Welcome Message

Assalamualaikum w.b.t and greetings.

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to the 4th International Library Management E-Colloquium, and to the School of Information Science, College of Computing, Informatics and Mathematics, University of Technology MARA (UiTM).

The 4th Library Management International e-Colloquium is organized by the Library Science Management Program, School of Information Science, College of Computing, Informatics and Mathematics, Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM). This fourth international e-colloquium project is planned to extend the Memorandum of Understanding signed with UiTM, international and domestic groups, and universities. This colloquium aims to provide students with insight into the corporate sector. This knowledge exchange should benefit students and prepare them to enter the workforce.

This year's fourth e-colloquium centred on the theme of "Open Science for Information Professionals." The event brought together information professionals, scholars, and experts to explore the dynamic intersection of open science and library management. Discussions will revolve around the evolving role of libraries in facilitating open access, data sharing, and collaboration within the global scientific community. Various sessions delved into strategies for integrating open science principles into library services, addressing challenges such as data management, copyright issues, and fostering inclusivity.

Welcome Message

Notable speakers will share their insights in the hope of leveraging open science to enhance research visibility, academic support, and community engagement. Attendees gained valuable perspectives on harnessing open science to redefine the library's pivotal role in advancing research, innovation, and knowledge dissemination. I believe that this e-colloquium will underscore the significance of information professionals in driving the open science movement forward while adapting their practices to the evolving landscape of scholarly communication.

My heartiest congratulation goes to the 4th International Library Management e-Colloquium project director and her organizing committee for their perseverance, hard work, persistence, teamwork, belief and passion to turn this event into a success. I believe the journey has been tough but it was not without its rewards. And to all students at this e-conference, I am sure you have learnt a lot along the journey and the experience must be priceless. I hope this event today is a fitting cap to your studies at UiTM and your honourable Higher learning institution. Once again, thank you and congratulations for a job well done!
