Both splashes are rendered in a light gray, semi-transparent style, showing the dynamic, irregular edges of water droplets. The overall aesthetic is clean and minimalist.

“One Last Bow”

A short film on our uniqueness.

Hi,

I hope you enjoy these films! Please subscribe to my YouTube channel to see my lengthier films, as well as my latest shorts, posted every week or two.

At the end of each film you'll noticed a link to my "Love, God" online storefront.

This is where I offer unique tiles that correspond to my film topics, such as "You Matter More Than You Know", "Angels Surround You", and "You Are Never Alone". They are intended as a creative and quick reference to a favorite message or film. These original tiles feature my photography as well, more of which can be seen at www.BethKPhoto.com.

This section features a catalogue of "Love, God" tiles and messages, with a direct link to purchase each one. If you click on the image it will take you directly to the storefront for that specific tile.

I hope that you find something that speaks to your heart, and please visit my storefront and YouTube channel any time you need to be reassured that you matter. I believe we all make a MUCH bigger difference than we can comprehend.

Thank you again for your support of my creative contribution to our collective journey. It's an honor to be here with you.

Namaste,
Beth

A Lifetime of Listening

About Beth:

My first memory was of being in a crib and noticing that as I changed my little body, the light and framing would change too. I would “borrow” my mother’s Kodak Instamatic when I was six, telling the strangers I would photograph that I was on assignment with Life Magazine. While I never actually had that honor, I knew at that young an age that time was worth capturing.

Since retiring from a forty plus year career as an event, portrait and documentary photographer that included work in such publications as Time Magazine and Rolling Stone, I have been focusing my passion, talents and energy on creating short, inspirational films and tiles that remind us that we matter.

I feel strongly that it’s an especially important time to be a voice of encouragement, and I thank you again for helping to support my efforts to remind us that no one is alone.

We’re all in this together.

All the Best,
Beth
