LONDON SPOTLIGHT

Penelope's

How would you describe your venue's culture and personality?

As a manager here at Penelope's in Sidcup, I'd say our venue is all about blending warmth, authenticity, and a real passion for great food. We've created a space that feels welcoming and relaxed, where guests can enjoy a little slice of the Mediterranean right here in Kent.

Our focus is on fresh, seasonal ingredients and delivering a dining experience that's both delicious and memorable. The artisan pizza oven is one of our standout features, not just for the incredible pizzas it produces but for the sense of connection it creates—guests love watching the process, and it really adds to the atmosphere.

Ultimately, Penelope's is more than just a venue—it's a place where great food, sustainability, and community come together. That's the personality we aim to share with every guest who walks through our doors.

What makes Penelope's unique?

Penelope's is truly unique because it brings together a combination of exceptional food, a beautiful setting, and a genuine commitment to sustainability. We're not just a restaurant; we're an experience.

How do you represent and showcase the local area in your venue?

At Penelope's, we proudly embrace and celebrate the local area by incorporating locally sourced ingredients into our menu and supporting nearby producers. Our farm shop and retail section showcase an array of Kent-grown products, highlighting the rich agricultural heritage of the region. Additionally, the rustic charm of our location at Beck Evans Farm reflects the beauty of the surrounding countryside.

What does hospitality mean to you and your business?

Hospitality at Penelope's is about creating a space where everyone feels welcome, valued, and cared for. From the moment guests arrive, we aim to deliver a warm, memorable experience that combines exceptional service, delicious food, and a genuine connection. It's about making people feel at home while offering them something extraordinary.

Any special and exclusive drinks/cocktails?

Absolutely! We're proud to offer a carefully curated selection of cocktails, including some exclusive creations inspired by Mediterranean flavours. Whether it's a signature limoncello spritz, a raspberry-infused mojito, or a seasonal cocktail using local fruits and our home-grown lavender, our drinks menu is designed to perfectly complement our dishes and setting.

How do you want customers to feel when leaving Penelope's?

When customers leave Penelope's, we want them to feel uplifted, satisfied, and inspired. We aim for every guest to take away a sense of warmth from the hospitality they've received, delight from the food and drinks they've enjoyed, and a connection to the local and sustainable values we represent.

What made you choose DWUK as your drink partner?

We chose DWUK as our drink partner because their ethos of quality, innovation, and sustainability aligns perfectly with our own values. Their range offers the kind of unique, high-quality products that resonate with our guests, and they share our passion for creating exceptional experiences.

How do you find DWUK to work with?

Working with DWUK has been fantastic. They're not just suppliers; they're true partners who understand our vision and work closely with us to deliver the best for our customers. Their reliability, creativity, and commitment to excellence have made them an invaluable part of our team.

Would you recommend DWUK?

Without a doubt! DWUK has been a joy to work with, and their products consistently impress our guests. They bring so much to the table, from their innovative offerings to their collaborative approach, and we'd recommend them to any venue looking to elevate their drinks experience.

What are your venue's short and long-term goals?

Short-term: To continue enhancing our guests' experiences by refining our menu, hosting unique events, and expanding our offerings in the farm shop.

Long-term: To establish Penelope's as a go-to destination in the region, grow our community connections, and become a leader in sustainable dining and hospitality practices.

How do you ensure your business is as sustainable as it can be?

We prioritise sustainability in everything we do. This includes sourcing local ingredients to reduce our carbon footprint, composting food waste, harvesting rainwater, and using solar panels to power parts of our operation. Our farm shop also champions eco-friendly packaging and locally produced goods.

Do you have any plans to become more environmentally friendly in the future?

Absolutely. We're always looking for ways to improve. Future plans include exploring more renewable energy options, reducing single-use plastics even further, and partnering with additional local suppliers who share our environmental values. We're committed to making sustainability a continuous journey.

INSPIRATIONAL WINE MAKING

The inspiration behind Silver Reign was to create an exceptional Charmat using the traditional grapes – Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier.

It all starts in the vineyard, where each grape variety is harvested only when it reaches its optimum maturity. This ensures that the best grapes are pressed and fermented into a base wine, before undergoing second fermentation in the 'Cuve Close' tanks.

Silver Reign has received numerous awards and recognition for its exceptional quality, making it a must-try for anyone who appreciates fine sparkling wines.

Valentine's Tips For Your Venue

Greek Tragedian Euripides once said 'Where there is no wine, there is no love' and we couldn't agree more.

Keep the wine flowing

February 14th signifies a day of love in the UK, with an estimated 25 million cards being sent every year to profess declarations of love and admiration. However, Valentine's Day is also known for its love affair with wine. A powerful aphrodisiac, wine can relax the body while stimulating blood flow to the brain paired with the antioxidant properties typically found in red wines. So, how do you compose a memorable evening for your guests and get them in the mood... to spend more money?

Get customers in the mood

Offering a glass of sparkling rose wine on arrival is a fantastic way to get people in the door (see right), but also ensuring that romantic couples will continue ordering wine to the table. There is nothing more romantic at dinner than sharing a bottle of wine. Luckily, red wine complements just about any kind of meal, with a variety of red wines that are tailored for specific types of dinner. A well-paired, delicious drink to wash down a fantastic meal is critically important. Rich, deep in flavour, yet mystical, red wine does something great for the senses.

