THE GLOBAL WATER CRISIS UNVEILED

2 × 45' (ENG, GER), 90' (GER) | 2023
Kinescope Film, Radio Bremen, arte, nordmedia

Water is scarce yet the global demand continues to increase exponentially. The water crisis is a consequence of the increasing water consumption due to our way of life - or is it just that the resource is unevenly distributed around the world? Humanity is facing existential conflicts over the use and distribution of the most important resource on this planet. This investigative documentary explores the central themes of the global water crisis through the captivating stories of international protagonists from Spain, France, the US, Egypt, and India.

A tank is shown from a low angle, moving along a dirt road. The tank's long barrel is prominent, extending from the left side of the frame towards the right. The tank's tracks are visible, and a cloud of dust is rising from the road behind it. The background consists of a line of trees under a clear blue sky.

NEW CHALLENGES AND CHANCES

52' (ENG, GER), 90' (GER) | 2024

Hoferichter & Jacobs, ARD, arte, Deutsche Welle

The peace dividend after the end of the Cold War has been used up. In the 75th year of its existence, the NATO and its member countries are undergoing a profound self-discovery. The confrontation with Russia, which has been looming since 2014 has turned into open hostility with the Russian war of aggression against Ukraine in February 2022. The film recounts the balance of the military alliance, which has undergone massive changes since the fall of the Iron Curtain. Is the alliance prepared to defend itself and, above all, how stable is it in the face of the very different interests of its members?

POLAND ON THE FRONTLINE BETWEEN CONFIDENCE AND CONCERN

45' (ENG, GER) | 2023 | Cardomedia, WDR

"We have to be able to defend ourselves, we have already experienced not being helped before", - these are phrases you can often hear in Poland at the moment. Since Russia's war of aggression, Poland has been a frontline state and has also taken on a new role in the world: it pushed ahead when it came to supplying heavy weapons to Ukraine and wants to build the largest army in Europe. The threats are palpable in the country. How could a misguided Ukrainian anti-aircraft missile hit the small village of Przewodów? What danger is posed by the Wagner group stationed in Belarus? And could the threat from Belarus ultimately be even more dangerous for Poland than the Russian war in Ukraine?

MARIUPOL. OCCUPATION.

52' (ENG) | 2023 | OUP Documentary

This is Andriy's story, and Mariupol is his hometown. In the spring of 2022, the whole world watched live as Russian troops destroyed the Ukrainian city of Mariupol, bearing witness to the suffering endured by those unfortunate enough to be present during the blockade. Andriy was born and brought up in Mariupol. His mother died there during the blockade last year. Andriy still hasn't been able to visit her grave - Mariupol and its surroundings have been under occupation for a year now. How does this city live? Who is left in it? What have the invaders done to Mariupol and its people?

MAASTRICHT

THE TREATY THAT CHANGED EUROPE

52' (ENG, GER) | 2023
Hoferichter & Jacobs, MDR, arte

Thirty years ago, the European Community was transformed into the European Union with the Treaty of Maastricht. The Treaty introduced European citizenship, laid the foundation for the single market, and prepared for the introduction of the Euro. Today, the EU is crumbling. National-conservative parties are stirring up opposition to the idea of a unified Europe, even advocating its dissolution. The documentary tells the story from the point of view of a generation that has grown up with a unified Europe and goes on a journey across the continent to explore the legacy of Maastricht. The route leads from Portugal in the far west of Europe to the eastern border of the EU.

*THE EXPLOITATION

52' (ENG, GER) | 2023
berlin producers, NEDA Films, SP-I,
WDR, arte, SRF, SVT, SRT Media

We enjoy a year-round supply of cheap fruits and vegetables in our supermarkets - but how are the working conditions of the farmworkers who harvest them for us? This documentary traces the greens from our shopping cart to the farmland in Europe and exposes the systematic exploitation of harvest workers, especially migrants. How does the fruit and vegetable system and its trade chains work? What are the real costs of the products we buy? What should a kilo of exploitation-free tomatoes cost? The film does not only investigate the issues but also explores potential alternatives and engages in conversations with farmers committed to cultivating fruits and vegetables without exploiting their farm workers.

