational and cultural services are truly top tier.

Make sure you take advantage of our many recreation facilities. Outdoor amenities include extensive trail systems, the Strathcona Wilderness Centre, the Cooking Lake - Blackfoot Provincial Recreation Area and of course Elk Island National Park.

Indoor recreation amenities include Millennium Place, the Glen Allan Recreation Complex, the Ardrossan Recreation Complex, the Kinsmen Leisure Centre and the Emerald Hills Leisure Centre.

Ensure that you try some of our many local restaurants and take in some local entertainment and shopping. The Sherwood Park Farmers Market is another great way to become familiar with local craft.

We encourage you to make the most of your time here in Strathcona County. Welcome! ●

ADVOCACY IN ACTION

Driving policy change for business

By the Sherwood Park & District Chamber

The Sherwood Park & District Chamber of Commerce prides itself for the political advocacy that it provides to our members. Whether member concerns with government are federal, provincial, regional or municipal we draft policies that help businesses save money, cut red tape, and change processes to make it easier to deal with the government. Sherwood Park & District Chamber of Commerce produced nine Provincial Policies that were approved at the Alberta Chambers of Commerce Conference and AGM May 23 – 24 in Medicine Hat. These policies are now in the applicable ministers' offices for consideration.

Sustainability of Canada/ Alberta's energy industry

Global energy demand is increasing, thereby creating a need to develop energy in all forms. Canada can become one of the world's preferred energy suppliers, generating economic benefits across the Nation and reducing environmental impacts domestically as well as internationally. In order for Canada to compete on the global stage, the industry must maintain competitiveness and attract new global investment. However, at a time when global demand is on the rise, Canada's investment in upstream oil and gas is expected to decline, or at best remain flat. For several years, investor confidence in Canada's oil and gas industry has eroded and continues to be a concern due to a number of factors. Amongst these are market access, regulatory uncertainty, and the cost of doing business (which includes regulatory costs).

Background

Canada is the fifth-largest global producer of natural gas and the fourth-largest global producer of oil²⁴. With our vast resource base, world leading environmental standards, and all – encompassing regulatory regime, Canada should be a global supplier of choice. Unfortunately, numerous market dynamics have resulted in reduced investor confidence over the past several years, leading to a shift in Canada's competitiveness in the global market. This lack of investment has also impacted Canada's downstream value-add sector that includes petrochemicals, chemicals, and fuels. Canada has an advantaged feedstock position for downstream manufacturing, but with the cuts in upstream spending and limited fully integrated projects, Canada is not capturing the full value of its resources in the production of higher valued products for domestic and international markets.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Alberta:

1. Work with municipal governments, the federal government, and industry to create guiding principles that reduce regulatory burdens, creating an environment where Alberta industry is globally competitive in project timelines and economic competitiveness;
2. Establish policies that are clear, transparent, and provide long-term certainty to investors;
3. Provide a clear and concise policy on stakeholder engagement and consultations, including with Indigenous partners, which is consistent between all projects; and,

4. Continue to support and promote the important work being done in Alberta to produce decarbonized energy for Canada and the world such as current work around hydrogen, carbon capture utilization and storage, and the circular economy

Domestic reclaimed water use

Health Canada has guidelines for domestic reclaimed water use in toilet and urinal flushing but Alberta does not follow these guidelines as our province does not use reclaimed (grey) water.

Background

In May 2001, British Columbia published a code of practice for the use of reclaimed water (BCMELP, 2001)26, which serves as a key reference and guidance document for the use of reclaimed water in British Columbia and is designed to support the regulatory requirements prescribed in the municipal sewage regulation. In 2002, it was stated that roughly three per cent of wastewater in B.C. is reused (Maralek et al, 2002) and reuse is a key component in British Columbia's water conservation strategy. Currently, these guidelines do not apply to Alberta as Alberta does not differentiate between black water and grey water. All sanitary effluent is considered black water only.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Alberta:

1. Adopt guideline values as per Canadian Guidelines for Domestic Reclaimed Water for Use in Toilet and Urinal Flushing by Health Canada as a starting point with opportunity to move forward for additional recycle of water options in the future; and,
2. Allow the use of domestic reclaimed water and storm water in toilet flushing, irrigation, and industry in Alberta.

Regulatory approval for soil and water technologies

There are approval mechanisms in place for drinking water and wastewater plants, and for Alberta transportation usage as well as across Canada. However, there is currently no existing mechanism for product approval for industry in Alberta for water or soil chemical usages that supports the best available technologies. Current acceptance only requires that a material safety data sheet and toxicology report be provided. However, there is no minimum/maximum threshold guidance, and there is broad acceptance of products that still pose significant risk.