Get the atmosphere right

Presentation is key so start by getting the atmosphere right. Candle lit tables and intimate seating plans are perfect for the evening. Most people will be coming in as a couple; however, make sure to have tables ready for families and larger groups. Little things such as flowers, romantic music and pre-laid tables are a great way to make customers feel romantic and special.

The right choice of food

Set menus and deals are perfect for Valentine's day. Work on putting together appetizers, entrées, desserts, and drinks that all complement one another. Oysters are a highly popular food of choice on this day and could be a great, fresh starter. Stick to fresh fruits such as strawberries, cherries and figs and vegetables such as asparagus. Spices such as ginger, cinnamon, and ginseng are great for sparking romance between people. Stay clear of heavy flavours such as dairy, keeping the menu filling and appetizing, but light enough for couples to continue drinking.

Choose the Perfect Rose for your Venue

When the weather warms up and the sun starts to finally appear, more people will start opting for a chilled rosé wine as their go-to choice. Rosé is fresh, light and vibrant; however, it is not always easy to know how to choose a good rosé wine. Here are some tips to keep in mind when making a choice for your drinks menu.

Colour

The easiest thing to do when judging whether a rosé is perfect for your venue is to look at the colour as it can tell you a lot about the flavour and aroma. There are a range of colours rosé wine can be and it can vary from lighter to darker, from pale pink to reddish or even purplish. It is determined by the maceration time of the grape skins when creating the wine and the type of grape used. When a wine is paler and more transparent in colour, it is a good indication that it will have fruity and citrus notes, while being a drier wine. Tempranillo and Garnacha grape tend to be lighter in colour. The darker shades of an intense rosé usually denote strawberries and red fruits and indicates a bolder flavour on the palate which will lean towards sweetness. Darker wines are usually made from Syrah and Bobal grapes that give a more powerful colour.

Vintage

It is not true that every wine improves with time. On the contrary, this is something that depends on each wine. There are wines that have a long ageing projection, while others are designed to be consumed in a relatively short time. In the case of rosé wines, unless it is an aged rosé wine, which is a gastronomic rarity, the general rule is "the sooner, the better". This means that it is recommended to consume them within two years of their harvest. This is because rosé grapes are selected for their freshness, harvested early and fermented at low temperatures, resulting in a tasty and fresh end product. Often, as they age, their flavour tends to flatten out.

Alcohol Volume

Alcohol volume, or ABV, is one of the easiest ways to tell how sweet or dry your rosé will be. The general rule is that anything higher than 11% will be dry, you go lower and you will get a sweeter wine.

Origin Although the origin of the wine does not have to be an exclusive indicator, it can sometimes serve as a guide to know where to start. If you have to try a rosé wine for the first time or you are a bit lost, there are some trusted regions to fall back on. Stick to Provence (Italy), California, Bordeaux (France) or the north of Spain. However, if you have a preferred region for red wine, it is always a good idea to try a rosé from that region also.

St. Patrick's Day

17TH MARCH

TIPS FOR A GREAT ST PATRICK'S DAY

There's more to throwing the perfect St. Patrick's Day bash than simply heading down to the party store and snatching up everything green in sight. Learning a little about the holiday and its traditions can give you some good ideas for hosting a great day and night for your customers. With the right selection of foods, beverages, and activities, you can keep your customers entertained and remind them of the celebration's historical roots.

1. PROMOTE THE DAY!

As we always say, promoting your event is key! So keep it at the front of peoples minds using social media, posters, flyers & decorations around your venue well in advance of the 17th March.

3. LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Book in a live Irish Folk Band or Irish Dancers to liven the atmosphere and really get your customers in the spirit!

2. DECORATE YOUR VENUE

Put up green streamers and balloons. Line the room from corner to corner with the streamers, or hang them over the entryway to welcome your guests to your venue. Use free-floating balloons to fill in the adjoining ceiling space.

4. THEME YOUR FOOD MENU

Make a themed menu to include Irish dishes such as Corned Beef & Cabbage & Lamb Stew. Why not team it up with a meal deal and offer a free Guinness with any themed food dish free!

Everleaf®

NON-ALCOHOLIC APERITIFS

Everleaf is one of the most widely distributed brands in our survey, present in 16% of the outlets represented in a survey conducted by KAM. Since their launch in 2019, they have been testing and optimising menu placements to see what operators should consider to get the most out of this category.

1. Visibility

If it's not on the menu, it won't be in the order. Ensure your non-alcoholic drinks are prominently featured to catch the customer's eye. Don't hide alcohol-free options at the back. Consider placing alcohol-free cocktails upfront or in a box at the top of your food menu.

2. Flavour First

Make it sound irresistible by highlighting flavours in the title - creating a sensory experience. "Cherry Blossom Spritz" outperforms "Virgin Gin & Tonic." We also found that consumers are increasingly saying no to terms such as 'Mocktail' or 'Virgin'.