HOW DEMO- CRACIES DIE

THE ROAD TO ILLIBERAL DEMOCRACY

2 × 45' (ENG, GER) | Release: Fall 2024
Autentic, 3sat

The state of Europe is bad, to say the least. Almost everywhere, right-wing populists are coming ever closer to power or have already taken it over. The “illiberal democracy”, as the Hungarian head of government Viktor Orbán calls his political system, threatens to become the future model for many countries. The fatal thing about this is that we do not realize, or only seem to realize, that a state is becoming autocratic, reactionary or even a dictatorship when it is almost too late. In this two-part documentary, we will look at Hungary, Italy, the Netherlands and France, four countries that have already embarked on the path to illiberal democracy. What were or are the strategies used in these countries to destroy democracy - even if not outwardly? What topics are used, what words are chosen, what facades are put up? And do these steps possibly also serve as a blueprint for other countries?

52' (ENG, GER) | 2023
Caligari Entertainment, NDR,

6,000 years ago, it was a large, wealthy, and modern metropolis in the Eurasian steppe with over 10,000 inhabitants. But from one day to the next, the city mysteriously disappeared. The inhabitants of these ancient megasites practiced intensive agriculture on fertile soils, developed crafts, and had a well-functioning social structure. Then, inexplicably, they burned down their houses and the megasites were abandoned. Did the inhabitants fall victim to a plague? Did the climate change so that they could no longer feed their inhabitants? Or did violence and wars lead to their decline? Through targeted excavations, an international research team is looking for answers.

The aircraft was the ultimate machine in the Nazi and Fascist ideologies. Flying represented the purest heroism; machines of steel speeding through the sky symbolised the authoritarian ethos. This is the story of how the six finest Axis fighters came to life. Great engineers pushed themselves and their engineering teams to extremes to provide Nazi and Fascist leaders with the fastest high-performance fighters the world had ever seen. They were up against the greatest industrial nations - the United States and the United Kingdom, and yet they managed to provide their evil masters with technology that held the balance.

Every disaster unveils a human failure, and within the narratives of the two ferry disasters explored in this series, there lies a compelling blend of mystery and scandal. Negligence led to the tragic loss of hundreds of lives in both an inexplicable plane crash and an environmental catastrophe claiming the lives of a dozen climbers, alongside a train derailment shrouded in darkness. What links these tragedies together is the subsequent web of cover-ups and finger-pointing. This series delves into the shortcomings of large organizations, where the pursuit of adequate control proves costly, and corners are too frequently cut in the name of saving resources.

The exciting and entertaining story of how Berlin became the city it is today. Let yourself be amazed by this gem of a documentary series! A chronicle of housing and life in the metropolis, East-West tensions, urban dreams and nightmares. Since the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989, Berlin has taken many detours to transform itself from a rather provincial city into a global metropolis that today resembles both a boomtown and an ungovernable zone. It is a story of idealism and megalomania, of activism and the power of capital, of social advancement and exclusion. CAPITAL B takes us into the slipstream of a unique city and into the battles that have been waged passionately and relentlessly in Berlin for thirty years over one question: Who owns this city?

EMILIE SCHINDLER

WOMAN IN THE SHADOW

52' (ENG, GER) | 2024

Tangram International, BR, arte, FFF Bayern

This is the story about a forgotten heroine, without whom the story of her husband, Oskar Schindler, would be told differently today. Since Steven Spielberg's "Schindler's List", the whole world knows the story of Oskar Schindler, the German factory owner who saved over a thousand Jews during the Nazi era. But hardly anyone knows that Oskar Schindler saved the Jews together with his wife Emilie. How can it be that she bravely risked her life for others and at the same time failed to free herself from a toxic relationship with her husband for decades? The film explores this question from different perspectives throughout time and tells the story of how Oskar Schindler becomes a celebrated hero and Emilie Schindler dies impoverished and almost unknown in 2001.

A PRIEST'S DIARY

THE EXECUTED OF OCCUPIED PARIS

52' (ENG, GER) | 2024

Kinescope Film, NDR, arte, Nordmedia

By August 1944, when Paris was liberated by the allies, Franz Stock had recorded a total of 863 shootings he witnessed in his diary. The German occupiers had appointed him as chaplain to those they had imprisoned in the Paris and condemned to death: resistance fighters, hostages, spies. He gives back what was taken from them in the first place: their dignity. The documentary seamlessly incorporates Franz Stock and his diary entries into the daily lives in occupied Paris from 1940 to 1944. The use of impactful newsreel clips, colorful home movies by Germans, French and Americans, as well as impressive silent film fragments from German and US sources that the makers discovered during their extensive research adds depth to the narrative.

