Fabrics

Polyester

Black

Dark Grey

Light Grey

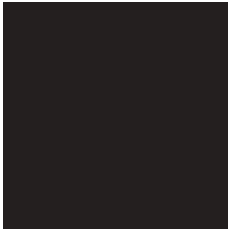

Taupe

Umbrella canopies are often made of polyester, because it is a cheaper plastic fibre. Sunlimited uses a weight of 250 grams/m<sup>2</sup> because a lower quality is too little. This way the canopy will last for years and retain their strength, but they will still discolour.

Olefin | Sunproof

Black

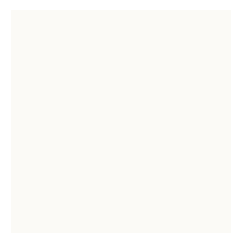

Charcoal

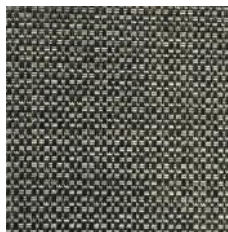

Light Grey

Sand

White

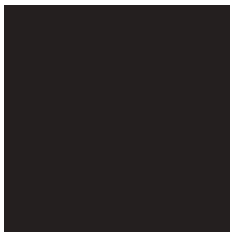

Fontelina

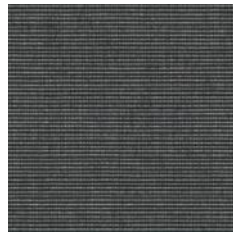

Jealousie

Olefin | Sunproof is a synthetic material that is often used as a high quality outdoor fabric. During the production process, the yarns are colored, so that the fabric retains its color longer than a polyester fabric. Olefin | Sunproof also offers excellent protection against UV radiation, up to 97%. It is very strong and weather-resistant. The Sunlimited Olefin | Sunproof fabrics have a UPF value of 50+. This makes the material extremely suitable for outdoor use.

Acrylic | Sunbrella

Black

Charcoal

Light Grey

Latté

Acrylic is a high quality material for umbrella canopies. It is made from plastic fibers of which the threads are colored during the production process. This makes the canopy colored throughout. Sunbrella is the best-known brand of acrylic fabrics. Sunbrella canopies have a very high UPF value, which means the canopy blocks 99% of UV radiation. These canopies are water-repellent and bacteria and fungi resistant. In many cases, an acrylic canopy, such as Sunbrella, retains its color for up to 10 years. The UPF value of Acrylic | Sunbrella canopies is almost always UPF 50+.

Quick Dry Foam

Sunlimited cushions are 100% weather-resistant. The foam used is called quick-dry foam. This foam doesn't absorb water, is mold resistant and easy to dry. This high quality material is especially designed for long-lasting use in open-air. The multiple added density layers give you extra comfort.