We appreciate recent government action taken to address some concerns. There is still, however, more important work to be done, especially for products that focus on soil chemistry.

Background

Many of the products used today also pose a risk via the carrier/distribution means (e.g., surfactants, etc.). There are limited guidance and decision-making tools available to regulatory staff in accepting the best product (via the current system -MSDS/toxicity report, yet no range/thresholds). Although regulatory fines are starting to become more significant, enforcement capabilities are still limited, and toxic products and dated processes are still heavily used.

Many effective products cannot find their way to market easily because end users typically request approvals letters from the regulators before they change a product, regardless of cost. Regulators, such as Environment Canada or Alberta regulatory groups such as AEP (Alberta Energy and Parks), AER (Alberta Energy Regulator), state that they are unable to provide such approval. The cost to bring a new technology or product to market is prohibitive enough without having to compete with the very regulations, or lack thereof, that should be supporting more environmentally friendly solutions.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Alberta:

1. Consult with stakeholders to develop consistent requirements for regulations within the environmental sector;
2. Ensure that regulations apply to any new products, processes, and technologies, as well as all existing products, processes, and technologies;
3. Ensure that toxicological studies have been performed on all products being used and are available on request (new and existing) in addition to the provision of MSDS sheets;
4. Ensure that regulations municipally, provincially, and federally are streamlined, consistently applied, and have a coordinated regulatory approval process; and,
5. Implement a product-review standard between the various regulators. If the product or technology meets the criteria, then it passes for all the regulators.

Reduce Alberta corporate income tax rates

Since corporate income tax represents a significant percentage of pre-tax income, decision-makers are extremely sensitive to corporate income tax rates. It is in Alberta's best interests to reduce and keep corporate income taxes low to attract business to Alberta and retain them in our province.

Background

Corporations seeking to expand or relocate examine many factors; often the projected "after-tax" return on investment is one of the primary considerations. Since corporate income tax represents a significant percentage of pre-tax income, decision-makers are extremely sensitive to corporate income tax rates. Corporations have learned to be internationally mobile to gain both marketing and financial advantages, including tax advantages. It is well proven around the world that creating a low corporate tax environment attracts investment in capital, growth in trade and commerce, as well as the relocation of corporate head offices and wealthy/high-income individuals.

Within Canada, there are now three provinces with lower tax rates for small businesses than Alberta.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce

recommends the Government of Alberta:

1. Ensure that the Alberta small business and general corporate tax rate applicable to Canadian controlled private corporations does not exceed the lowest tax rate in other Canadian provinces or territories

Amend the definition of "Liability" in the Alberta Business Corporations Act

Recent accounting changes implemented by the Chartered Professional Accountants of Canada, effective for fiscal years beginning on or after January 1, 2021, require retractable or mandatorily redeemable shares ("ROMRS") issued in a tax planning arrangement be classified in the issuer corporation's financial statements as liabilities, rather than outstanding equity shares. These changes are wholly inconsistent with long-standing tax policy under the Alberta Corporate Tax Act as well as the Income Tax Act (Canada) and will seriously impede a wide range of tax planning transactions commonly undertaken by Alberta entrepreneurs.

Background

Recent changes implemented by CPA Canada will affect holders of preferred shares of a private corporation that carry a right to require the redemption on demand of those shares if they were issued as part of a "tax planning arrangement." The amendments (which presently are in effect) "provide new conditions that must be met in order for ROMRS issued in a tax planning arrangement to be classified as equity....” In reality, in our view, these "new conditions" will rarely be able to be met - with the result that retractable preferred shares that are issued by many private corporations in Alberta to achieve legitimate tax planning objectives (including estate freezes and non-arm's length tax-deferred transfers of property in which taxable gain has accrued) that have long existed in Canada.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Alberta:

1. Amends the definition of "liabilities" currently set forth in subsection 35(4) of the ABCA to add the following wording at the end of the current definition:

"...and for the purposes of this Act, a validly issued and outstanding share in the capital of a corporation shall constitute equity, and not a liability, of that corporation notwithstanding the enactment or establishment by any non-governmental body, including one that governs or regulates any profession, of any rule or provision to the effect that any such share shall constitute a liability of the corporation."

Exempt spouses from tax on split income

Allowing Canadian-controlled private corporations (CCPC's) to split income would create consistency within the treatment of income taxes. It would also support the success and enhance the growth of small businesses, especially family-based businesses.