BRANDEN- BURG GATE

The image shows the Berlin Quadriga, a sculpture of a chariot pulled by four horses, topped with a winged figure holding a wheel. It is silhouetted against a dramatic sunset sky with orange, red, and purple hues. The sculpture is positioned in the upper right quadrant of the page, with the title text overlaid on the left side.

THE UNTOLD STORY OF BERLIN'S QUADRIGA

52' (ENG, GER) | 2022
Medea Film Factory, ZDF, arte, nordmedia

The Berlin Quadriga of the Brandenburg Gate underwent a remarkable transformation from a symbol of peace to a triumphant monument. How did it come about that it was first taken from Berlin to Paris as a war trophy by Napoleon, but then forgotten in a depot and almost stayed in Paris forever? It was only during this period of involuntary absence that the work of art became a symbol of Prussia and of the victory over France. The Brandenburg Gate was transformed into a hotspot of German history. Time and again, the horse and carriage has been the focus of attention, as stolen goods, as a backdrop for imperial parades and Nazi marches as well as a symbol during the Cold War and the frenzy of reunification.

Communist Dictatorship in East
Germany

The GDR in the mid-50s. A 6-day week is in force. The young socialist republic needs workers, especially women. But what to do with the many babies when the mothers have to go back to work just six weeks after giving birth? The idea that saves the day seems simple and efficient at the same time: weekly nurseries are created. Anyone can now drop their child off at one of these facilities from 5 a.m. on Monday morning and pick it up again around 6 p.m. on Friday. The former nursery children take us back to the past and tell us about the fears they still carry with them today. A pediatric psychiatrist, an ethicist, an educationalist and a social scientist shed scientific light on the 40-year history of the GDR nurseries and examine the consequences for those affected.

The documentary accompanies art historian and looted art expert Bénédicte Savoy on her research: Did the reliefs once come to Germany through political pressure and bribery?

How did this handful of mercenaries establish their own kingdom within a short time? How did they manage to give Sicily an unparalleled period of prosperity? They traded, relied on the sciences and created magnificent works of art, making Sicily the cultural, scientific and economic centre of Europe. Their recipe for success: they did not oppress, they cooperated. Elaborate reenactments, valuable historical finds and experts from different countries bring the story to life.

Auschwitz and Birkenau are names of concentration camps, that are firmly anchored in our memory, while the name Sobibor fell into oblivion. Sobibor extermination camp was established by the Nazis in eastern Poland in 1942, with the aim of "efficiently" murdering Polish Jews and Roma. It was part of "Aktion Reinhard," considered by many researchers and historians to be the "core of the Holocaust." Until recently there were no pictorial records from Sobibor because the Nazis had destroyed the camps in order to cover the traces of their crimes forever. This changed with the groundbreaking discovery of a photo collection of the deputy camp director Johann Niemann in 2020.

"Through and through in the broken environment of desires. Hustlers, transvestites, the mentally ill, alcoholics. That's where I feel at home. That's the world that needs to be captured." When the artist and photographer Jürgen Baldiga died of AIDS in 1993, he left behind what was probably the most extensive body of work on HIV, AIDS, homosexuality, and subculture in West Berlin in the 1980s and 1990s. The film tells the story of the artist in all his contradictions and provides an insight into a Berlin subculture that would have been forgotten without him. It is the portrait of a unique artist - at a time when an HIV infection was not only a certain death sentence, but also led to a renewed stigmatization of gay lifestyles.

Where Drava and Danube meet, we encounter Central Europe's most spectacular inland delta. Hidden behind the iron curtain for half a century, the Drava delta has remained a secret realm of wetland forests, oxbows and floodplains, ever-shifting channels, islands, and swamps vibrant with a stunning diversity of plant and animal life. Rising from numerous sources across the Alps the Drava links together the most diverse climates, landscapes, and natural habitats. Although its actual source is only 100 miles from the Adriatic coast, this rapid Alpine river flows some 500 miles through five countries until it finally spreads out in Hungary's and Croatia's lowlands.

