SYNOPSIS

What does a city have to teach us about leading people, building cultures, and navigating complexity? Everything, it turns out, if you arrive as an outsider, stay long enough to belong, and pay close attention. In this talk, Leela PalChaudhuri draws on three decades of living, working, and observing in Chennai to distil nine deeply human lessons: about simplicity, faith, functionality, bias, work culture, language, equanimity, flexibility, and the cohabitation of old and new – and maps each one onto the challenges leaders face every day. No frameworks borrowed from textbooks. No case studies from foreign shores. Just lived wisdom from one of India's most quietly instructive cities.