Background

Historically, owners of Canadian-controlled private corporations (CCPC's) have been able to split income with family members by paying dividends on CCPC shares owned directly, or indirectly through a family trust, to family members including spouses and children. Up until 2000, this strategy was available to small business owners with respect to the payment of dividends to all family members including minor children, most often via the use of a Family Trust. The objective, and result, was the mitigation of the overall tax burden of the small business owner by being able to utilize the low marginal rates of tax for all family members by having these dividends taxed in the hands of family members rather than all in the hands of the small business owner.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Canada:

1. Immediately amend the Income Tax Act to exempt spouses from the application of the tax on split income legislation.

Comprehensive income tax reform

The Income Tax Act is becoming more complex every year, adversely affecting Canadian individuals, businesses, and Canada's global competitiveness. A comprehensive review and overhaul of the Income Tax Act, targeting the broadest base possible, with lower rates and fewer preference, would reduce compliance costs and increase transparency while promoting growth, investment, entrepreneurship, and job creation.

Background

CPA Canada has repeatedly called for the simplification of the Income Tax Act (the Act) to assist taxpayers with compliance. The Royal Commission on Taxation, better known as the "Carter Commission" conducted the last complete review of the income tax system over 50 years ago, in 1966. The 1972 Carter Commission report recommended taxation of the family as the basic unit of taxation rather than the individual with the goal of reducing complexity in the Income Tax Act and supporting Canadian families by taking into consideration the reality that the family is the basic economic unit of society. The evolution of the Act since the recommendations of the Carter Commission, and the system of taxation in Canada as a whole, has not maintained this basic reality.

Over the past 50 years, the US has undergone significant measures to reform their tax system - most recently with a lowering of personal and corporate income tax rates that is designed to attract business. The Department of Finance has not proposed any measures to ensure that Canada remains competitive, a good place for entrepreneurs, and attractive for investment in light of US tax reform. Comprehensive tax reform, reduction of taxes and efforts to simplify the Canadian tax system would help make Canada more competitive and improve the lives of all Canadians.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Canada:

1. Immediately establish a non-partisan committee consisting of a panel of experts to review the Income Tax Act and Canada's fiscal framework with the goals of modernization, simplification, and enhancing competitiveness.

Restore the integration of corporate and personal income tax

A fully integrated income tax system, as stated by the Carter Commission Report, would avoid double taxation under the corporate income tax system and the private income tax system, while ensuring that there is relative indifference between earning income through a Canadian corporation, by salary or by dividend. It would also address other distortions in Canadian taxation.

Background

The Royal Commission on Taxation, better known as the "Carter Commission", conducted its comprehensive review of the Canadian income tax system over 50 years ago in 1966, rendering its report to Canadians in 1972. The Carter Commission Report introduced, among other recommendations, the concept that income should be taxed at the same rate regardless of whether it was earned in a corporation or personally. This concept has become known as the concept of "tax integration" of the personal income tax system (PIT) and the corporate income tax system (CIT). To accomplish this objective the Canadian Income Tax Act has various tax integration mechanisms. In effect what this means is that the Canadian personal and corporate income tax systems are integrated to yield the same overall tax liability regardless of the structure used to earn the income, which, in theory, should not influence a taxpayer's decision as to whether the income should be earned personally or through a corporate structure.

The most recent changes to the Income Tax Act, Canada (the Act) have resulted in dramatic and punitive changes with the way CCPC's are taxed on active and investment income earned. The result has been the absolute decimation of the Carter Commission's objective of integration of the CIT and PIT as we have witnessed the under-integration of all forms of income distributed from a corporation grow dramatically from mere tenths of a percentage point to approximately 10 per cent in the 2021 taxation year.

As recently as 2012, the disparity between earning $1,000 of investment income in a corporation versus earning the same $1,000 personally was a mere $17.20 of additional tax paid. Today that same disparity has grown to $ — a 106 per cent increase in the associated tax cost. The value of a fully integrated income tax system, as stated by the Carter Commission Report, is to avoid double taxation under the CIT and PIT while ensuring that there is relative indifference between earning income through a Canadian corporation, by salary or by dividend.

The full integration of the CIT and PIT has the further benefit of eliminating another non-neutrality of the existing corporate income tax in Canada, the distortion of incorporation decisions. Without full integration, the combined taxation of corporate source income exceeds the taxation of comparable unincorporated businesses.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Canada:

1. Undertake a full review of the integration mechanisms that currently exist within the Act, including, but not limited to: corporate income tax rates for active small business, general and investment income; the additional tax on investment income earned in a corporation; the personal income tax dividend gross-up mechanism; and, the personal income tax dividend tax credit; the corporate income tax refundable dividend tax on hand rates; eligible dividend personal income tax rates; non-eligible dividend personal income tax rates; and, personal income tax rates; and,

2. That upon completion of this review, the Department of Finance amend the applicable rates and provisions of the Act to ensure the restoration of tax integration as recommended by the Carter Commission Report.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Alberta:

1. Implement a refundable corporate income tax mechanism to ensure that provincial personal income tax and corporate income tax systems support the integration of all forms of income earned and taxed in the province.