50', 73' (ENG, GER) | 2024 | Terra Mater Studios,

Join us on this inspiring and mesmerizing tale about a man and his close bond to a female sperm whale affectionately named “Dolores.” For years, Patrick Dykstra has dedicated his life to traveling the globe, following and diving with whales. He has a finely tuned sense and knows how to act when within touching distance of a whale – what to do, what not to do, and when. This allows him to consistently get closer than anyone else alive – a truly unique skill. Patrick recently experienced a life-changing event. In Dominica, he had a close encounter with a female sperm whale. She seemed to be curious about him, coming within touching distance, pulsing him with her sonar. Patrick felt an overwhelming sense that she was genuinely trying to communicate. We follow Patrick as he travels to Dominica again to find this special so she can help him show us the hidden world of her species. Using stunning underwater footage, Patrick explores the fascinating nature of the sperm whale, attempting to shine a light on its intelligence and complexity, as well as highlighting its current and past relationship with humankind. The film explores the psychology of a man who has sacrificed everything in his quest to understand one of the biggest creatures in the ocean.

DETHRONED

50', 90' (ENG, GER) | 2024 | Terra Mater Studios,
Four Corners Film, ServusTV, Four Paws International

There is a connection to big cats that runs deep within us. Throughout the history of mankind, we have looked upon them with awe, wonder, reverence, and respect. Worshipped by the ancients, witnessed as gods – symbols of power so mighty they commanded the construction of our most impressive monuments – big cats arguably mean more to humanity than any other animal. Yet as we lose touch with our history, our relationship with big cats sits at a critical point, and we risk reducing them to a shell of their former symbolic significance. DETHRONED is a story of rediscovery, following photojournalist Aaron Gekoski across our planet in an attempt to uncover where we have parted ways with the big cats and what could happen if we continue to allow these great creatures to be traded, commodified, and enslaved, to serve the purposes of humanity.

A LIFE AMONG ELEPHANTS

52', 90' (ENG) | 2024 | Maramedia, arte, Save the Elephants

60 years ago, almost nothing was known of elephants in the wild. But then one young Scottish biologist changed that forever. In 1965 Iain Douglas-Hamilton arrived in Tanzania to live alongside African elephants. Later joined by his wife Oria and daughters Saba and Dudu, elephants became central to their lives with matriarch Boadicea and gentle young mother Virgo cherished like human relatives. But this garden Eden was short-lived as an ivory poaching epidemic swept across Africa forcing Iain to switch from pioneering scientist to maverick conservationist. He became a lone crusader against the international Ivory trade which was finally banned in 1989. Now back in the field, Iain's work continues alongside a new generation of Kenyan conservationists. This inspiring and emotional documentary combines stunning wildlife imagery with the story of a remarkable life showing how sometimes you have to stand alone to protect what you love.

The film shows the extraordinary strategies adopted by animals, from the tiniest insects to foxes and moles, to cope with the threat. Magnificent, permanent, stable – our Earth. But is it really permanent and stable? Or is it in a constant state of flux? In nature, change would appear to be a gradual process. And yet, a closer look reveals just how quickly the world around us can be altered. Wildfires ravage the landscape. Droughts decimate animal populations. On the planet's surface, only one thing is certain: nothing ever stays the same for long. Humans have brought about unparalleled changes in a comparatively short space of time. Now it remains to be seen: will the planet and its inhabitants find ways to adapt to this new, ever-changing world? Or are there limits to what nature is able to achieve?

The Alps are Europe's greatest mountain range, a popular destination for visitors from all over the world and home to some of the continent's most striking flora and fauna. However, as climate change causes temperatures to rise, the mountains themselves are heating up. Alpine safety organizations have warned about the increasing danger for tourists for years: ice bridges are melting, fissures and crevices are expanding and erosion and the thawing of permafrost are causing an increasing number of rockslides and entire mountain peaks are now disappearing. The consequences are having a dramatic impact that is felt far beyond the Alps themselves.

Women are twice as likely to die of a heart attack, suffer more frequently from the side effects of medication, or live with undetected illnesses. For centuries, medicine has pretended that there is only one gender. Since women are underrepresented in clinical studies, these differences are often only discovered after market approval. And while men's pain is taken seriously, women still have to fight against the myth of the "hysterical woman". "As much as we need social equality between men and women, we also need un-equal treatment in medicine", says gender medicine expert Alexandra Kautzky Willer from the University of Vienna. This applies to all areas of medicine: Research, diagnosis, and treatment.