3. Pricing

Consider this carefully, to ensure your pricing reflects the value of the craft and care you have put into the cocktail. Anything less than 75% of the standard cocktail price may send the wrong message, but ultimately, it's your call.

4. Showcase the Brand

Mention the brand in the description to anchor the price and value proposition. For instance, "Everleaf is a B-Corp non-alcoholic aperitif made from the world's most wonderful plants."

5. Take Pride

Be proud of your low and no-alcohol offerings. We know that when you have a good range, you attract the 1-in-3 people looking for alcohol-free drinks, and they will bring their friends.

Everleaf Mountain is an aromatic blend of sustainably sourced botanical distillates and extracts carefully chosen to capture mountain flavours. Climb through the floral clouds of savoury cherry blossom & sweet mountain strawberry, until you reach bittersweet rosehip at the peak.

MOUNTAIN

Everleaf Marine is a crisp blend of sustainably sourced botanicals carefully chosen to capture marine flavours. Sit back, relax and immerse your senses in the Mediterranean depths from umami-soaked kelp forests, zesty bergamot and tropical sea buckthorn.

MARINE

Everleaf Forest is a bittersweet blend of sustainably sourced botanical distillates and extracts chosen to capture forest flavours. Lie back and imagine the filtered sunlight of forest canopies captured in this blend from exotic saffron & vanilla to honeyed orange blossom.

TE ☐ AMO ☒ QUILA

When navigating your Tequila options, you will encounter five types of tequila. They vary based on standards set by the CRT due to the way they are produced. Many of the best-known brands of Tequila will offer a Blanco, Reposado, and Añejo Tequila in their portfolio. You can typically expect to pay £15 more for a more premium Tequila.

The Classic Juan Collins

What happens when you pour tequila instead of whiskey into one of the best known happy hour cocktails? Magic in a glass! That is what we have in the fun tequila cocktail known as the Juan Collins.

This recipe is just one of the many from the Collins range, which includes some of the most refreshing and popular cocktails you can find. The Collins formula is simple: base spirit, sweet, sour, soda.

Ingredients

- 1 1/2 ounces tequila
- 1 ounce lemon juice
- 1/2 ounce agave nectar
- 2 oz. club soda (or enough to top the glass)
- Garnish: Orange, Lemon or lime wedge

Method

To make the Juan Collins, we begin with a shot of good quality tequila, add fresh lemon juice, and use agave nectar for the sweetener before topping the drink with sparkling club soda. In a matter of just a few minutes, you have a tall, ice-cold tequila drink that can quickly become a new favourite.

Blanco, Silver, or White Tequila

Blanco tequila is a clear spirit that can be either 100% agave or mixto. These tequilas are "aged"—more like "rested"—no more 60 days in stainless steel tanks, if they are aged at all. The unaged Blanco's give the drinker the rawest taste of agave available and have a notable earthy flavour that is distinctly tequila. If you have not tasted a Blanco, then you are missing out on the pure taste of the agave plant. Silver tequila is primarily used for mixing and is perfect for almost any tequila cocktail and often smoother than the gold tequilas for shots. If you are looking for a quality, affordable, all-around tequila to keep in stock, a Blanco is your best option.

Joven or Gold Tequila

Joven (young) or oro (gold) tequilas are the ones that many older drinkers are familiar with, particularly if you spent any time doing tequila shots in the last few decades of the 20th century. Gold tequilas are responsible for many bad tequila experiences and were the most widely distributed in the U.S. during that time. These are often unaged tequilas that are typically mixtos and have been coloured and flavoured with caramel, oak extract, glycerine, syrup, and other additives. While many gold tequilas leave something to be desired in comparison to the other classes, there are now a few decent bottlings available. If you are going to drink a gold tequila, stick to heavily flavoured cocktails or (if you must) shots.

Reposado Tequila

Reposado (rested) tequilas are aged in wood casks for a minimum of two months and many are aged from three to nine months. The barrels mellow the flavours of a pure Blanco and impart a soft oak flavour to the agave as well as giving the tequila its light straw colour. It has become popular for distilleries to age their tequilas in used bourbon barrels, which adds another dimension to the finished taste. A little more expensive than Blanco's, reposado tequilas are the middle ground of the three main types found that are now pretty standard in a brand's tequila line-up. They are versatile enough to be used in a great number of tequila cocktails, particularly those that have lighter flavours like the margarita. Reposados also make great sipping tequilas.

Añejo Tequila

Añejo tequila is "old" tequila. These tequilas are aged, often in white, French oak or used bourbon barrels for a minimum of one year to produce a dark, very robust spirit. Most Añejos are aged between 18 months and three years while some of the best can spend up to four years in barrels. Many tequileros believe that aging longer than four years ruins the earthy flavour tones of the spirit. Añejo tequilas tend to be very smooth with a nice balance of agave and oak. You will often find butterscotch and caramel undertones, which makes these perfect for sipping straight (chilled if you like) or for those special cocktails. You can liken an Añejo to a high-end brandy or whiskey. Try these tequilas in a snifter to get a real sense of their aromas and flavours. As might be expected, Añejo tequilas are some of the most expensive on the market, though there are many reasonably priced options available.