Enhancing municipal accountability and transparency in Alberta

A renewed focus by local governments on core services and fiscal transparency is essential to Alberta's economic competitiveness.

Background

Municipalities play a vital role in shaping strong local economies. However, business owners and residents alike face mounting concerns regarding a lack of clarity, accessibility, and accountability in municipal budgeting processes. Additionally, when municipalities extend beyond their legislated responsibilities into areas best served by the private sector, they risk distorting local markets and undermining economic competitiveness. A renewed focus on core services and transparency is essential for restoring public trust and creating conditions where businesses can thrive.

The Alberta Chambers of Commerce recommends the Government of Alberta:

1. Require municipalities to prioritize their operations around core services as outlined in the Municipal Government Act avoiding overreach into areas that duplicate or compete with private business activity;
2. Establish standardized budgeting requirements that ensure municipal budgets are easy to understand, publicly accessible, and include:
 - a) Line-by-line operational and capital expenditure breakdowns;
 - b) Performance metrics for evaluating program effectiveness;
 - c) A consistent, meaningful process for public engagement during budget development;
3. Develop a standardized framework for reporting utility costs, ensuring consistency and comparability across municipalities, including detailed annual reports on costs by program area and funding sources, as well as franchise or access fees, transmission and distribution fees; and,
4. Encourage municipalities to align local fiscal and regulatory policies with provincial initiatives to enhance Alberta's overall competitiveness and reduce excessive or duplicative regulatory requirements This includes reducing red tape, maintaining competitive tax rates, and avoiding cost structures that deter private sector investment. ●

FEDERAL POLICY ADVOCACY WITH THE CANADIAN CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

Addressing the Federal Plastics Registry and domestic reclaimed water use

The Sherwood Park & District Chamber of Commerce prides itself on the political advocacy that it provides to our members. Whether member concerns with government are federal, provincial, regional or municipal we draft policies that help businesses save money, cut red tape, and change processes to make it easier to deal with the government. Sherwood Park & District Chamber of Commerce produced two Federal Policies that were approved at the Canadian Chambers of Commerce Conference and AGM October 7 – 9 in Mississauga. These policies are now in the applicable Ministers offices for consideration.

Concerns regarding the Federal Plastics Registry implementation

The Federal Plastics Registry (FPR), though rooted in important environmental goals, presents significant concerns around regulatory duplication, administrative burden, and economic impact. Without thoughtful restructuring, the FPR risks becoming an inefficient and costly policy tool that delivers minimal environmental return.

Background

The FPR, introduced under the Canada-wide Action Plan on Zero Plastic Waste, requires annual reporting from a wide range of businesses – including resin manufacturers, importers, producers, service providers, and waste generators – on the quantity and types of plastics they handle. This includes manufacturing, importing, selling, reusing, recycling, incinerating, landfilling, or otherwise processing plastics, along with plastic waste generated at their own industrial, commercial, and institutional (ICI) facilities.

The goal is to collect consistent and transparent data across the Canadian economy to support better policy decisions, harmonize reporting across jurisdictions, and drive progress on plastic waste reduction.

Recommendations

That the Government of Canada:

1. Repeal the Federal Plastics Registry and instead focus on strengthening existing frameworks and addressing critical gaps through meaningful collaboration with provinces, territories, and industry.
2. Should repeal not be immediately feasible, delay Phase 2

implementation and initiate a full re-evaluation of the Registry's policy purpose, cost-effectiveness, and regulatory alignment, including the financial implications for SME's and publicly funded entities, such as front-line health care.

Domestic reclaimed water use

Health Canada does have starting guidelines for domestic reclaimed water use in toilet and urinal flushing, however there is opportunity for increased water reuse for toilet flushing, irrigation, and industry among Canadian jurisdictions, increasing sustainability and reducing costs for business.

Background

In May 2001, British Columbia published a Code of Practice for the Use of Reclaimed Water, which serves as a key reference and guidance document for the use of reclaimed water in British Columbia and is designed to support the regulatory requirements prescribed in the Municipal Sewage Regulation. In 2002, it was stated that three per cent of wastewater in B.C. is reused,154 and reuse is a key component in British Columbia's water conservation strategy.

The Canadian Government released the Canadian Guidelines for Domestic reuse Water for Use in Toilet and Urinal Flushing in 2010, which to date is the only national guidance on water reclamation and reuse. According to a 2020 report, B.C. is the only province with approved regulations on water reuse, and Alberta and Ontario have published guidelines on water reuse.

Recommendations

That the Government of Canada:

1. Work with all provinces, territories, and Indigenous communities to encourage the use of domestic reclaimed water and storm water in toilet flushing, irrigation, and industry. ●
